EASTERN COLLEGE FOOTBALL TEAMS BEGIN HARD TRAINING SEASON TODAY

New York Sept 30 (By the A. P.).—Eastern college football teams will settle down tomorrow for the beginning of hard training for their more important games.

The "Big Three"—Harvard, Yale and Princeton—will make their premier appearances next Saturday. None is expected to face much difficulty in winning the opening game. Harvard will play Rhode Island, Princeton will face Johns Hopkins, while the North Carolina eleven will visit New Haven for the Yale contest.

Considerable interest will be attached to next Saturday's game between Columbia and Amherst. Columbia, under the direction of Percy D. Haughton, veteran Harvard coach, won their opener with Ursinus yesterday 13 to 0. Amherst, on the other hand, was beaten yesterday by Bowdoin by the same score.

The West Point cadets who so successfully came out of their opening game by defeating Tennessee 41 to 0, will do battle next week when they face the University of Florida. The Navy, which also emerged victorious at the rate of 39 to 10 against William and Mary, will meet Dickinson.

Dartmouth should have a scrappy time of it next week when she meets the plucky Maine squad. Dartmouth won her opening game against Norwich 13 to 0, while Maine lost to Vermont by the small margin of 7 to 6.

Up-staters will have a chance to see an intersectional contest when Syracuse tackles the William and Mary team. Syracuse beat Hobart 33 to 0 yesterday. Another upstate battle will be between Colgate and Niagara, and Cornell, which beat St. Bonaventure 41 to 6 yesterday, will play Susquetanna.

Two other intersectional contests are scheduled. One will be played at Washington between Washington and Lee and Washington and Jefferson. The other will be at Raleigh, N. C., when North Carolina State faces Penn State.

FIRST GAME OF TAFTVILLE-NORWICH SERIES POOREST GAME OF SEASON

Over 3,000 baseball fans who crowded into the local fair grounds Sunday afternoon expecting to see one of the regular hard fought Norwich-Taftville games were treated to a surprise when anything but a baseball game was played by both teams cracked up to be fast ball players.

In fact had it not been for the playing of the local men with one or two imported players accounting for hits and runs, the game would have been worse than it was—if that is possible. Altogether it was a disappointing game after what the fans had been fed up to believe they were to see when these two bitter rivals met on the ball field to clash for yearly honors.

Once again the game demonstrated the inadvisability of importing players from outside semi-pro teams or league teams, as only nine of the 18 men advertised for the two teams showed up at the grounds, one or two really having excuses for not coming owing to illness or change of orders by their team managers.

With Canavan signed for Norwich and Stryker for Taftville, a pitchers' battle was looked for, but dumb playing on the part of some players on both teams plus ground rules turned the game into a joke, and around 30 hits were made, 5 doubles and eight triples for a total of 23 runs—13 for Norwich and 10 for Taftville.

In justice to the managers of the Norwich and Taftville teams it should be said that they enjoyed a pleasant evening at a local hotel after the game and Manager O'Leary contended that Worcester violated the contract with Taftville in not bringing the players bargained for. It is understood that the Worcester team was finally paid about half what the contract called for and if this is so fans who heard of it agree that they got more than they deserved.

Fans readily agree that another such meeting between Norwich and Taftville will fail to attract them but there is considerable feeling that two teams, one of all Taftville players except the battery, and one of all Norwich players, battery excepted, would prove a better drawing card.

It was evident on the street Sunday night that imported ball players had received a black eye here in that game and that the stock of all local teams had been boosted for such a series as this. Taftville and Norwich have always been bitter rivals and two teams composed of local players would show more fight than a carload on imported players, and if the series is to be continued the feeling of the fans in this respect should be carefully considered.

One of those real old-fashioned bitter Norwich-Taftville series fought by Taftville and Norwich players is what fans are asking after Sunday's game, and it looks as though the fans had expressed themselves strongly against another game like the one Sunday by the way they piled out of the grounds during the sixth inning Sunday, leaving only about 500 to witness the closing chapters.

The story of the game Sunday is told in the box score which follows.

ACADEMY WINS OPENING GAME FROM KILLINGLY

With only five minutes left to play, Kilroy, the fast right halfback of the Norwich Free Academy eleven, plunged through the lines of Killingly High for the lone goal in the game between these two schools and Covey kicked the goal, making the game safe for Norwich, 7 to 0.

Both elevens were evenly matched and much of the play was in the center of the field, the ball changing hands often. Covey, the Academy quarterback, led his team well and flashy playing by Paul and Phil McNamara, Kilroy and Covey featured in the plays.

For Killingly, Williams, the fullback, was outstanding, his heady work often stopping an Academy advance, stopping possible scoring.

The lineup of the Academy eleven was as follows: McGowan le, Paliocha lt, Steinman lg, Haslam c, Ely rg, Paul McNamara rt, Hollander re, Covey qb, Phil McNamara lhb Kilroy rhb and Henricks fb.

The score by quarters was as follows:

YANKS LEAD IN SCORING IN PAST WEEK WITH 57 RUNS

New York, Sept. 30.—The past week in the major leagues decided the momentous question. It was finally settled with the world's series should be played entirely in New York. The New York Giants, although they only won two of the four games played, put up their total percentage to a point unattainable by Cincinnati, their nearest rivals.

In the American league Detroit and St. Louis jumped their percentages by winning five out of six each, as did the Cubs in the National league.

The greatest number of runs of the week was made by the Yankees, who batted out ninety hits for fifty-seven counters. The Boston Red Sox were scored against the greatest number of times, fifty-five. They also captured the error record, with nineteen.

BREAKS ALL RECORDS FOR DISTANCE AND ENDURANCE

Marseilles, France, Sept. 30.—(By the A. P.)—The French airship Dirmude, a super-zeppelin, today broke all records for distance and endurance when it landed at the Cuers-Pierrefeu airdrome at 6:46 o'clock this morning after an uninterrupted voyage of 4,500 miles, lasting 118 hours and 41 minutes.

The former records for distance and duration of flight were held by the German zeppelin LZ-120 which flew for 101 hours in July, 1917, and the British dirigible R-31, which flew for 108 hours and 12 minutes in July, 1919.

POETRY

FREEDOM IN THE BONDS OF CHRIST.

The tides run north, the tides run south,
With the self-same moon above;
'Tis the shape of the land,
'Tis the turn of the strand,
That determine how they move.

The tide of my life has had many trends,
But ever a steady course;
Neither the shape of the land
Nor the turn of the strand
Can diminish its onward force.

Like the tides of the sea are the currents of fate—
As I reach my predestined goal;
'Tis the choice of the heart,
'Tis the move at the start,
That determines the fate of the soul.

Thank God for the currents that shaped our life
And guided it on to its end;
The hand that has held,
The power that compelled,
Have been that of an all-wise Friend.
—W. S. Bruce, in British Weekly.

OVER AND GONE IS THE SUMMER.

One by one, beyond recall,
Summer roses droop and die.
—Bishop.

Over and gone is the summer and over
the reign of the rose;
Rapt moments that rippled in meter, now pass to the plainest of prose;
For the myriad melodies rising, at morn,
from the leafy hill,
The continuous chirp of the crickets, at night, when all is still.

With the first faint breath of autumn,
southward the swallow goes;
Over and gone is the summer, and over
the reign of the rose.
From the withered weeds by the wayside
the web of the spider is spun,
And the sunflower droops in the garden that yesterday looked on the sun.

A few of the wildflowers linger, true
votaries of her gay train;
But their heads are heavy with sorrow,
their eyes are blurred by the rain.
Over and gone is the summer, and over
the reign of the rose,
And with her foot on the threshold waits
our lady of snows.

The sun withholds his dim fervor on the far edge of southern skies;
With his golden largess lessened, "the light of the whole

What Rent Receipts Mean
Rent receipts are certificates of deposits to the credit of your landlord and are equal in point of value to tickets to a last year circus.
If you pay $25 a month rent for ten years, you will have paid $3,000.00. The landlord still owns the house and the "increment" the property has earned while you have protected it for him. In the ten years' rent you've paid for the house and the land and you don't own a shingle on the roof!

Does it Pay to Rent?
Let us show you how to combat these problems and avail yourselves of our facilities. We have some exceptional bargains at this time.

DWELLING, BARN AND SHEDS ON HUMPHREY BRENNAN PLACE BURNED

The story and a half frame house, large barn and several sheds on the Humphrey Brennan farm, 428 Boswell ave. were destroyed by fire shortly after 11 o'clock Sunday morning. An alarm from box 227, corner Seventh and Boswell avenue, called out the fire department at 11:15 o'clock and although the department made an unusually quick response there was nothing the firemen could do to save the property from the flames. There are no hydrants in the vicinity of the property and the nearest hydrant is about 2,000 or 2,500 feet away. With the great distance over which hose would have had to be laid and with the poor water pressure there it was impossible to get a stream on the flames.

When the firemen arrived the barn was a roaring furnace, beyond saving and the house and sheds were burning, the flames having quickly spread from the barn. All the buildings were in close proximity, some of the sheds being attached to the barn and there was a stack of hay near the barn and house. Some of the furniture in the house was carried out and saved.

Saved His Horse.

Mr. Brennan had his face burned when he went into the barn to save a horse. He was trapped but escaped from the structure after kicking a hole in the side of the barn, large enough for himself and the horse to pass through. Two pigs were burned to death but all other stock on the farm was saved. Fifty tons of hay and six tons of rice straw went up in smoke. Mr. Brennan's loss will be considerable as he was only partially covered by insurance.

It is thought that the fire was caused by a spark from the chimney landing on the hay stack, setting the stack on fire, the flames spreading to the barn and other buildings.

On the way to the fire the Greeneville pumps became disabled in Seventh street in making a shift and was not able to reach the fire. This was due to the fact that the men are not yet entirely familiar with driving of the new pumper which has a different driving system than the old Pope-Hartford which they have been driving.

Had there been a hydrant nearby with a sufficient water pressure the department would have been able to extinguish the blaze in short order, as several of the companies from the Central station were at the box almost before it had stopped ringing.

CAMPAIGN PLAN BEFORE HOSPITAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE

At the invitation of Henry A. Tirrell chairman of the advisory committee in the appeal of the William W. Backus hospital for a $250,000 building and endowment fund, a meeting of the committee will be held this (Monday) evening at 7.30 in the Community House, upstairs. The chairman of the men's division and the commanders and captains of the division also will attend.

The purpose of the meeting is to lay the plan of campaign before the advisory committee, to make plain the urgent needs of the community for continued and improved hospital service, and to receive the suggestions of the committee as to methods to be included in carrying the hospital story to the people of Norwich and the neighborhood places in the Backus hospital territory.

Progress in the building up of the force of hundreds of volunteer workers for the campaign will be told and an account will be given of the organization of local campaign committees in the fifteen places that will have committees to cover the territory outside of Norwich.

The polls will be open today in all districts from six o'clock in the morning until five o'clock in the afternoon.

FITCHVILLE TEAM WINNERS IN PALMER MILL LEAGUE

About two hundred employes and officials of the Palmer Bros Co. from their mills in Fitchville, Montville and New London, gathered at Browning's beach in Montville Saturday afternoon in response to an invitation from the company for a clambake, given in honor of the baseball teams that represented each mill in the Palmer's mill baseball league. Much interest and rivalry has been shown during the season as a handsome silver loving cup was offered as a trophy. Fitchville as usual started out determined to bring the cup to their village and put in extra practice during the summer evenings and succeeded in the task, maintaining such a lead that the final game which was scheduled for Saturday was not necessary, so that other sporting events were substituted. Again Fitchville outpointed their Montville and New London rivals, Fitchville receiving 35 points, Montville 28 and New London 26.

The events of the afternoon started off with the medicine ball relay, which was won by Montville, Fitchville being second and New London third.

The jumping cue stick was taken by New London, Montville second and Fitchville third.

The pin wheel race was won by Fitchville, New London and Montville and the second pin wheel race by Fitchville, Montville and New London. The heavy tug of war was taken by Montville and the light tug of war by Fitchville.

The relay race, with eight men, was won by Fitchville, Montville being disqualified.

The sack race was won by Gillam of New London, Gregory for Fitchville being second and Busch of Montville, third, each of these winners being awarded a pipe.

The three-legged race was won by New London, Montville and Fitchville being third.

The last event of the afternoon being a game of cage ball, exciting the greatest rivalry during the afternoon, Fitchville defeating Montville and playing a tie with New London.

At the close of the events all were invited to the bake in the grove.

After all had feasted, Mr. Kerr of the New London factory presented several of the players souvenirs in appreciation of the interest taken during the game. At the close he presented George S. Palmer of New London, who spoke of his pleasure in being with his employes and said he was much pleased with the interest taken in the events. As this was the first time in the history of the company that such an event was held, he intended that such gatherings should continue in the future as it showed the good feeling existing among his several plants. He spoke of the inventions, conditions, working hours and pay, since first he went to work until the present time.

In closing he spoke of the interest taken by the three clubs of the league, how hard they had found to capture the prize and as he was born in Montville he naturally was for his home town, yet as Fitchville had fought and won he took pleasure in presenting the silver cup to the Fitchville ball team of the Fitchville mill of which E. A. Bidwell is superintendent.

Timothy Fields on behalf of the Fitchville team, accepted the cup, thanking Mr. Palmer, Mr. Johnson and the several other members for the interests shown and closing called for a rising vote of thanks, which was given.

MRS. WEBB WILLED ALL PROPERTY TO HUSBAND

New York, Oct. 1.—The will of Mrs. Gertrude E. Geegan Webb, wealthy New York and Philadelphia society woman, who died under allegedly mysterious circumstances last Tuesday at Rye N. Y., today was filed and showed that she had left all her property, both real and personal, to her husband, Charles Webb.

The document, dated August 21, 1923, also leaves to Mr. Webb his Madison avenue residence and a specific legacy of $230,000. The will appoints as executors of the estate Mr. Webb and any trust company he may select.

A representative of Coudert brothers attorneys who filed the will offered as accompanying memorandum an alleged later will of Mrs. Webb, which was neither signed by her, witnessed nor dated. He said he understood Mrs. Webb was to have signed the later will but was too sick to do so.

The alleged unsigned will left $250,000 to provide for a memorial park in honor of Mrs. Webb in New York, made provisions for various executives and friends, for her husband, and left the residue of the estate to charity.

As such an unsigned document could not be accepted by the surrogate's office, it was refused by the clerk. This alleged will left to Mr. Webb the house on Madison avenue, with the stipulation that if he remarried it should go to Mrs. Webb's aunt, Irene S. Hunter.

The memorial described as "a staircase and park," was to be cared for by the entire income from an uptown apartment house which Mrs. Webb owned. The income from two other apartments was to go to Mr. Webb during his life time, and pass on to the Webb's children, should there be any. Each child that might have been born to Mrs. Webb was also to receive $100,000. Two funds of $50,000 each also were left to provide a trip abroad "for such distinguished scholar in historical studies in the graduating classes of Yale and Harvard as may be recommended by the faculty."

Southampton, N. Y., Oct.—Representative John Philip Hill Republican, Maryland, against whom action was predicted today by Washington prohibition authorities in connection with the manufacture of fruit juices containing more than 12 per cent. of alcohol in his home at Baltimore, declared tonight that if the threatened action is carried through he will have been successful in attempting to have one standarrd alcohol limit "for farmer and mechanic alike."

Mr. Hill declared that for eighteen months he has tried to get a ruling on the question of whether or not there was a legal limit for the alcoholic content of cider and fruit juices manufactured in the home. He said that on September 7 he received a letter from Prohibition Commissioner Haynes.

SAMUEL GOMPERS TELLS OF MENACE IN CHILD LABOR

Portland, Ore., Oct. 1.—(By the A. He was vigorously applauded when he said:

"There can be no greater menace to the civilization of our time than the sacrifice of the children upon the alter of Mammon. The child life of our country must be conserved at all hazards. To say that the constitution of the United States is impotent to protect the children of our time is begging the question."

New York, Oct. 1.—The September grand jury which it is understood has investigated the affairs of certain bankrupt brokerage houses with a view to finding indictments for bucketing, today handed up two sealed indictments before Federal Judge Bondy.

The indictments were sealed at the request of Federal Attorney Hayward who made it plain that he made the request in the interest of the public and not because of the fear that the offenders might escape from the hands of justice.

The indictments which are separate bills, it is understood, concerned two independent groups of offenders who, Mr. Hayward aid, can be apprehended at any time.

NATIONALISTS IN GERMANY SUBDUED BY GOVERNMENT

Revolutionary Movement at Kuestrin Has Been Nipped in the Bud—Reichswehr Troops Surrounded the Rebels in the Arsenal and Arrested Several of Their Leaders—Call for Rinforcements Has Been Countermanded—Chancellor Stresemann is to Submit His Plan to the Reichstag Today.

Berlin, Oct. 1.—(By the A. P.)—The revolutionary movement originated by nationalist organizations at Kuestrin has been put down, says a communique issued by the ministry of defense, and the reinforcements which had been requested will not be required.

The communique says that the commander of the Reichswehr troops, by energetic action, was speedily the master of the situation. The Reichswehr garrison forced its way into the town, surrounded the rebels in the arsenal and arrested several of their leaders.

The situation now is such that the reinforcements which had been called up from neighboring centers need not be sent to the scene.

PRISONERS OVERPOWERED GUARDS IN DUESSELDORF

Duesseldorf, Oct. 1—Sixty criminal prisoners overpowered their guards and escaped from prison last night after the rioting in the city had subsided. Evidently they learned that the security police had been arrested and disarmed and they took advantage of the opportunity to escape.

It is reported that several of them were killed or wounded in a fight with the guards, and the blue police recaptured and brought back some others, but most of the former prisoners are still at large.

The prison from which the men escaped is the one in which the Krupps officials and other political prisoners have been detained. It is guarded by both Germans and French.

REICHSWEHR GARRISON REPULSED FREEBOOTERS

Krustrin, Germany, Oct. 1—(By The A. P.)—Several hundred freebooting insurgents, recruited from Captain Erhardt's notorious Baltic brigade and from nationalistic organizations representing the so-called "Black Reichswehr," this morning attempted to storm the citadel occupied by the Reichswehr garrison with the purpost of seizing arms and equipment.

The attack was repulsed by the local commander, but not until reinforcements arrived from Frankfort. The attacking party was led by Major Buckrucker, a retired army officer, who, together with several hundred of his followers, was arrested and locked up.

ISSUES NOW CONFRONTING CHANCELLOR STRESEMANN

Berlin, Oct. 1.—(By the A. P.)—Greater production, abandonment of the eight-hour day and drastic curtailment of government jobs constitute some of the issues on which Chancellor Stresemann and the socialists are likely to disagree in the near future. The Bavarian situation has also furnished an unexpected supply of combustibles, which threaten the present solidarity of Stresemann's socialist-bourgeois cabinet.

Although the cabinet held a long and harmonious session today, at which the outlines of the chancellor's declaration to the Reichstag tomorrow were formulated, parliamentary circles believe that the socialist members of the cabinet will be forced to retire, under the increasing pressure of the party's radical wing.

The points of divergence are wholly in internal origin, as the party as such, is in complete accord with the chancellor's foreign policies, as reflected in the abandonment of passive resistance. While there are not yet active indications of a crisis around the Reichstag, the next forty-eight hours will in all probability reveal the advent of a bourgeois government, which, at least, will receive the neutral support of the German nationalists, unless they decide for active participation.

Such an eventuality would mark the beginning of a government "dedicated to law and order," for which apparently there is a growing sentiment on all sides. While tenure of office of such a government would be a matter for speculation, there is no denying that with the defeat of passive resistance, the nation's foreign situation and the disruption of its economic organism, oddly enough have given a sharp inpetus to the insistent demand for a government of law and order which would be possessed of sufficient courage to attempt a mildly diluted dictatorial regime.

With the wreckage of passive resistance confronting him, Chancellor Stresemann is said to be determined to put into immediate effect a programme of drastic economic and salvaging measures, which will show scant consideration for the sensibilities of the employers of organized labor or the propertied classes. With such prospects in view it is believed the socialists would prefer to return to their opptional positions in the Reichstag.

QUIET PREVAILS IN ALL SECTIONS OF BAVARIA

Munich, Oct. 1.—(By the A. P.)—Quiet prevailed in Munich and other points in Bavaria today.

RIVER PIRATES BROKE SHIP'S STRONG BOX IN NEW YORK

New York, Sept. Oct. 1.—Quietly stealing alongside the freight steamer Bridgetown in a rowboat last night, a gang of river pirates, heavily armed with revolvers and knives, overpowered the crew and stole $11,000 in gold bars and platinum from the ship's strong-box which they opened by means of acetylene torches, it was learned today.

The pirates clambered up the side of the vessel as she lay at her Brooklyn pier and caught one after another the 11 members of the crew and one customs officer, stealthily gagging and binding each one of them so that the entire crew might not be aroused at once.

Then with the seaman securely trussed in corners, the pirates numbering about 15, used acetylene torches to burn the hinges off the safe box. The precious metal which they obtained, was consigned to a New York company and brought to this port from South America on Friday. A much larger quantity of gold ingots and platinum it was stated was removed from the strong box on Friday.

Police learned of the robbery when one of the sailors unloosened a knot of the ropes with which he was bound and telephoned to police headquarters. The sailors said the pirates had worked efficiently and had not been brutal. They remained on board more than an hour.

THE ELECTION RESULT.

In an emphatic manner through the town election the voters of Norwich have given their endorsement to a most satisfactory administration of the town affairs during the past two years and have indicated their desire that it should be continued through the coming two.

Though the campaign was unusually quiet there was a slight increase in the number who went to the polls over two years ago and where Selectman Bailey at the head of the ticket was elected by 191 majority two years ago, William S. Murray is this year ushered into that office with a majority of 375, while the normal majority as indicated by the vote on registrars was 294.

The confidence that is placed in the republican candidates is disclosed by the election of the entire ticket. The citizens of Norwich have unquestionably chosen well after having been impressed with the fitness of the men. Good government has been received in such measure that it is not surprising that the townspeople should want it continued, and it is to be noted that they have taken a most commendable method of assuring it.

And the same good judgment that has been displayed in connection with the choice of town officials has been shown in regard to the constitutional amendment. Carried by a vote of practically ten to one it shows overwhelming recognition of the need of giving such authority to the governor, and in the remainder of the state takes the same view there is no question over its adoption.

MANCHESTER'S CENTENNIAL.

What is certain to be a grand old home week for the town of Manchester has been arranged with great care for the first seven days of this month. Old residents, neighbors, friends and those who never saw the place will find their way there to participate in the good time, to note the growth of this busy place, the diversity of its manufactures and to participate in that general good fellowship which is certain to be experienced.

Manchester has made plans for entertaining a large number of visitors, and it hasn't existed for a century without demonstrating that it knows how. From all sections of Connecticut and beyond there will not only go visitors but congratulations as it observes the centennial of its incorporation.

Manchester has been growing for a long time. It was once part of a territory five miles square that was sold by a son of Uncas to a committee of five settlers. Once a part of East Hartford its development was such that it became incorporated as a town in 1823 and was named after the English city because cotton manufacturing was its chief industry. It is now a thriving manufacturing town with a population of over 20,000.

The Silk City of New England is the name it has acquired because of the great Cheney mills, but there is a diversity of manufacturing establishments and the fact that its population has doubled in the past 25 years discloses the enterprising character of the community.

Having done so well during its first century it is to be congratulated and all the indications are that Manchester is moving forward to greater things in its second century.

AN AWFUL BLUNDER.

How unjustified and uncalled for was the strike of the New York pressmen is aptly described by Samuel Gompers when he declares it to have been an awful blunder, and commending International President Berry in taking every means within his power to uphold the good name of the organization and the good will of the employers.

Mr. Gompers as president of the American Federation of Labor didn't declare himself until the matter had been practically ended, but he nevertheless recognized what harm is done to organized labor whenever there are such outlaw strikes and refusals to abide by a contract which had been agreed upon and to respect the orders of the international body.

Highhanded were the methods employed by the pressmen's local under leadership of questionable responsibility. No better evidence was needed, than that which was displayed, of the utter lack of fitness for guiding the activities of such an organization. It is even surprising that members of such an organization should have such little regard for their obligations as members as to be willing to follow such rabid guidance.

The outcome of the test is no different from what was to be expected. It has nevertheless worked a rank injustice upon the publishers and upon the reading public depending upon the New York papers. It was fully understood in advance that this injustice would be inflicted but the attitude was that they believed that they had the power to to put the pressure on and get their demands whether the demands of the methods were justified, and regardless of the fact that they were pledged to resort to other means of effecting an understanding.

Organized efforts when conducted under such a plan cannot fail to be seriously injured whenever affairs of that kind take place, and none understands it any better than Samuel Gompers when he takes advantage of the opportunity to call it an awful blunder.

NIGHT SCHOOLS.

We have reached the season of the year when the sessions of the night schools will be opening, and the advantages of such an opportunity to get an education, regardless of the age, should not be disregarded.

Illiteracy in Connecticut showed a slight gain during the past decade. That is attributed to the many who came into the state as immigrants or to engage in war work. How many of these have remained no one knows but too much effort cannot be made to put an end to the inability to read or write, and especially in the English language.

It is the night school that opens the way to many who are desirous of improving their knowledge of English and other subjects to do so. It is a chance that many will seize without being urged, but no one should fail to impress its value upon those who are in need of just such instructions as it offers. It is well to set forth its merits and urge attendance.

Such opportunities for overcoming the lack of advantages, for getting a schooling that was turned down in past years and the chance for others to get advanced instructions ought not to be neglected. It is surprising what results are obtained through the devotion of fall and winter evenings to such excellent use.

There is unquestionably a need for the night schools. They are possible of much development but to that large number of people who are not acquainted sufficiently with the English language, who cannot read and write in it, there should be a particular appeal. It is a stepping stone to better citizenship and the more that can be brought to receive the benefit the greater is bound to be the accomplishment. As long as the night schools are maintained sufficient effort should be put forward to see that those for whom they are conducted know about them and their advantages and that they should be encouraged to profit by them.

THE NEGROES IN THE SOUTH.

North Carolina is not a state that has the same kind of a record concerning the treatment of the black man that some other states have, and it shows an entirely different disposition in connection with the recent deportation of Negro laborers than might otherwise have been the case had there not been such a shortage of just that kind of help during the past several months.

When the colored people began to migrate to the north they left that part of the country that is best suited to them and where the span of life for them is the greatest. They went from the country into the cities. They found conditions unfavorable and in some places the receptions were not cordial. Not only did they experience a disillusionment but the states which they left soon began to want them back. They had done everything possible to drive them away and yet when they were gone they found they could not get along without them. There was no one to take their places and their absence was serious.

Thus when a locality in North Carolina proceeds to deport Negro laborers because one of them was suspected of attacking a white woman it was not surprising that both the local and state authorities should hasten to see that they got the protection to which they were entitled.

There is no reason to expect that the guilty should escape punishment. It is proper that the black man's rights should be respected and that he should have a fair trial and get the benefit of other than lynch law. Had efforts been made to educate instead of degrade the Negro and had he been shown that consideration in the past that the North Carolina authorities have extended to those Negro laborers the situation in the south regarding the black man might be far different today. The problem is not a small one, but there is a right way to solve it and experience shows that it is not through the exercise of mob rule which leaves a blot upon every state that tolerates it.

Even though the shipping board revenues show an increase it will be a long time before there are any stock dividends.

The man on the corner says: When the burglar reads that he missed the best things he probably considers it an invitation to come back.

Think of getting Baron Renfrew way out in the wilds of Alberta and letting him eat corn on the cob without providing him with one of automatic corn eaters!

If it is impossible to run the shipping board vessels without a loss it works around to government expenditure which may be even greater than the subsidy would have been.

There's something about Captain Watson's testimony before the board of inquiry concerning the destroyers wrecked on the Pacific coast that reminds one of the frankness of George Washington and the cherry tree.

GREAT DISCOVERY

"You needn't tell me the world is going to the dogs," declared the man who had got home late and managed to wake up everybody else in the family.

"I went out to the Whoopla Gardens," he further confided, jangling the doorchain in trying to fasten it, "and I was resigned to being jammed in with the usual bunch of people one sees everywhere—girls in such airy frocks that it would make you nervous to sneeze, and men who talked dollars and cents when the fountain was playing rose and orchid against the green banks and who only woke up when the Whoopla Giggly Girls came prancing down the dance floor.

"I'll bet there wasn't a man there who knew that there was a bright summer moon shining above the poplar trees, because if he was under 30 he wasn't seeing anything but the particular fairy he had brought there to dinner, and if he was over he was too busy mentally counting up what the check was likely to be and wishing to thunderation that Florrie would ever let him order the table d'hote instead of picking out all the most expensive items on the menu. And if she'd let him sit still and smoke in peace instead of jumping up every time the orchestra burst forth and heading toward the dance floor!

"Bless me if I know what's come over the girls these days—I looked and looked and I saw nary a one who struck me as entertaining a vestige of an idea in her head. If she wasn't eating she was eying the other girls on the dance floor critically or else casting melting glances at her escort and saying 'Really! Now, Herbert, you don't mean it!' or 'You are positively the funniest man! How can you think of such witty things to say, Herbert?'

"They were graduates of the school for teaching young women how to keep a man interested in you.

"Every head had its $50 permanent wave, every hand was like a pink-tipped lily and I was getting very low in my mind. I really couldn't see what the world was coming to, how there ever were going to be any meals cooked or furniture dusted or stockings mended, it being their aim to give the impression that crude labor was the farthest thing from their golden lives of luxury.

"And then I turned halfway around and saw a table with eight persons sitting around it and the woman who was talking about a pie she had made I think it was that word pie which attracted me, because when you go to these spiffy gardens you don't get cuts of pie for dessert—you get Arabian bombes, which are ice cream, and coups Jacques, which are like nothing on earth, and things like that, so the word sort of smote me on the ear.

"I gathered that the eight had met to celebrate somebody's anniversary. There were two young couples who told cheerfully how cute the baby was getting and a fat, middle aged pair who looked prosperous and calm and laughed a great deal and the pie lady and her husband, who it seemed had driven all day from down state to get there. The lady of the pie was just as the Lord had made her, and I'm not saying but what a dash of powder and rouge and a wave wouldn't have improved her somewhat. Nevertheless, I am sure she has a big, well-filled cookie jar in her pantry and that her little boy loves her.

"She was telling what a good dinner she had given somebody—fried chicken and chocolate cake and the pie and a mess of peas from the garden, and her husband, who I am sure owned the hardware store in his town, beamed retrospectively as she talked. You could see nothing but death itself ever would get him more than two feet away from that woman. I don't think he even saw the dancing crowd except as a fhase.

"Besides pie I heard talk about the last church supper, uncle George's grand new car, the baby's new tooth, the hopes of getting to Niagara Falls, and wasn't this fun being there all together on such a fine summer night! Just ordinary prosaic, bromidic family chatter, but I felt just as though I had $1,000,000 left me and I wanted so much to go over and thank the lady who had made the pie and tell her how she had bolstered up my shrinking faith in the existence of real people! No, sir, the old worlds still all right!"

He listened for gratified comments, but all he heard was a lot of assorted snores, for the disturbed family had gone to sleep again, soothed by his flow of words.—Chicago News.

Stories That Recall Others

A New Disease.

At the opening of school recently a teacher began impressing on her pupils the importance and advisability of acquiring a clear understanding of all words used in their conversation writing or reading. She advised frequent and exhaustive study of authentic dictionaries, also, she said, when a teacher used an unfamiliar word, it was the duty of the pupil to inquire the meaning.

Things went well; indeed, better than she had expected. The first week the history class took up a discussion of Shay's rebellion. At one point in the narrative it was said that the soldiers broke into mutiny. A girl put up her hand.

"Is mutiny a disease?" she said.

Maybe So, Maybe So.

The teacher was telling the boys and girls of the wonderful advances that had been made since she was a school girl and how the whole method of living has been changed.

"Now can any of you tell me of one thing that your mothers do now that they did not do years ago?"

"Bob our hair," one little girl piped up.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Three Months' Discussion.

Mr. Editor: The City Bible class for men meets in the Central Baptist church each Sunday at noon. You do not have to belong to any particular church to become a member. In fact, it is not a prerequisite that you belong to any church. If you are a human being and are willing to do your part in helping your fellow men—you are welcome. Come and tell us your ideas as to what is necessary in this strenuous life—to make things more happy for us all. We may be wrong ourselves. It will at least do you good to spend an hour each Sunday advancing ideas that may be of benefit to the entire community. Here every one has the right to express his own convictions, and no matter whether the others all agree with them or not, you still will have their respect in your right to propound your beliefs and present them for discussion. Commencing next Sunday, Oct. 7th, at noon, the class will take up for weekly discussions for a period of three months a work of eleven chapters entitled "Christianity and Economic Problems." It is in reality a discussion group textbook. The chapters are as follows: (1) A Divided World. (2) Poverty—Misfortune or Blessing? (3) Is Poverty a Serious Problem? (4) Do Great Fortunes Help or Hinder Social Progress? (5) Are Luxuries Antagonistic to Public Welfare? (6) Does Modern Industry Help or Hinder the Full Development of Human Beings? (7) Why is There Not Enough to Go Around? (8) How Can Industry Be Made to Produce More Goods and Better People? (9) What Changes Would Most Benefit Industry? (10) What Degree of Public Control of Industry Will Best Promote the General Welfare? (11) How Rapidly Can a Christian Economic Order Be Achieved?

On next Sunday at noon, and continuing for one hour, the discussion will be in connection with the chapter on A Divided World. Every man in the city or town who desires to do his little bit to try and make things better and easier for his fellows, and who is willing to learn as well as teach is earnestly invited to be with us. Come and do your part to make this three months' discussion a benefit to us all and a help and happiness to yourself in your efforts to do good.

CHILD TRAINING

Discovering and Encouraging Your Child's Talents.

By Helen Gregg Green

Dropping in at a friend's the other day, I found her sitting on the floor admiring a wooden aeroplane her small son was making.

"Isn't it splendid?" she smiled, handing it to me.

"I'm going to build big aeroplanes, and bridges, and houses, and things, when I grow up!" Buddy exclaimed.

"Indeed he is!" the mother declared.

When six year old Buddy had returned to his playing his mother said, "Ever since Buddy was old enough to show any special interest along any line, I've tried to detect his natural gifts. He always loved building things. And I have encouraged this talent to the best of my ability. We have furnished him with plenty of building material. And I'm never too busy to stop, look, and admire."

"You're right," I replied, very much interested. "Plenty of talent has been left to die because of lack of interest on the part of the parent."

"I had a cousin," the mother continued, "who would have been a famous painter, but for his father."

"His father?" I interrupted.

"Yes. He was always saying, 'No artist son for me. I want a regular boy.' When Joe begged to be sent to an art school, where he could express the beauty hidden away in his soul, the father refused, and packed him off to a military academy. Of course, the boy is a failure. He never accomplished anything. So—I'm trying hard not to be that kind of parent."

After I left, I thought how wise Buddy's mother is.

How much talent has been lost to the world through the stupidity, carelessness and thoughtlessness of parents!

So let us study our boys and girls, encouraging and developing the talents they possess.

PLEADS GUILTY TO DRIVING WHILE INTOXICATED

John Maheu of Willimantic went on trial in the superior court here before Judge Allyn L. Brown on the charge of manslaughter for causing the death of Charles Manning of Franklin in an automobile accident on Aug. 18, 1923, on the Norwich-Willimantic road. After the accused man had testified, Judge Brown called for a conference with the attorneys, at the conclusion of which Maheu was allowed to plead guilty to driving an automobile while intoxicated. He was given a jail sentence of six months without costs.

Maheu was defended by former attorney general King of Willimantic and State Attorney Hull prosecuted the case.

Civil Engineer George E. Pitcher explained a plan of the roads at the point of the accident and Deputy Sheriff George H. Hoxie, Jr., testified that he saw a coat on the ground and saw Dr. Gilledrsleeve take a partly filled bottle of liquor out of a pocket of the coat.

The deputy sheriff produced the coat and the bottle in court as exhibits and testified that Driscoll's car stopped 3500 feet from where Driscoll passed Maheu at the top of Franklin hill.

George H. Tatro of Versailles, a public service car driver, testified he arrived just after the machine had tipped over. The car was standing on its wheels. The marks in the bank and the way the dead man lay showed the car had tipped over. Maheu said some one had hit him. The witness said Maheu was intoxicated and was staggering over the road. Tatro said that Maheu made an attempt to go away on a truck that was going after help, but the witness told him he must wait for the officers. There were marks on the right hand bank 12 or 15 inches up and the car stood with its rear wheels in the right gutter and the dead man lay close to the oar.

Harry W. Dickey of Willimantic testified to the way the Maheu car stood crosswise of the road with its right rear wheel in the ditch. He also described the position of the body and the tracks of the automobile in the road, swinging off to the left into a gravel portion and coming back into the macadam part. Avery testified that Maheu was talkative, unsteady on his feet and had been drinking. He charged Maheu with being drunk. The witness said he believed the two rear wheels and the right front wheels of the car were broken. He saw Dr. Gildersleeve take the bottle of liquor from the Maheu car.

Dr. Albert C. Freeman of this city testified he saw Maheu at the Norwich police station at 8.10 daylight time, and he was under the influence of liquor then. His breath smelled of liquor.

Dr. Clarence G. Thompson of this city, who also saw Maheu at the police station, corroborated Dr. Freeman as to Maheu being under the influence of liquor.

Charles B. Davis of Franklin, the justice of the peace who tried the case, identified the coat and the bottle as the same which had been exhibits in the Franklin court.

The state rested and Attorney King opened the case for the defense by calling John M. Driscoll of Franklin, who testified he drove past Maheu's machine near the top of Franklin hill when Maheu was going 5 miles an hour. The witness said after passing Maheu about 150 feet he heard a tire blow out and in a few minutes he looked back and saw the machine going crosswise of the road. He stopped and walked back. He saw the dead man in the road and Maheu standing by the machine. The place was off the left front wheel and the tube was wound around inside the wheel. The witness said he had gone about a quarter of a mile when he stopped to go back. He testified that the spokes in the right front wheel of the Maheu car were smashed.

John Maheu, 28, of Willimantic, the accused, testified that he is married and has six children. He bought the Ford car last fall and paid $60 for it, a 1913 car. The day of the accident was the second time he had taken it out. He had no driver's license. He had been down Franklin hill and turned around picking up Manning, who offered him a drink out of a bottle. Maheu said he didn't take any, but he had had two glasses of sweet cider and two drinks of whiskey that day. Maheu said some machine passed him at the top of the hill and struck him. Then his car went zig zag, he went through the windshield and remembered nothing more. When he got up he saw Manning in the road and his car was crosswise of the road. He stopped a truck that came along and asked help. He did not believe the car tipped over. He denied that he was trying to run away in the truck, but he wanted to go and let his father know what had happened. He said he didn't hear any tire blow out, but the other man hitting him was what caused the accident. He couldn't say that Driscoll was the man who passed him of who struck him.

At this point Judge Brown recalled Driscoll to the stand asking him if any car had passed him in either direction after he passed Maheu. After Driscoll answered "No," Judge Brown declared a recess while he called counsel into his room for a conference.

When court came in again Maheu changed his plea to guilty to driving an automobile in the public highway while intoxicated.

Judge Brown pronounced the sentence of six months in jail without costs, telling Maheu that the court could not overlook cases where men are found driving automobiles while intoxicated.

Judge Brown then declared a recess until further order of court.

State Attorney Hull said that he could not say whether there would be any further business this week for the criminal court.

On April 21, 1895, Mr. Frink was united in marriage with Amy Barber, the wedding taking place in Bozrah. # REPUBLICANS ELECT WHOLE TOWN TICKET; TWO DISTRICTS DEMOCRATIC Control of the conduct of the business of the town remained in the hands of the republicans when they elected their entire ticket Monday, headed by William S. Murray, first selectman, and Charles P. Bushnell, second selectman. For third selectman Patrick T. Connell, democrat, was the choice, defeating the other democratic nominee, Henry F. Parker, by 12 votes.

On the vote for auditor, where there was no contest, the straight republican majority was shown at 286 and there was little variation from those figures even where there was a contest.

Selectman Murray's majority was 275. The republicans had a majority, of about 290 in the First district, about 90 on the second, about 10 in the Fourth and 60 in the sixth. The Third district, Greeneville, went democratic by about 80 on selectman and the Fifth district, Taftville, was about 90 democratic. Two years ago, when the republicans won the election, Selectman Casper K. Bailey had a majority of 191.

WILLIAM S. MURRAY
Elected First Selectman

John B. Oat and Frederick H. Prothero, both republicans, were the two assessors elected, and the three members of the board of relief chosen were James C. Fitzpatrick and Francis Belque, republicans, and M. Frank Leonard, democrat.

It was one of the smallest votes ever cast at a town election in Norwich. In the central voting district there was hardly enough work to keep the officials busy for any length of time. Even at the noon hour when usually there is a line reaching far beyond the doors of the hall there was hardly a line of six or eight voters. Most of the women voted in the afternoon.

The polls in all districts opened at 6 a. m. and closed at 5 p. m.

The following shows the number registered and the number voting in each district:

Counting the Returns.

As soon as the polls had closed at 5 o'clock in the central district, Moderator Martin E. Jensen called the annual town meeting to order and on motion of Judge H. H. Pettis it was at once adjourned to next Monday evening.

Moderator Jensen, with the assistance of Registrars Tyler D. Guy and Cornelius J. Downes, and the checkers, had the vote taken off the three machines in 19 minutes from the time the first machine was opened. The Sixth district was the first of the outside district to arrive with its figures, followed shortly afterwards by the Second district. The Fourth district came in next with the Fifth district following and the Third district was last to report, reaching the town hall just an hour after the polls had closed.

Moderator Jensen used an adding machine to total the complete vote, which he announced at 6.30 to a few of the election officials who were still at the town hall.

The vote in detail is given herewith:

WEDDINGS.

Spellman—Shea.

In St. Patrick's church Monday morning at 8 o'clock Nicholas Joseph Spellman of 54 Prospect street and Miss Esther Marion Shea of 104 Asylum street, were united in marriage by Rev. M. H. May, rector of the church, who also celebrated the nuptial mass. The bridesmand was Miss Marie A. Shea, sister of the bride and the best man was Joseph Farrell. Prof. Frank L. Farrell presided at the organ rendering as the processional the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin and as the recessional Mendelssohn's Wedding March. During the offertory Guonod's Ave Maria was sung by Henry J. LaFontaine.

The bride was charming in a gown of ivory satin crepe and carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, the gift of the groom. The bridesmaid was gowned in peach chiffon crepe with silver lace and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride on Asylum street, Berkoff catering. The bride received many beautiful gifts. Following an extended trip Mr. and Mrs. Spellman will be at home in a new apartment on Prospect street after November 1.

The bride is the daughter of John G. Shea of Asylum street and has always made her home in Norwich. Mr. Spellman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Spellman of Prospect street and has always lived in Norwich. He is an ex-service man having served overseas during the World war.

POTATO DEMONSTRATION TO SHOW ITS RESULTS

On Thursday, October 4th at 1.30 p. m. the potato demonstration at Shedd & Dawley's fields on Preston Plains will be dug out. There are six strains of Green Mountains from different growers in Maine and Vermont in the demonstration.

The seed was planted on May 19th and received the same treatment in every way as did the whole field. Each of the strains used are very good and have been planted to quite an extent throughout the state. The potatoes will be dug out with Shedd & Dawley's power digger and weighed up and yields compared right there on the field.

In addition to digging the demonstration, there will be an opportunity to see how potatoes are handled on a large scale. A large power grader is used in grading the tubers for market. The potatos in the demonstration will be graded for first, seconds and culls.

Quite a great deal of interest has been shown about the county in the development of potato growing on Preston Plains. Ten, fifteen and thirty acre fields are not common in the county and not so very common in the state and for most people it is interesting to see how the potatoes are handled at harvest time.

CARPENTIER HOPES TO BEAT GIBBONS THEN GET ANOTHER TRY AT DEMPSEY

London, Oct. 1 (By the A. P.).—It took Georges Carpentier, the French fighter, just about twenty seconds tonight to put the quietus on the championship aspirations of Joe Beckett, who holds the heavyweight title in Great Britain. Carpentier used both lefts and rights in a brief series of exchanges, and Beckett remained on the floor for the final count.

The two men received a great ovation when they entered the ring for their 20 round bout, and for a fleeting moment Beckett was wreathed in smiles. His supporters, however, could hardly have witnessed a speedier or greater disappointment than awaited them.

Beckett led with a light left to his opponent's jaw, but there was no power in the blow, and Carpentier shot over a left followed by a right to Beckett's jaw with terrific force, and Beckett went down for a count of five.

The Englishman got to his feet rather groggily, and the Frenchman dashed in and with right and left beat Beckett down again near the ropes, falling on top of him. On rising, Carpentier stood back. Beckett gripped the bottom rope in an effort to pull himself to his feet, but he was so badly spent that apparently he had lost all sense of what was going on, and before the count had been completed his seconds threw in the towel and thus ended one of the quickest and most sensational of heavyweight contests.

After the fight Carpentier said it was all over so quickly that there was nothing to talk about. Asked about his future plans, he replied:

"I am off to America next month and if I can beat Tom Gibbons I expect to meet Dempsey again. Indeed, I hope so."

PLAINFIELD HIGH WINS EASILY FROM PUTNAM

(Special to the Bulletin.)

Plainfield, Oct. 1.—Plainfield High successfully opened up her football season Saturday by defeating Putnam High to the tune of 22-0. Plainfield, with a much more experienced team, and a much stronger line-up than that of last year, completely outclassed Putnam in every department of the game. The Plainfield boys were out for a win, having never beaten Putnam, and the whole team worked like one well-oiled, smooth running piece of machinery. Williams starred for Plainfield, scoring ten points, while Allard, West, and Callup all deserve much credit for their courage and fine head-work.

Following is Plainfield's line-up:

Substitutions, LaFavre for Butler, Butler for LaFavre. Touchdowns, Williams, Allard, Gallup. Goal after touchdown, Williams. Field goal, Williams.

Officials: Clifford Marston of B. U. referee; Ralph Johnson of Yale, umpire; Chester Neilson of Eurcet, head linesman; John L. Chapman, Principal of Plainfield High, timer.

Suggests Picking New Republican President

Gen. Jose Castro, Governor of the State of Durango, who has sent a circular letter to all State governors throughout Mexico, as well as prominent supporters of the Revolution of 1920, which put Obregon at the head of the nation. Although the presidential elections are still almost a year off, he suggests that a new candidate be chosen, for if a number are announced and a division of the supporters of the Revolution is made, the reactionary elements will unite on a candidate and ally him into the presidency.

ZEO AND MY OWN TO MEET; THE WINNER TO RACE PAPYRUS FOR $100,000 PURSE

New York, Oct. 1 (By the A. P.).—A proposal for a race next Saturday between Zev of the Rancocas stable and My Own of Admiral Cary T. Grawson's stable, to determine which three year old shall carry America's colors in the $100,000 international contest with Papyrus, English Derby winner, was announced tonight by Major August Belmont, chairman of the Jockey club.

Sam C. Hildreth, Zev's trainer, who previously had opposed a final test with My Own, has consented to the race, Major Belmont said, but only on the condition that it be run at a mile and an eighth, although the international match is to be over a mile and a half course. Zev, because of a recent foot injury and interruptions in training, would not be prepared to race more than that distance, Hildreth said.

Major Belmont, speaking on behalf of the international race committee of the Jockey club, declared Admiral Grayson had been invited to accept the contest at the shorter distance, though "fully recognizing that it is not as satisfactory as a mile and a half, which the committee understands My Own is fully prepared and trained to do."

It is proposed to hold the race at Aqueduct track, which has the best mile and an eighth course in the metropolitan section.

"The comparison is all in favor of Zev," says the statement, "admitting the contention of certain critics of Zev that he was a tired horse at the end of the race. The Lawrence Realization was run in 2.30 3-5 for the mile and a half, while the time of My Own in the sweepstakes, at the same distance, was 2.32 1-5. Untidy ran second in both."

"In conclusion" says the statement "the committee is seeking but one result, and that is the selection of the best horse, irrespective of any other consideration."

IF RACE IS NOT HELD, COMMITTEE MUST DECIDE

Washington, Oct. 1 (By the A. P.).—Admiral Grayson tonight transmitted to August Belmont, chairman of the Jockey club, a renewal of his offer to race My Own against Zev at any time or any place for a purse, or without it, at a mile and a half, but declining to enter any elimination contest which was not for the same distance as the big race itself.

Admiral Grayson contended that in all branches of sport an elimination contest took on the same character as the principal event.

The international cup race in which Papyrus is to meet an American horse, yet to be selected, for the world's three year old championship is to be for a mile and a half, Admiral Grayson pointed out to Mr. Belmont, and under those circumstances he declined to enter any elimination which would not bring out the full advance qualities of the horses.

The committee of the Jockey club charged with the responsibility of selecting a challenger to face Papyrus must pick a horse by Saturday, Oct. 6. Unless an elimination race at a mile and a half is arranged in the meantime, the committee must make a decision itself between Zev and My Own.

RENAULT HANDS FULTON K. O. IN NINTH ROUND

Boston, Oct. 1.—Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight, knocked out Fred Fulton, of Minneapolis, in the ninth round of a scheduled ten round bout here tonight. Renault weighed 195 pounds and Fulton 210.

Fulton appeared sluggish, and Renault did most of the leading throughout. In the second the Minneapolis plasterer was sent down for a short count, but he recovered and in the next two rounds gave the Canadian something to think about with short left jabs. In the ninth Renault drove Fulton against the ropes with a terrific left to the heart. A right to the jaw ended the contest.

Jack Schoendorf, of Milwaukee, won the decision over Alex Trambitas, of, California, in the ten round semi-final.

WOMEN GOLFERS CARRY HORSE SHOES FOR LUCK

Ry, N. Y., Oct. 1.—(By the A. P.)—In a gale that made play doubly difficult and caused many of the players to carry all sorts o fetishes, from four leaf clovers to race horse shoes in their golf bags the qualifying round for the Women's National Championship over the Westchester-Biltmore Country Club course today developed an unexpected contest for the 32 places of honor.

Miss Alexa Stirling, of New York, a native Georgian and a three time title winner, was the medalist with and 84 and the other thirty one qualifiers need scores of 95 or better. Numerous professionals had predicted at the start of the round that cards of 100 wouldn't get in. Miss Collett of Providence the youthful defending champion, was among the low medalists with an 89.

Among the stars who failed to qualify were the Curtis sisters, Margaret and Harriet, of Boston, title holders in other days, Mrs. David Gaut, of Memphis, the Southern champion, and Miss Clare Krauter of Youngstown, one of the leading Ohioans.

Miss Collett as usual was excellent off the tee and on the green but her irons were poor. Her chip shots, especially, were weak.

Miss Edith Cummings attributed her 89 to the dainty race horse shoe carried in her golf bag. At the outset of the round Joe Horgan, the old caddie with the sun-wrinkled face, turned Miss Cummings golf bag on end to get a ball and out came the horse shoe. Horgan suggested that a clover leaf or perhaps a rabbit foot would ease the load but Miss Cummings persisted in the horse shoe and qualified with an 89.

Miss Krauter, the Youngstown, Ohio, girl, carried a rabbit foot and when she failed to get in tossed it into a duck pond.

FOUR BOYS TO ATTEND DAIRY EXPOSITION

Four New London County Dairy club boys, namely, Austin D. Lathrop of Montville, George E. Woods of Waterford, Everett Wade of Sprague and John Kahn of Franklin, are to attend the National Dairy Exposition at Syracuse, N. Y. Austin Lathrop is to go as alternate on the state boys' judging team representing Connecticut against all other states in the Union. This competition is to be held on Saturday, October 6th. The three remaining boys are to represent the county judging team. These boys were the high standing boys at the New London county fair and also high standing in the county delegation at the Connecticut State Fair at Hartford against six other counties competing.

In attending this exposition these boys are to see the cream of the best dairy herds in this country as well as other exhibits showing the value of good dairy stock to the community. All of these boys are the kind that some day will own farms with good cattle on them, for already each boy has one or more dairy cows in his own name.

These boys have been doing dairy club work two years now under the supervision of the Farm Bureau, keeping milk records and feed records on their own and their father's herds and appreciate the value of record keeping on the dairy farm.

It is through the generosity of the New London County Agricultural Society and the Norwich Chamber of Commerce that the boys are aided in being able to make this trip to the dairy exposition which is so seldom as far east as Syracuse.

POETRY

THE CITY OF DESIRE.

From out some hidden Faraway,
They ride, a vision band,
Oh dear dead dreams, of thoughts untold
That none can understand.
And all who hear them pass must rise
And follow them with straining eyes,
To seek where that city lies,
The City of Desire!

So on! And on! And ever on!
O'er road and rock and hill,
Afar the vision riders flash,
And we must follow still.
Speed on! Speed on! Though few shall find,
Yet none must ever tire
When these pale riders lead the way,
The way to Heart's Desire!

On! On! While siren voices call
They toil a tireless throng,
The miser with his bag of gold,
The poet with his song.
The warrior on his mighty way,
The youth and maid, the grave and gay,
All seeking ever, day by day,
The City of Desire!

So on! And on! And ever on!
Through all the tale of years,
So long as there are dreams to dream,
So long as life hath tears.
Press on! Press on! Though few shall find,
Yet none must ever tire
When those pale riders lead the way,
The way to Heart's Desire!
—Gnuby Hadath, in Answers, London.

IN A BOOKSHOP.

A shabby woman, with slow, weary gait
Searches through piles of marked-down volumes where Amid old favorites she finds "Jane Eyre"—
An old man passing by, with out of date
And threadbare garments, turns surprised. "Why, Kate!
It's years. . . ." And she: "Do you remember, Tim,
When we read this together?" Eyes grew dim,
They bent above the tale of storms-tossed fate.

And time and trouble swiftly fade away,
Until beneath the apple tree once more,
O'er Rochester, St. John and Jane they pore.
Then waken with a start to each grim self—
Old Tim, old Kate, beside a bookshop shelf.
—Charlotte Becker, in New York Herald.

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office

Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton, whose name appeared on both tickets in Monday's election, attracted the eye of several voters while making his rounds of the voting districts when he appeared with a new gold badge on the upper left side of his vest. The badge informs all concerned that Captain Fenton is now a special agent for the Connecticut Humane society. Agent Fenton undertook his first case Sunday, as related in Monday's Bulletin, when he took charge of a cow which had become mired in the Shetucket river. The animal has been placed in the care of Clement H. Kegler and after it recovers from its exhaustion it will be taken to the home of County Investigator William E. Jackson, to await a claim by the owner, whose identity is still unknown. It was thought for a time Sunday that the animal would have to be shot.

Monday morning Aldermen W. E. Jackson and G. W. Hickey of the police committee notified Chief of Police Allan MacArthur and his men to render all assistance in their power to Agent Fenton.

Herman Prag informed Deputy Judge Curtin Dean Monday mornig that he wished to withdraw the charges he had preferred against his son, Fred Prag, alleging embezzlement. Fred Prag was recently made manager of a branch store on Railroad street by the firm of Prag Brothers, who conduct the Modern Shoe Store at 786 Main street, and of which firm Herman Prag is a member. The young man was said to have defrauded the firm of $115 and was arrested Saturday and held at the local police station under bonds of $500, which were not furnished.

Mr. Prag said his son was sorry for what had happened and that he believed things would straighten out for the future. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Frank P. Fenton asked the court to nolle the pase on payment of costs, and Judge Dean agreed to this. The costs amounted to $7.15.

Charles Currier was charged with intoxication at the session of police court Monday morning and pleaded guilty. A fine of $5 and costs was imposed.

The arrest of the Willimantic man known as Eddie John at Danielson for operating a motor vehicle Saturday while under the influence of liquor has made things rather unpleasant here for another Willimantic man of the same name, Eddy E. John, who conducts the grocery store at 41 Milk street. The man under arrest is Eddie Michael John, a brother-in-law of the former, and is 27 years of age. Eddie Michael John has figured in a number of escapades in the past three years and has been arrested for reckless driving in this city, Norwich, Brooklyn and Massachusetts. Last month he was before the Brooklyn town court, charged with reckless driving, was found guilty and fined $100 and costs and his license suspended. The car John was driving Saturday when arrested in Danielson is the property of his father, Michael John, of this city.

H. C. Belec, who also sang the nuptial high mass. Garde Sacred Heart, of which the groom is a member, was in attendance in uniform. The bride wore a white georgette gown trimmed with Spanish lace; she wore a veil caught with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of white Killarney roses and sweet peas. The maid of honor's dainty frock was of old rose georgette. She wore a black picture hat and carried pink Columbia roses.

The ceremony was followed by a breakfast at the home of the groom on Milk street. Relatives and friends came from Worcester, Chicopee Falls, Holyoke, Boston, Mass., St. Albans, Vt., Wellsville, O., and Willimantic. After two weeks honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. Perreault will reside with the groom's parents. The groom is employed in the printing department of the American Thread compnay. Mrs. Perreault is secretary to Dr. I. Zipfel.

Mrs. Minnie Flynn, who went as a delegate to the national convention at Chattanooga, gave a most interesting report of her trip. The auxiliary is soon to hold a rummage sale, and the following committee was named to have charge: Mrs. Flynn, chairman; Mrs. Donahue, Mrs. Lynch, Mrs. Beauchamp, Mrs. Warren and Mrs. Joyce. The Willimantic election of town officers for the town of Windham was held Monday with ideal election weather. The polls were opened at 6 a. m. and closed at 5 p. m., after over 3,000 of the 5,500 voters in the town had cast their ballots. For the first time in the history of Windham the town elections were carried out by the casting of ballots in four voting districts.

During the morning hours the voting was sluggish and the members of both parties agreed in the opinion that not over three-quarters of the total number of voters would cast their ballots.

The First District voting place was in the corridor of the High street entrance to the town building. The officials were: Moderator, William F. Lennon; official checker, Frank Monro; ballot clerks, James O. Bacon, and William Piche; booth tenders, George W. Wheeler and Charles E. Flagg; challengers, George E. Gifford and Dennis F. Shea; ballot box tender, George L. Rosebrooks, Jr., Leondias Demers was the first man to cast a vote here and Mrs. Patrick McSweeney the first woman.

The officials at the Second District voting place in the old town building were: Moderator, Lewyre G. Gery; official checker, Frank M. Lincoln; ballot box tender, Anthony Hevrin; challengers, Eugene J. Randall and William McIntosh; ballot clerks, Charles H. Baker and Louis Paulhus; booth tenders, William Rowan and Fred M. Pratt.

The Third District voting place was in the portable booth on Jackson place. The officials there were: Moderator, James F. Twomey; official checker, Kingsley Brown; ballot box tender, W. H. Platt; challengers, Vincent Sweeney and G. Leroy Howlett; ballot clerks, Arthur Ryan and Delphus Brousseau; booth tenders, Thomas Tennant and Andrew Connel. The first woman to vote here was Miss Cecelia Israel, and the first man was J. Raymond Smith. In the Second District Frank St. John and Mrs. Molly Phillips were the first man and woman to cast the first votes.

The Fourth District voting place was also in a portable booth, at the entrance to Elks' Park on Pleasant street. John B. Edgarton was moderator; William O'Brien official checker; Arthur Rainey, ballot box tender; J. Schley Donohue and Arthur E. Taylor, challengers; M. E. Ladd and Leo Routhier ballot clerks, and John D. Southgton and Ralph Snow, booth tenders.

Only 1,660 ballots had been cast up to noon, an average of 270 an hour for six hours. The noon hour accounted for a substantial increase in the number of votes cast and up to three o'clock about one-half of the total of 5,500 voters on the list had voted. A number of the resident of Windham CCenter arrived at the Second District polls believing that the old order of voting was being carried out. They were told to vote either in the Third or Fourth Disthrict polls.

The heaviest voting was in the Second District, with the Third District next.

Following is the result:

The democrats won a sweeping victory at the annual election of the town of Windham Monday. The voting was carried out in four districts and the Third district was swamped with democratic votes which put most of the democratic candidates on safe ground. The Second district also showed a democratic tendency which was offset by republican votes cast in the First and Fourth districts. Of the total 1464 of the votes were democratic and 1325 republican, placing the democratic vote 129 in the lead. Over one-third or about 3700 of the 5500 voters in the town had cast their ballots at the time the polls closed at 5 p. m. The final returns were made known and the candidates officially declared elected shortly before midnight. The result of the balloting was as follows:

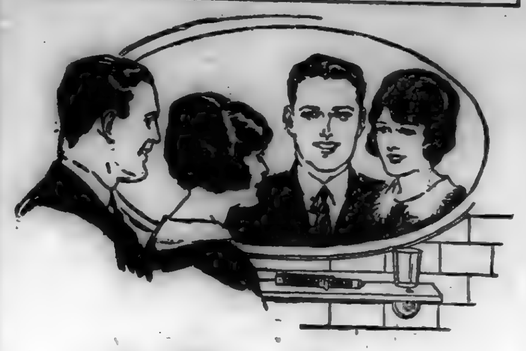
We Offer a Test Tube Free



In Ten Days

The results will amaze you, if you fight the film on teeth

Millions of people have found new beauty, new protection, new delights, through this test we offer you.

It is time you knew these benefits if you don't know them now. They are results you need and want. Let this test prove them to you.

Film and offense

Film on teeth is unclean. It mars beauty. At first that film is viscous. You can feel it now. With ordinary brushing, much of it clings and stays. Soon it discolors and forms dingy coats.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Few people escape these film-caused troubles unless they fight that film.

Dental science, after long research, has found two film combatants. One disintegrates the film, the other removes it without harmful scouring.

Many careful tests proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent. In seven years it has brought to homes the world over a new dental era.

Also fruit effects

Pepsodent also incorporates other principles, learned from the value of certain fruits in the diet. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, also its starch digestant. Those are Nature's agents for combating acid and starch deposits. Pepsodent twice daily gives them manifold effect, just as eating fruit would do. The peoples who constantly eat fruit are markedly immune to tooth decay.

Watch the changes

Quick changes come when Pepsodent is used. They will surprise and delight you.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

Then you will realize how much this new method means to you and yours. Cut out coupon now.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Peaches are now in lighter receipts on the markets, due to the fact that the supplies are about used up.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Relieved of Nervousness and Other Distressing Ailments by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brooklyn, N. Y. — "I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound four years ago, and am taking it now for the Change of Life and other troubles and I receive great benefit from it. I am willing to let you use my letter as a testimonial because it is the truth. I found your booklet in my letter box and read it carefully, and that is how I came to take the Vegetable Compound myself. It has given me quiet nerves so that I sleep all night, and a better appetite. I have recommended it already to all my friends and relatives." — Mrs. ENGLEMANN, 2032 Palmetto St., Ridgewood, Brooklyn, N. Y.

For the woman suffering from nervous troubles causing sleeplessness, headache, hysteria, "the blues," Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will be found a splendid medicine. For the woman of middle age who is passing through the trials of that period, it can be depended upon to relieve the troubles common at that time.

You should give it a fair trial now.

The right kind of girl doesn't find it necessary to give the right kind of young man any encouragement.

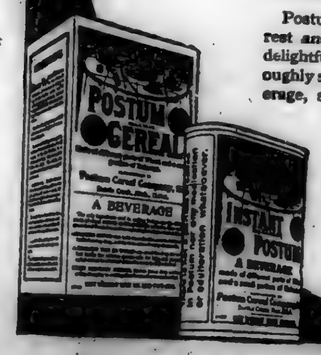
"For those who wish to lead the hygienic life, coffee and tea are not recommended, except for purely medicinal purposes. . . The only hygienic excuse for such drugs is in emergencies when some reason be employed, but always the cost must be counted and the danger considered of forming a habit of denying the brain, nervous system or muscles the rest which is their due."
—From a "Keep Well" Leaflet on "Over-stimulation," Issued by the Life Extension Institute.

Why not avoid "counting the cost?"

REST is better than a whipping, for tired nerves and muscles—better for today and infinitely better for tomorrow when the penalties of over-driving are likely to come due in headaches, nervousness, and increased difficulty of resting.

Postum is a good friend of rest and health. Postum is a delightful, comforting and thoroughly satisfying mealtime beverage, splendid in flavor and aroma—but containing no drug which can excite nerves or disturb digestion.

If you are whipping up nerves with coffee or tea, try a change to Postum. It will supply all the comfort and pleasure of a hot mealtime drink, and it will let you get the natural sleep and rest that puts strength and zest into tired mind, nerves and muscles. You'll be counting profits instead of costs.



Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either form is about one-half cent a cup.

"There's a Reason" for Postum

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Welcome to Jack.

One day as Little Jack Rabbit hopped along, he met two white rabbits playing hide-and-seek under the bushes. So Little Jack Rabbit stopped and said:

"Hello, little white rabbits!"

The two little rabbits were dreadfully frightened, never before having seen a bunny dressed in boots and hat.

So off they all hopped.

"Don't be afraid of me," said Little Jack Rabbit, gently, "I won't harm you."

This so pleased the two little rabbits that they promised to take him to the king. So off they all hopped and by and by, came to a great castle. It was a very beautiful castle, let me tell you, with high turrets and a silver moat over which hung a great drawbridge.

Taking a gold whistle from his pocket, one of the little rabbits blew upon it while the other little rabbit waved a blue and white flag and the next minute, the drawbridge opened for them to cross over.

"Our master, the King, is a very kind man," whispered the little rabbit with the gold whistle, "but you mustn't forget to bow every time he talks to you."

And the little rabbit who carried the flag whispered: "Our master, the King is a very kind man, but you mustn't forget to whistle once in a while."

"I'll remember," promised Little Jack Rabbit just as the castle gates were opened by a large white bunny with a very pink nose.

"He's the King," whispered both little rabbits under their breath.

"Pray tell me who is your comrade in boots?" asked the great white bunny with a low bow.

"Little Jack Rabbit," they answered.

When the great big immense white bunny heard that he bowed still lower and said "Welcome!" Then he led them through the courtyard and up the marble steps to the beautiful castle. The next minute Little Jack Rabbit found himself standing before the rabbit king's throne. Oh, me and oh my! It was a beautiful throne carved from pink coral to match the pink nose of the white rabbit king.

"Welcome!" he said again, making room for Little Jack Rabbit on the beautiful throne and you can well imagine Little Jack Rabbit was greatly pleased, for I guess this was the first time he had ever sat upon a throne.

"Tell me something of your country," said the rabbit king.

So Little Jack Rabbit told him all about Lady Love, his pretty little bunny mother and Uncle Lucky, his kind bunny uncle, Granddaddy Bullfrog and all his friends in Rabbitville, and next time I'll tell you what happened after that.

Constitutional amendment—Yes 321, No. 38.

One of the largest annual town meetings held in Killingly in years did business in the town hall for about two hours, Monday afternoon, and recorded itself very emphatically on the two particular clauses in the warning that were chiefly instrumental in attracting an attendance that was in excess of 300.

The meeting said by a vote of 211 to 74 that the tax collector's compensation shall hereafter be one-half of one per cent. of the amount he collects, and on the matter of again leasing the town hall for another year and without any restrictions as to what form of entertainment of sport event shall be held there, voted down a resolution 208 to 158, that would have barred all theatrical enterprises and professional sports and allowed only high school basketball games.

The attendance appeared to be almost equally divided between men and women voters and in view of that fact it surprised many that such a strong sentiment in favor of again leasing the town hall was shown in the vote. Analysis of the situation, or, to be more frank, outspoken sentiment, showed that many of the women present went on record as favoring again leasing the hall and allowing sports of a professional nature there. The outcome of the vote on this particular clause saved the calling of a special town meeting, for an evening hour, when many who work and could not sacrifice an afternoon to go on record in favor of leasing the hall would have been on hand to rescind opposite action to that taken Monday. As the matter stands, it appears settled at least for another year.

Thomas Bradford introduced the resolution providing for the reduction of the compensation of the tax collector. Attorney E. L. Darbie spoke of tabling the resolution until the financial meeting—the adjourned annual town meeting—is held in March, explaining that as the vote just cast, and then being counted for tax collector, was for three candidates, one of whom was serving in the office at the present rate of compensation, one of whom is willing to take it for half the present pay and one who had not declared himself as to the compensation feature. Mr. Darbie contended that in view of these facts it might be well to wait and see who the victor was and then fix his salary accordingly. Mr. Bradford was insistent that the matter be brought to an immediate vote, and as the meeting was with him on that point a ballot was ordered with the result herein mentioned.

In opposing the leasing of the town hall for another year, Miss Emma F. Pilling introduced a carefully worded resolution that, if passed, would limit the leasing of the hall for the next year to a period not exceeding one week at a time and would have barred professional sports, though exempting high school basketball. Her reasons were set forth at length and she was greeted with applause as she closed.

Attorney Darbie opposed the resolution and set forth in extended manner his reasons for so doing. His talk included mention of the financial considerations, as well as of the desire of the public at large to enjoy professional athletics in the town hall if it suited the public fancy. The doom of the resolution was forecasted by the roar of applause and approval that greeted the close of Attorney Darbie's speech. The vote was by ballot and while decisive was not nearly so much so, it was said by those interested in defeating it as would have bene the case were scores of voters who were at work able to be present.

The meeting spun along at high speed in considering the routine matters on the list up for consideration. It accepted the official reports as printed, made the usual appropriations and finally adjourned until the third Wednesday in March, when appropriation matters will be taken up and the tax rate fixed for another year. Judge Milton A. Shumway was moderator of the meeting.

The funeral of Harold E. Clements, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver A. Clements, was held from their home on Franklin street with services at St. James' church at 8 o'clock, Rev. Fr. Richards, M. S., being celebrant of the mass, attended by many relatives and friends, including some from New York, Hartford and Providence. Burial was in St. James' cemetery. The bearers were Roland Dupre, Theodore White, Robert Nash, Clifford Withey, Antonio Caron and Roland Meunier. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Topping all exhibitions of reckless driving observed in this territory this season were the grave violations of the law that may be charged against many of the scores of motorcyclists going to or returning from the motorcycle hill-climbing contests at Willimantic Sunday. Speeds up to 30 miles an hour were being maintained by wild drivers of these machines and other traffic moving over the road was endangered all along the route between Danielson and Willimantic and Danielson and the route to Providence. Most of the speed demons that fairly appalled other drivers were from out of the state and seemed to be reveling in delight as they terrorized motorists along their route. Not all of the motorcyclists were guilty of such highly reckless speeding, but many of them were though none happened to be apprehended—but that was their good luck and not a favor to them.

The fact that there were only 398 straight republican tickets and only 350 straight democratic tickets and 87 straight citizens' tickets, indicates how Killingly's voters cut and slashed, at Monday's election, in seeking the results they individually wished to obtain. It has been said in the past that the average voter rather votes straight and be certain of having his ballot count than take a chance of losing it by splitting, but that day appears to have gone and the day of the expert in dissecting tickets to have arrived. The ballots counted on Monday were split in about every conceivable way and the counters' job was not one of a nature to soothe one's nerves.

Annual town reports made available in printed form, Monday, for the voters shows a reduction in the town's indebtedness during the past year of $11,652.22, which keeps up the good record made during the last past two years, the reduction during the past three years amounting upwards of $14,000.

There is no change in the closing time of the post office from what it has been all summer—6:30 p. m.—because of the change in the time of arrival of mail trains, so effective Sunday. Postmaster E. H. Keach explained Monday that no mail is received here during office hours after 4:30 p. m., and the outgoing mail of practically the business houses, manufacturing concerns and various industries is in the office prior to 6.30. As the last south-bound mail train is not due to arrive here now until that before 8 p. m., no advantage to the public is to be gained by keeping the office open an additional hour each week day evening. The office force is on duty at 6 a. m. and by evening have put in a longer day than is labored by the average worker.

The annual report of Town Clerk Frank T. Preston has seldom carried such a line in all the years that he has so competently filled the office as appears this year near the foot of the tabulation—"Cash on deposit—$35,306.69". Also of special interest is the fact that the town court emerges from the past fiscal year as a money-making institution of the town, chiefly because of money paid in by violators of the liquor laws. Over and above the costs of running the court this year there is a balance of $85.68 on hand. Costs and fines received during the year amounted to $2,414.02. The expenses of the court amounted to $2,328.34.

At St. James' church a collection is to be taken for the relief of the Catholic missions and missionaries in the Japanese earthquake area. Some of the missionaries lost their lives in the catastrophe and there was much damage to the homes and equipment of those whom the missions serve.

October introduced itself Monday as rather a frigid proposition and there was something of a display of top coats and furs during the afternoon and evening hours.

This week brings the last dance of the season at Wildwood park, for after Saturday's event the resort is to be closed until spring. The Thursday night dances have been discontinued on account of the lateness of the season.

Not that the local public is so much enamoured of boxing as because they dislike such a constant effort at regulation and standardization did the vote on the proposal of restricting the use of the town hall meet with a rebuff at Monday's town meeting. This statement is based on interviews with numbers of people in various walks of life, many of them never having been present at a boxing exhibition and some of them only rare attendants at basketball games.

PUTNAM

The republicans won all along the line in Monday's town election, the only real interest centering in the contest for the office of tax collector, the republicans winning here as at all other points on the ticket.

Carver r, 838; August Martin, r, 835; Origene Touchette d, 519; Alphonse D. Beausoliel, d, 559; Armand Trahan, d, 481; N. B. Bizallion d, 551; registrar of voters Hermon G. Carver, r, 896; George Potvin d, 599; school committee, Joseph A. P. Gagne, r, 838; Silas M. Wheelock, r, 829; James J. Charron, d, 570; Eugene Berthiaume, d, 557.

The first jail sentence imposed upon an offender against the liquor laws in a case heard in the Putnam city court was meted out to George Annas, Monday morning when Judge M. H. Geissler ordered the accused to pay a fine of $200 and be confined for 10 days in Brooklyn jail, after Annas had been found guilty of keeping with intent to sell.

Of special interest was the statement of Judge Geissler in passing upon the case that the resolutions adopted last Friday afternoon by a conference of county law enforcement with Chief Justice George W. Wheeler in the superior court rooms in favor of jail sentences for first offenders against the liquor laws had no bearing whatever on his decision to sentence Annas to jail. Judge Geissler is said to have steadfastly opposed at last Friday afternoon's conference with Judge Wheeler the indiscriminate imposing of jail sentences for first offenders, contending that a judge should be allowed to exercise his discretion, as provided by law, and pass upon each case on its merits. In the Annas case, however, Judge Geissler had taken judicial notice of the fact that only a little more than two weeks ago Annas' associate in business in a store in Front street had pleaded guilty in the superior court at Willimantic to a charge that he had sold liquor at the store and was fined and sentenced to 15 days in jail, this period of incarceration coming to an end Monday, a few hours after Annas was presented in court.

Judge Geissler considered the evidence produced in court Monday as to the continued sale of liquor at the Front street place as approximating a second offense, and with a view to stamping out the illegal liquor traffic, a program with which he is heartily in accord as an ardent supporter of the law and a firm believer in prohibition, he ordered Annas to be confined in jail.

Attorney Arthur S. Macdonald, representing Annas, appealed to the superior court and Annas furnished the necessary bonds for his release.

The appearance of Annas in court Monday morning, followed a raid made Saturday evening on his Front street place of business, which has been under close observation by members of the Putnam police for a number of weeks. A ruse was employed to trap Annas. Officer John Ryan, after observing a stream of citizens entering the place and buying drinks at a soda fountain in the front of the store, sought out Sergeant Laird and after a conference they put through a telephone call that attracted Annas away from the soda fountain to the telephone booth. While he was engaged with the call Officer Ryan entered and seized a soda bottle containing what was alleged in court to be an intoxicating liquid and a whiskey glass, he seized articles being found near the glass washing tank at the soda fountain. A demonstration of the potent power of the seized liquid was given in court Monday when some of it was poured on a board and a match touched to it, the stuff burning like some of the best grades of gasoline while the odor of alcohol permeated the air.

Annas' defense was that the liquid found might have been in the store for some time, even prior to the recent conviction of his associate. He pleaded not guilty in court to a charge of keeping with intent to sell, but was found guilty on the evdience offered.

With the coming of the first of October Monday there was a return to uniformity as to plans of reckoning time, daylight saving having gone into the discard again after being in use since spring. Putnam did not diverge from standard time this year, but the railroads set their trains ahead an hour and much nearby territory in Rhode Island and Massachusetts went onto fast time, a fact that was more or less confusing and inconvenient for many Putnam people doing business across the state border. All the confusion of having one kind of time here and another kind in nearby territory was removed by the return of all to standard time and it is not likely that much more will be heard on the subject until next spring.

Putnam men who have been confined at Brooklyn jail the past 15 days were released Monday afternono and returned to their homes here. The men have not had an unpleasant time while away, although the confinement was irksome. Out of their own funds they had purchased food to their liking and while kept closely confined found much in each other's companionship to ease the tediousness of being at Brooklyn. Their friends greeted them warmly on their return here and in many instances explained that they would have called upon them had it not been for the fact that visiting was greatly restricted after the first rush of friends to see them during the first days of their confinement.

Actual construction work on the new building for the Putnam Savings bank began Monday morning when concrete workers were on the job, making ready to put in foundations for the building. Excavating for the cellar is practically completed. Rapid progress on the foundation is anticipated during October and it is hoped to have the building closed in or nearly so before real cold weather sets in.

Though there is a large docket awaiting attention, there will be no sessions of the superior court in this city this week until Friday, when another short calendar session will be held. Next week and the following week are likley to prove busy ones in the court, as a number of cases already have been assigned for trial.

The annual town meeting Monday did not stir up any great amount of enthusiasm, although party workers were busy every minute the polls were open bringing in electors from all parts of the town. Aside from the contest for the tax collectorship there was little real live interest in the election, details relative to which will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Norwich Free Academy football team will be here Friday afternoon on its annual visit to meet the team of Putnam High school. During October the team will play its games on Friday. Next week the game will be with Bartlett High school team, at Webster, and on the following Friday, the 19th, there is an open date. For Friday the 26th the Bartlett High team will be the attraction in a return game and on November 3 the Putnam team will journey to Danielson for a game with Killingly High school. November 7 Putnam will be at Pomfret for a game with the second team of Pomfret school. Friday, Nov. 16, Plainfield High will play in Putnam and on November 28 Putnam will play Windham High at Willimantic. The closing game of the schedule will be played here Thanksgiving day, between Killingly High and Putnam.

Next Monday brings the opening of the hunting season, an approaching date that the sportsmen have not overlooked. There is promise of good bird shooting this fall, though the past winter was so severe that it was believed many game birds would perish. There appear to be a plentiful supply of partridge and pheasant, however, and some good bags are looked for during the first week of the open season, although experienced hunters say the number of leaves likely to be remaining on the trees will interfere to a considerable extent with good shooting.

Principal L. F. Battey will be in charge and will have the same assistants as last year, when the evening schools open here on Monday evening of next week.

Mrs. Louis E. Law will have the members of the Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church at her home for a meeting tomorrow (Wednesday) afternoon.

The change in the running time of mail trains has brought about similar changes in the time of closing the mails at the Putnam postoffice.

Over the week end the number of patients at the Day Kimball hospital was increased as the result of motor vehicle accidents that occurred at different points in the county.

There will be delegations from Putnam and all the surrounding towns to the annual convention to the Windhace County Sunday School associatio to be held in Danielson, at the Congregational church Thursday of this week. Miss Alice Cunningham of this city is secretary of the association.

WESTERLY

The October session of Westerly town council was held in the council chambers Monday morning. There were present Council President Campbell, Councilmen Morrison, Rossi, Nichols and Smith and Council Clerk Whipple.

John M. Browning, a farmer, appeared before the council to complain about the dangerous piece of road from the Dr. William C. Thompson place, on the Potter Hill road over to the Hopkinton meeting house bridge, across Pawcatuck river. Mr. Browning declared that he had been to Mr. Butler and Mr. Berry of the Westerly highway commission several times and asked that the brush which had overgrown the highway to such an extent that collisions were almost unavoidable be cut and declares that they "had never cut a huckleberry bush." Stating that as he had given thousands of dollars' worth of road at Watch Hill to the town and had increased property valuation, he ought to have influence enough to have a few days' work done by the town to the road over which his son had to drive daily. Explaining that the council had no jurisdiction over the roads and referring Mr. Browning's application to the highway commissioner, President Campbell said: "Get after him again! Tell him again; tell him conditions."

Oliver P. Crandall, overseer of the poor, said in reference to the Mothers Aid act of the last Rhode Island legislature, Mrs. Powers of Providence had written him that 22 families and with the addition of a recent applicant, 23 families representing 81 children, were eligible to receive state aid to help mothers with children to keep them in school until able to care for themselves. The amount of aid to be received was at the rate of $2 a week for a child and $2.50 for the mother of a child over 14. One-half of the amount actually expended by a town for mothers' aid is to be refunded by the state, and the overseer said he was not sure that the refund could be used again for the same purpose. It was the opinion of the council that the state refund should be returned to the general fund for mothers' aid purposes.

Mr. Crandall thought that some woman should be named as the mothers' aid official as there was necessity of going into the various homes to see that the children attended school. Mr. Powers stated in a letter that the $1,000 appropriation of the council would not be a sufficiently large to begin with, as estimates showed that $8,000 a month would be the present amount and would have to be increased. The matter was left for Mrs. Powers to make up an October budget and have the amount included in the appropriation.

Comment was made on the amount of dog bills. The dog matters were voted referred to the chief of police. It was reported that the town hall bills which had run behind could be paid in a short time. Comfort station bills at Watch Hill were referred to Councilman Nichols. Council Clerk Whipple stated he had received a bill for advertising the special financial town meeting to consider highway matters which he had not authorized, so was opposed to its payment. Its payment was not directed by the council.

The following bills were voted paid: Autos, $11.75; traffic, $6.25; traffic officers, $66.81; special officers, $47; telephone and telegraph, $37.37; miscellaneous, $179.13 J. M. Pendleton, treasurer, to pay water works bills $1,298.72; sewer bills, $6,744.76; poor department bills, $453.52; hospital bills, $11.45. Other bills included: Westerly Light and Power Company, street lighting, $1,281.18; Charles O. Gavitt, fowl killed by dogs, $12.50; E. E. Carpenter, fowl killed by dogs, $23.

Frank Icalone was granted a victualling license.

The report of the health officer, Dr. S. C. Webster, showing seven cases of measles, was considered. Councilman Rossi said that apparently the health officer was lax in the perfromance of some of his duties, making reference to open privy vaults along Pleasant street brook. Councilman Rossi feared an epidemic and said the town will then have costly bills to foot. It was voted that the health officer be directed to look into the conditions of the privy vaults and outhouses along Pleasant street brook, and to investigate and report. As the sewers were already laid in this section, connections could now be made with them, said Councilman Rossi.

A letter was received from the Westerly Highway commission, in answer to a letter from the Westerly town council, asking that the commission be furnished specifications with specific details for the catch basins which were recommended for Pleasant street at the foot of Gravel hill, so called, which was to care for refuse brought down by surface water, as directed by the town council at a previous council session. The letter asked that a committee be named from the Westerly town council to confer with the Westerly highway commission relative to the location for the catch basins. The council voted that Councilman Rossi constitute the committee.

The report of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown for September showed a total of 18 arrests, as follows: Intoxication 3, exceeding speed limit 5, passing standing trolleys 5, operating a motor vehicle without license 1, assault with dangerous weapon 1, taking auto car without owner's consent 1, reckless driving 1 and violation of the state prohibition laws 1.

It was voted to receive a deed from the Washington Trust Co. for property at the end of Margin street and it was thought to be a good thing to have a plat of the same filed.

Frank H. Crandall, 42 Franklin street, addressed a letter to the town council, complaining of the erection of billboards along Franklin street and the Post roads, which the writer termed a disgrace, even if they were erected on private property. The writer stated that he thought such signs would not be tolerated along Elm street or Grove avenue.

From A. B. Wall, commander Rhode Island department, American Legion, were received two communications; one asked that the Westerly town council express itself favorably on the observance of Armistice day, as a holiday, Monday, Nov. 12, as the eleventh comes on Sunday this year. Such recommendation was expressed by the council. Expression of thanks was the contents of the second communication for use of the town hall for state convention.

The Italian Athletic club's petition for Sunday football was directed advertised and the hearing will be a week from Wednesday, at noon. The council adjourned.

Following the adjournment of Westerly town council, the councilmen who were members of the city planning committee met with the other members of the committee in the office of the Westerly highway commission. The appropriation of $2500 is available for the work of this city planning committee.

Westerly sufferers from automobile accidents over the week-end were reported in no more serious condition Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Irving Makowsky, instead of returning to their home in Attleboro, Mass., following the crash of their Ford sedan at Wilcox curve, between Mystic and Stonington, Sunday night, remained at Mrs. Makowsky's (Ida Leibovitz) former home in Westerly, suffering from shock, cuts and bruises. Other members of the party of five suffered more or less painful injuries. Following the crash George Collett of Providence was brought before Judge William A. Wilcox in Westerly and later was released on $500 bond furnished by Henry A. Stahle, to face a probable reckless driving charge in a few days. Attorney Herbert A. Rathbun placed an attachment Monday morning on the Daniels car driven by Mr. Collett. The condition of Thomas Sculco, Vincent Cherideo and Edward Liotto, Westerly men injured by the overturning of their Ruggles auto truck, near Tower Hill, Sunday morning, and who were taken to the Rhode Island hospital, Providence, was reported as no worse.

The town meeting for Stonington with election of officers for the Second or Pawcatuck district, was held at the Liberty street courthouse with the following officials: Moderator, Byron J. Peckham; registrars, Joseph H. McGuinness, d; George C. Lord, r; ticket booth tenders, Frank Brucker, r, Thomas Whalen, d; booth tenders, Albert Fish, Thomas Thorp, William Lanphear, John Rain, r; J. Cunningham, John Donahue, John Sullivan, John Lynch, d; checkers for women, William Lord, r; Walter Duggan, d; for men, Stephen Pickover, r, Walter Fitzgerald, d. Republican counters, George A. Stillman, George Elmer Leonard, N. Henry Lanphear. Democratic counters, John Gallagher, Michael Neville, James A. Donahue. The first ballot was deposited by A. F. Lawton. The polls were open from 6 a. m. to 5 p. m. In the first hour 176 ballots were cast.

RECOVERS FROM CROUP

"My boy had a very bad attack of croup. Tried everything but nothing did him much good. Then I used Foley's Honey and Tar, and he not only recovered quickly but he has had no trouble since," writes Mrs. William Sims, Burlington, Wyoming. Coughs, colds and croup quickly relieved with Foley's Honey and Tar, the largest selling cough medicine in the world. Free from opiates—ingredients printed on the wrapper. Lee & Osgood Co.

Thomas F. Robertson, a patient at Lawrence Hospital, does not improve. Mr. Robertson's brother, John Robertson of Yonkers, N. Y., visited the patient yesterday.

Mrs. Alfred Mitchell has closed her summer residence at the Pequot and has returned to her winter home in New Haven.

Mrs. J. E. Collins has started for her home in Los Angeles, Cal., concluding a visit with Mrs. Charles S. Starr.

James H. and Constance M. Meadus have sold a house and lot on School street to Sarah R. Johnson.

The Thames Improvement company has sold a building lot on Oneco avenue and Saltonstall street to Mildred J. Reed.

Frank Orchard has sold to the Chapman Technical High School a parcel of land on Waller street adjoining the school.

The Thames Improvement company has sold a building lot, corner of Uncas avenue and Saltonstall street to Maude R. Saxton.

Walter A. Goodwin, 52, died suddenly of heart disease, this afternoon, at his home, 35 School street. Mr. Goodwin was seated at the dinner table and without any warning whatever, suffered the attack, expiring before medical aid could be summoned. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Frances Benham Goodwin, three daughters, Mrs. Charles F. Potter, Mrs. Willard D. Harris and Mrs. John Randall Smith, and a sister, Miss Julia Goodwin, all of New London. Mr. Goodwin was a harness maker and for many years conducted business in a building on State street, now the site of the Crown theatre. He retired from active life about fifteen years ago.

Russell C. Davis, an employe at the Ship and Engine company plant at Groton, got John Gentilella into a mess Saturday evening when he went to call on John in relation to using his efforts to secure employment for a fellow in whom John was interested. Police Sergeant Hick and Officer Philopena followed Russell for some reason and when he went to the Gentilella house, where he remained some fifteen minutes the officers nabbed him as he came out and headed for his home on Pequot avenue. Russell was easy for the officers. They accused him of having liquor and then Philopena rubbed against Davis so that it was certain the latter had a bottle of booze in his pocket. Davis declared that he bought the booze in Mystic and his first assertion was the truth, though he later told the officers that he secured the liquor he had, a pint of gin, at the Gentilella house, he, in reality bought it in Mystic, where he had spent the afternoon and most of the night. He also told the officers that he was not a squealer, but his yarn was a rambling story and it took him to the trolley car that runs to Mystic, on which he declared that he paid his fare but he couldn't remember what the sum he paid was, etc. He denied today that he bought the liquor from Gentilella, and Gentilella denied that he sold him any gin or other intoxicant. But there were empty alcohol cans in the Gentilella house, as the officers discovered when they later went there with a search warrant, and they testified that the house was reputed by neighors to be a place where a drink could be had. Gentilella was not a bright witness by any means but he was a star compared with his friend from Pequot avenue. Judge Prince held that the reputation of the Gentilella place was estabglished by the testimony of the police and John was fined $200.

Woman solicited funds for the day nursery where small children are taken care of while their parents, and their older sisters and brothers are at work. The solicitors were out but a single day, Saturday, but they managed to collect some $2,500 in cash—dimes, quarters and half dollars.

Walter H. Jones, not the comedian of that name, was in the police court today as a wife deserter. He was found guilty of non-support and was sentenced to jail, but the execution of the sentence was suspended that Jones might go to work and support his wife and child. The infant is but six weeks old and James has been in the absent gang since last July. He went to Riverhead, L. I., and from there wrote fairy tales about employment to his wife, but didn't send her any support. He was sought there with a warrant for his arrest and with extradition papers from the governor of New York but he was not found as he had gone to New Haven. He was found there and brought to this city where he was made to understand just what was coming to him if he continued to play the part of a worthless husband. Jones was placed on probation that he might go to work and take care of his wife and child.

Edward Halstrom, a member of the crew of the steamer Herbert Edwards, on which a fight occurred a week ago when a sailor lost his life, while another was injured so that he has since been in Lawrence hospital, was discharged from custody today, as it was apparent that he was in no way concerned in what occurred on the steamer. He has been in jail since arrested last Monday and he can be found if wanted later, so the case against him alleging breach of the peace was nolled.

Joe Rand, a New Haven road laborer, got a load of wine in Shaw street Saturday that produced a condition that he called "stewed." He said he meant by that that he was dizzy headed and could not tell just what he was doing. Anyhow, Joe went to call on a friend in Shaw street and got no further than the piazza when he was attracted by a young daughter of the friend. He was so loving that she screeched so she aroused the neighborhood. Police Officer Courtney rushed to the house and then he did some rushing of Rand to the police station, where the latter languished till today and then he was fined $10.

Frank P. Greenman is a driver of an express outfit and when he loaded up with bootlegger whiskey Saturday he thought his duty was to abuse his family and his children. Mrs. Greenman's mother had a different opinion so she complained to the police and Frank was arrested. To the fact that his three small children and the mother-in-law were in court today was due to the lenient treatment Frank received. He was put on probation for a year and was told that if he got out of the straight and narrow path again in that time he would go to jail for a month.

Councilor Malcolm M. Scott was chosen mayor, or presiding officer of the city council at the meeting of the council, this evening. The ballots were split on both the informal and formal ballots. On the informal ballot Mr. Scott received five votes, while Councilor Fox received one and there was one blank ballot, supposedly cast by Councilor Fox, himself. On the formal ballot Mr. Scott received four votes and Fox received one, while there were two blank ballots. As Councilor Scott had a majority on the formal ballot he was declared elected.

State's Attorney Hull sent the following letter to Rev. Dr. Crowley today:

"Rev. T. M. Crowley, New London, Conn.

"Reverend Sir: Some time since I observed your letter addressed to John F. Murray, mayor of the city, inquiring concerning 'expenses contracted by New London policemen for doing duty outside of the New London area,' and asking if there is 'any authority by which the city of New London must pay the expenses of the police working in Waterford or Westbrook.' I have not seen any reply to this inquiry and thought perhaps I could explain the situation. I am sending duplicates of this letter to the New London papers as your letter to the mayor was made public.

"Very soon after the attempt was begun by the state of Connecticut to overcome the lawless assaults upon the entire state by bootleggers, rum-runners and other criminals, a young reporter came to my office and told me he had been sent by the new editor of The Day to ask what authority I had to send a New London policeman twenty miles into the country to do police work. I told him to say to the new editor that nothing of the kind had been done. The young man apologized and said that was the message given him to deliver.

"This question seems to have arisen out of the following circumstances. United States Enforcement Agent Avery and Sergeant Samuel Hick had reason to believe that a truck load of alcohol was on its way to New London over the Lyme turnpike. To lie in wait for this jag of booze they had to go beyond the junction of the turnpike and Willetts avenue because if they waited inside the city limits on either the turnpike or Willetts avenue they might miss the truck.

"Their judgment was good for they had not waited long before the truck came by. They pursued it and captured the rum-runner and 115 gallons of booze in Leverone park. This, with the truck, was confiscated. The rum-runner received a sentence of one year in jail and a fine of $1,000 with costs. Sergeant Hick went on this trip after his night's work and reported off duty. This service was voluntary and was rendered by Sergeant Hick to the city of New London on his own time and did not cost the city a penny. However, my instructions to Sergeant Hick are when pursuing a criminal not to trip on the town line, but to do whatever any citizen ought to do, irrespective of any office he may hold or may not hold, to wit: to pursue the criminal whom he knows to be violating the law and to get him.

"I have found among the police of New London what I hope is only the remnant of a strained and false notion that they cannot even pursue a criminal outside the city, but that there is something inviolate in a town boundary line. It must be a remnant of the earliest days when New England towns were practically independent sovereignties.

"On another occasion Sergeant Samuel Hick, on my suggestion, went with other officers to make an arrest in East Lyme. This was done on his own time and voluntarily, without cost to the city.

"In scouring the highways then infested by bootleggers and rum runners in and about the city of New London, Sergeant Hick, his associate, Officer Philopena, the state police and United States government agents have made the rum-running business very perilous, and in their service to the city of New London have accomplished a great deal. New London has paid two officers and has really been receiving the benefit of the services of fifteen or twenty officers. I am not aware of a penny of expense being incurred by the police assigned to my office for which New London is liable which has not been strictly in the service of New London. This service performed by these officers is arduous and is attended by peril. They deserve the support of our people.

"The great church of which you are a representative teaches respect for loyalty to civil authority. I have gladly listened to your eloquent instruction along this line. The highest expression of civil authority in all literature of which I have any knowledge is the Constitution of the United States of America.

"If the shifty bootlegger or rum-runner dodges into Waterford, my instructions to the men assigned to my office are to waste no time, but to pursue and get him. The market for the illicit stuff is New London and not Waterford.

"We have been straining every nerve to dislodge this enemy of humanity and our great republic. May I appeal to you for the mighty aid a word from you can give?"

Feel Lame, Achy-- All Worn Out?

DOES early autumn find you dull, tired, achy all over—crippled with a bad back? Are you tortured with sharp, stabbing pains at every sudden move? Do you feel lame and stiff; worn out, nervous and dispirited? Then something is wrong and you should lose no time correcting it! More than likely it's your kidneys. The kidneys, you know, are constantly filtering poisons from the blood. But weak kidneys allow these poisons to accumulate and upset blood and nerves. The effect is soon felt. You suffer daily backaches, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying bladder irregularities. You feel nervous and depressed—tired, stiff and achy. Don't risk some serious kidney sickness. Help your weakened kidneys before it is too late! Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

Read How These Norwich Folks Found Relief:

CALVIN L. BRIGGS, Carpenter 37 Penobscott St., says. "I think my work had a great deal to do with my trouble, as over-lifting seemed to aggravate the pains that were in my back almost constantly. I got so bad, I couldn't lift at all and I could hardly straighten up. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me relief. I recommend them so that others who are troubled with kidney complaint will know of a good medicine."

MRS. E. MULKIN, 613 N. Main St., says, "I had dull pains across the small of my back and I noticed it mostly when I over-exerted or after being on my feet a great deal. My back felt weak and tired. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me great relief and that is why I recommend them."

(Statement given May 26, 1916.)

On February 16, 1921, Mrs. Mulkin said: "I have had no use for a kidney remedy since I used Doan's Kidney Pills several years ago. I think Doan's are good for kidney disorder as my cure is a lasting one."

GEO. WATERMAN, landscape gardener, 156 Talman St., says: "I have had kidney trouble and more or less misery in my back. When I sat down down to eat my dinner and then tried to get up, a stitch took me in my kidneys and I thought for a minute I had been struck with a sharp instrument. The kidney secretions were off color and thick. A friend told me to use Doan's Kidney Pills and they helped me."

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

During the last quarter which ended Sept. 30th Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton granted a total of 79 applications for new buildings, additions to or alterations on old buildings, the value of the work to be done being $180,370, a high figure for that quarter.

A detailed account of the grants during the quarter is as follows:

|---|---|
| New frame houses | 15 |
| New frame garages | 38 |
| Additions to frame buildings | 18 |
| Additions to brick buildings | 2 |
| New brick buildings | 3 |
| New frame sheds | 3 |
| Total | 79 |

Value of buildings, $180,370.

During the past week but three petitions for new buildings were received and granted by Fire Marshal Stanton for a total value of about $4,500, thus showing a drop over the previous week, an indication that building is slackening with the approach of cooler weather. The petitions granted were as follows:

Michael Krawczyk, Summit street, garage 28x50, concrete foundation, frame construction.

Hadley Potter, 33 West Thames street, addition one story to present building.

Adelard Gaucher, next to 182 High street, frame garage 25x25.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week 21 sales of real estate were reported as against 18 sales in the same week of 1922. The mortgage loans for the corresponding weeks were $28,450 as against $42,300.

In New London but 4 sales were noted as against 17 in 1922 and the mortgage loans were $57,025 this year as against $49,035 in 1922.

THE BUILDING SITUATION.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt of the American Construction council, New York, says a 20 per cent. to 40 per cent. shortage in building materials and labor now exists. Restriction of building to essentials, he says, is helping the situation. Amount expended in buildings completed and under construction in this country this year will total $6,000,000,000, he said.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Auction at Groton.

Joseph P. Day, auctioneer, will hold next Thursday, October 4th an auction sale of 98 separate dwellings at Groton, Conn., by order of the U. S. Shipping Board, Edward P. Farley, chairman.

These fine dwellings were built to house shipyard employes during the war, but now that the war is over Uncle Sam has no further use for them, and, therefore, they are going absolutely to the public at public auction. The public fixes the price.

Groton Park is located on high ground, part of which is wooded. From the property beautiful outlooks over the Thames river and New London may be obtained. The section is considered the most healthy and is easily accessible to New London by means of the trolley car, which operates across the bridge or by ferry, only a short distance from the house.

In speaking of the sale, Joseph P. Day, the auctioneer, said yesterday:

"Everyone will have a fair, equal chance at this Uncle Sam auction sale. The highest bidder, whether he be tenant or outsider, will become the new owner. The sale will be conducted along the same lines as the ones held by me for Uncle Sam at Fairview, N. J., Brooklawn, N. J., and other war villages owned by the U. S. Shipping Board.

"The houses contain 4, 5, 6 and 7 rooms each. They have been solidly built, and are suitable for all year round residences. They are located on lots of varying sizes, and in many instances these lots can be enlarged through the purchase of abutting vacant land.

"Included in the 98 dwellings are three boarding houses, containing 16, 17 and 18 rooms respectively; also a cafeteria building, and a power house equipped with boilers.

"Can't you see your opportunity? Can't you see the money making possibilities? Can't you see how you can buy a home with a small down payment?

"I strongly urge you to examine these houses carefully and come to the auction sale next Thursday, and buy your home and stop paying rent. Remember the public fixes the price, so the price must be right.

At the Strand.

Four acts of B. F. Keith vaudeville were shown last night at the Strand theatre to an appreciative audience.

Martin & Walters opened the programme with "Innocense is Wise," a comedy skit by John Hyman. It is a clever comedy with some good dancing of the soft shoe eccentric kind.

Jean La Crosse, "California's Favorite Soprano." She entertais with some very fine singing.

Will J. Kennedy and Will F. Petrie in "Hoosick Falls, New York," entered in much laughter with their funny comedy and their songs, also went good.

Niobe, America's Aquatic Marvel, appeared in an aquatic sensation surprise that surpasses belief. To talk and sing under water so as to be perfectly audible to the audience is one of her feats.

Lavishly produced and sympathetically directed, "Daughters of the Rich," which had its local premiere at the Strand theatre last evening, realized every promise held out by its title.

Gasnier's screen version of the first of Edgar Saltus' stories to be filmed surely will create a demand for more of that author's works. For it forcefully tells a melodramatic story in so convincing a manner as to keep the most blase theatre-goer catching his breath and wondering what will happen next.

"Homeward Bound" Shot at New London, Conn., Now at the Broadway Theatre.

Many scenes for Thomas Meighan's latest Paramount picture, "Homeward Bound," at the Broadway theatre today and Wednesday, were filmed on the Thames river at New London, Conn., where the annual Yale-Harvard boat race is held. For these scenes the E. H. Harriman yacht—a 190-foot craft—owned by Paul DeFere, was used by Ralph Ince, the director. The Chappell ship yards at New London where other scenes were photographed, docked the famous cup defenders, Thomas Lawson's "Independence" and the "Constitution" before the International Cup races. Many places familiar to lovers of marine sports are shown in "Homeward Bound," which has the salty flavor of the sea throughout. Lila Lee is leading woman. The star appears in the role of a sea captain, Jim Bedford, who, for reasons best known to himself, threatens a certain Captain Sveason with exposure and takes command of a beautifully appointed yacht, the property of Bedford's employer, Rufus Brent, and a gift of his daughter, Mary, a part admirably portrayed by Lila Lee.

Later, commissioned by Brent to sail the schooner, Nancy B., to Costa Rica where she is to be put up for sale, Bedford comes upon Mary a stowaway. The vessel encounters a storm and th girl is seriously hurt by a falling mast and is, with some difficulty, transferred to the yacht in which Brent has given chase, after learning of his daughter's absence. There is considerable explaining to be done, but Brent refuses to give his daughter to a sea captain. Jim evens up matters by collecting salvage for saving Brent's yacht during the storm at sea—thus forcing the old man to give his parental blessing.

Included in the cast are Charles Abbee, Hugh Cameron, Cyril Ring and many other prominent stage and screen artists. Ralph Ince directed the production which was written by Peter B. Kyne and adapted by Jack Cunningham and Paul Sloane.

A comedy and News were the short subjects.

Bread Theatre.

Laughs chased thrills all over the Breed theatre last night when the Fred Niblo production of "Strangers of the Night," a screen version of Walter Hackett's stage success, "Captain Applejack," helped prove that the screen is mightier than the stage. All of the spectacular development that the play sugested was realized in lavish fashion by this Louis B. Mayer presentation through Metro. It is one of the greatest of photoplays and should not be missed.

Matt Moore heads a brilliant cast as the timid Brittisher who becomes a swashbuckling pirate, and the blonde beauty of Enid Bennett vies with the dark seductiveness of Barbara La Marr in the affections of the spectators. Robert McKim is again a superb villain.

Niblo who produced "The Three Musketeers," "The Famous Mrs. Fair," and "Blood and Sand," here has his greatest triumph.

The Pathe News and an Educational comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

MARKET WAS UNSETTLED.

New York, Oct. 1.—Erratic price fluctuations took place in today's stock market in reflection of the struggle for control between opposing speculative forces. Leading industrial issues showed little change on the day but several of the rails showed moderate gains on buying predicated on the excellent August earnings statements.

Speculators for the decline made repeated assaults on individual issues in an effort to unsettle the general list. They succeeded in forcing more than a dozen stocks to new low levels for the year but met stubborn resistance in other quarters which induced considerable short-covering.

Among the stocks which established new lows for the year were Studebaker at 93 3-4, Kelly-Springfield at 33 1-4, Chandler Motor at 45, Hupp Motors at 16 3-4, Butte & Superior at 12 7-8, American Zinc preferred at 26, Republic Steel preferred at 84 3-4, and National Enameling at 48 1-4. Studebaker rallied to 94 3-8, off 1 1-4 on the day, but most of the others closed around their low levels.

Week-end reports of political disturbances in Germany and Premier Poincare's speech setting forth that France was disposed to wait until Germany had translated her decision to abandon passive resistance in the Ruhr from words to deeds had a depressing influence on the foreign exchanges. Demand sterling dropped more than a cent to $4.53 3-4, French francs broke 15 points to below 6.00 cents, Belgian francs dropped 13 points to below 5.10 cents while German marks established a new low record for all time at 39 cents a hundred million and then rallied to 38 cents.

Considerable heaviness developed in the Ca shares, American slumping to 88 3-4 and Continental to 47 5-8 but both showed good recuperative power, American closing at 48 5-8, off 7-8. Allied Chemical was offered freely on a revival of an old report that a large block of the stock was for sale by foreign interests, the closing price of 60 1-8 representing a net loss of 2 7-8 points.

Squeezing of an over-extended short interest was the explanation generally heard for the sharp run-up in Davison Chemical which closed at 3-5-8 points higher at 46 after having fluctuated between 42 7-8 and 48 1-4. Continued liquidation of the motor shares was associated with rumors of more price cutting and competition next year. Some of the conspicuous strong spots were General Electric, Burns Bros., A and B Houston Oil and Woolworth, up 2 to 3 1-2 points and Liggett & Myers B, up 4 3-4.

There were several strong spots in the rail group, gains of 1 to nearly 2 points being registered by Baltimore & Ohio, Southern Railway, Canadian Pacific, Union Pacific, St. Paul preferred, Nickel Plate, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico and Pittsburgh & West Virginia. One of the most interesting of the recent railroad earnings statements was that of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton, known as the "Ford Road," which showed net operating income in August to $229,835 as against a deficit of $800,404 in August of last year.

Call money opened at 5 1-4 per cent. and advanced, successively to 5 1-2, 5 3-4 and 6, the stiffening rates being due to heavy withdrawals in connection with October first payments. The time money market is dull with 5 1-2 per cent. the ruling rate. Interior banks are the principal takers of commercial paper, the bulk of the prime names moving at 5 1-4 per cent.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—With corn soaring to new high price records for the season, wheat and oats today developed fresh strength. Reports that frost in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa had done corn direct damage equal to 70,000,000 bushels exclusive of reduction in quality, was the chief bullish influence affecting all grain. Wheat closed firm, 3-4c to 1 3-8c@1 1-2c net higher, December $1.06 5-8 to $1.06 5-8@3-4 and May $1.10 3-4 to $7.11 3-4@7-8c. Corn finished 1 3-4 to 3 5-8c up. Oats and 1 1-8 to 1 1-4c gain, and provisions varying from 2c decline to 12c advance.

At first, the wheat market showed a downward tendency owing to lower quotations at Liverpool and because of disturbed conditions in Germany. The notable strength which soon developed in the corn market, however, brought about a quick reversal of the action of wheat. Buying of corn had been persistent from th outset, and had been more or less stimulated because of continued wet weather west. It was after bullish crop estimates were made public, though that corn values began to jump in earnest. Throughout the remainder of the day, demand for corn was on a broad scale, with offerings small, and May went above any previous top figures for that month this season.

Profit-taking sales in the wheat market led to only a moderate reaction from the day's best prices. Free buying on the part of commission houses absorbed the offerings. Meanwhile talk of likelihood of government aid to wheat growers continued, and absence of export business apparently failed to make much impression.

Shippers of corn bid prices of cash corn up in competition with industries. Number 2 yellow sold as high as 94 1-4c, a bushel, the topmost quotation yet in 1923. Oats like corn reached new high price records for the season.

Provisions were firmer with hogs and grain.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Oct. 1.—Heavy selling of United States government issues again featured today's irregular and relatively dull bond dealings on the New York stock exchange. Bond traders attributed some of the selling to banks and expressed the theory that it was influenced by news reports that the next congress would enact a soldiers' bonus bill. The tax exempt 3 1-2s touched a new low for the year in the forenoon but recovered a part of the loss.

Industrial liens moved irregularly with most of these which displayed heaviness closing somewhat higher than lows for the day. This was true of Youngstown Sheet & Tube 8s which reacted 2 points at one time but recovered more than a point of this recession before the close.

The demand for railroad mortgages was considerably greater than of some time. Fluctuations, however, were only nominal.

Only two bids were received at Philadelphia for a $4,00,000 30-year offering of school district bonds at 4 1-4 per cent., local banks explaining that it was impossible to handle the issue with that coupon rate. None of the bids was accepted.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Oct. 1.—Trading in today's curb market was rather listless with the active issues moving within narrow limits. Oils displayed a firm tone but except in the cases of Pennsylvania-Mexico Fuel and Prairie Oil & Gas, each of which advanced 4 1-2 points, the gains were held to a point or so.

Less than 11,000 shares of Standard Oil of Indiana changed hands, the closing price, 54, representing a net gain of 1-4. Standard Oils of New York, Kansas and Kentucky also advanced fractionly but Vacuum and Gulf of Pennsylvania each climbed more than a point.

Stutz was heavy, closing 1 1-8 lower at 12, in sympathy with the reaction in Motors on the "big board." International Concrete Industries and American Stores established new high records for the year at 29 7-8 and 31, respectively, but the latter fell back later to 29 3-4.

Penny stocks continued to attract the most attention in the mining group with fluctuations narrow and irregular.

One hundred years ago Jephtha Gear Bill, was born in Griswold and he passed the century mark at the home of his son, Dr. B. J. Bill of Genoa Junction, Wisconsin, with whom he has made his home for the past five years. He thinks it probable that he may not try the trip east again. Friday evening 70 guests gathered at the home of Dr. Bill, to do honor to his father. Many brought gifts, there were flowers, congratulations and good cheer. They sang and refreshments were served.

Mr. Bill, this town's oldest son, was born Sept. 7, 1823, and is of the seventh generation in line of descent from Philip Bill, Puritan emigrant from England 1628-1639, the family having been traced in one county in England for nearly 600 years. One of the family, William Bill, lies buried in Westminster Abbey. One Charles Bill of long years ago is recorded as being the first printer to the king of England.

Mr. Bill's life as local people knew it, was one of great activity. He has filled nearly all the principal public offices within the gift of the people of his native town of Griswold, has always been a man of fidelity to any trust, of deep religious convictions, a member of the Methodist conference and widely known, frequently sought in his home town for assistance and advice.

The meeting was called to order at 8.30 o'clock by Mayor Milo R. Waters, Clerk Weston C. Fullen read the return of publication of the order establishing a grade and sidewalk on the westerly side of Rose Place and the hearing on the matter was declared open by Mayor Waters. The child, who lives at 228 South Thames street, was taken to the Backus hospital by the driver of the machine. Examination showed that the child was injured about the face and head. A report of the accident was made at the police station by Leon Mayeski, brother of the injured child.

The Norwich police were asked to be on the lookout Monday night for an automobile stolen in Westerly. It is a new four-door Ford sedan.

BACKUS HOSPITAL DRIVE TO BEGIN OCT. 19TH

An enthusiastic meeting of the advisory committee in the Backus hospital $250,000 drive was held Monday evening at the Community House on Church street, at which announcement was made of the campaign dates—Oct. 19 to Oct 29—and the prevailing note was one of confidence that Norwich would meet call of the hospital with a ready response that would leave no doubt of the successful culmination of the drive.

There was an attendance of 70 men and when Chairman H. A. Tirrell opened the meeting he spoke of this as an assurance of success. After brief remarks by Robert McNeely, who spoke of his knowledge of conditions in the city through his activities as business agent of labor organizations, and predicted success for the campaign, Mr. Tirrell clearly put before the meeting the special situation in Norwich as regards the hospital service which it has received.

Chairman Tirrell's Statement.

Mr. Tirrell spoke as follows:

"Our entire community is intensely and intimately concerned with hospital service. Backus hospital is indispensable to us. The health and public welfare of us all require that the service available at our hospital shall be maintained at all times at the highest standard of efficiency.

"Endowed by the founders thirty years ago, Backus hospital, until the last few years, has been able to furnish service to all who required it, and still to live within its income. It has never called upon our people for financial support. It has never received community aid.

"The endowment income of Backus hospital will no longer suffice to maintain service. This is not surprising. In every hospital in the country the cost of operation has doubled since before the war. Every dollar of hospital income has been cut in half, in terms of purchasing power.

"The point of danger from a financial point of view has been reached by Backus hospital. It has been compelled to draw upon the principal of invested funds.

"If our hospital is to go on furnishing such service as it has given us in the past, and to expand that service as new demands require, it must have a large increase in general endowment.

"For all the years during which Backus hospital has been our hospital and has continued to serve us without sacrifice on our part, we have had all the advantages of hospital care without having to bear the burden. This period of privilege is at an end. If we are hereafter to expect proper hospital care for our sick and our injured, we now must assure that care by our own determination, by our own personal sacrifices, by our own united community effort.

"First, then, we need a substantial addition to the general endowment fund. This addition should be just as large as we can possibly make it by giving until it hurts.

"Furthermore, our hospital needs to expand. We cannot get along without a new nurses' home in which to house the nurses and to provide for them the proper standards of living, training, and recreation. To build this home will cost not less than $150,000, and when it is built it must be supported by a separate endowment. To operate the new structure will add to the cost of operating the hospital as a whole, and the funds must be supplied to pay for this additional cost.

"Again, our hospital itself needs improved facilities. The building now used for nurses ought to be adapted for maternity work, as the demands on the hospital for maternity care are constantly increasing. Other needs of the hospital include interior changes that will cut down the cost of operation and also will improve the standards of service.

"We are so unfamiliar, as a community, with the ordinary needs of hospitals for funds, and with the ordinary means by which those needs are satisfied, that some of us do not, as yet, fully understand why our hospital now is forced to look to us for active financial support.

"Hospitals are not run for the purpose of making a profit. Their efficiency is measured by the amount of service they are able to give at less than cost. The ideal toward which all hospital management strives is to give hospital care to all those who need it, even if they are not able to give at less than cost. The ideal toward which all hospital management strives is to give hospital care to all those who need it, even if they are not able to pay for that care.

"For this reason, hospitals are always giving in the form of service far more than they receive in the form of revenue from patients. The difference is made up out of income. It is the duty of the management to use the income from endowment for the purpose of giving the demanded service at the lowest possible cost.

"As a result of this policy and practice, hospitals spend as they go. They are unable to set aside funds for expansion.

"Therefore, whenever it becomes necessary for hospitals to expand, they must go to the whole community with the story of the need and obtain from the community the new money required for the new construction. There is no other way by which hospital service can be kept growing along with the growth of the demand for service.

"Other communities are familiar with these fundamental facts concerning hospital policy, hospital management, and hospital finance. From the very beginning, they have had a financial interest in their hospitals. They have helped to build them; they have helped to support them. They know they have no right to expect to receive hospital care unless they, themselves, have created the hospital, and unless they, themselves, continue to maintain it.

"In this respect, we of the Backus hospital community have been enjoying a very exceptional luxury. We have not had to pay for the hospital benefits we have enjoyed. That is the only exceptional thing about this appeal—not that we now are asking financial support from our own community, but that we have never before asked such support.

"We believe that, as all of our other institutions are democratic in their form, so our hospital should be democratic. We have no more right to expect hospital service without paying for it than we have the right to expect any other sort of community service without paying for it.

"This appeal not only lays upon us an obligation; it offers us an opportunity.

From the personal and individual point of view, there is no other way of providing for our sick and our injured that costs so little and gives so much, as the hospital way. Our hospitals are the centers of medical, surgical, and nursing skill. In them are brought together all the professional and scientific training that are demanded for the most efficient care of the sick and the injured. There is no other place in which these services can be obtained so advantageously or so cheaply. A dollar spent for hospital service buys more skill for the prevention and cure of disease than can be bought by that dollar in any other way. To acquire a financial interest in our hospital is to invest our money in the best form of health insurance.

"From the point of view of industries, the hospital is the best and the cheapest method of safeguarding and restoring the health and efficiency of industrial workers. Without hospitals, the industrial cost of sickness and accident would be prohibitive. Industrial managers know this, and they are consequently to be counted on as staunch supporters of hospitals everywhere.

"Finally, there is the call of benevolence. No matter whether a patient is rich or poor, hospitals must carry on. It must always be possible for everyone who needs hospital care to obtain that care without question or delay. This is the concern of us all. Regardless of creed, regardless of all distinctions, we are united on that. If there were no other appeal but the appeal to charity, the call of our hospital would be insistent. And it would be answered.

"We believe in Backus hospital. We are determined that its efficient service shall be continued without impairment. We know that the building of a new nurses' home is indispensable for the maintenance of that service. We realize that the time has come, by our own effort, to add to the general endowment of the hospital, so that it may pay its way and continue to serve us as the demands for its ministrations increase. We are resolved that those who require hospital care, and yet may not have the means to pay for it, shall never find the doors of our hospital closed to them.

"For these reasons we call upon our entire community, both in Norwich and in the neighborhood towns served by Backus hospital, to make this campaign their own, to give to it the best that is in them, and to roll up our subscriptions until they not only meet the bare necessities, as covered in the $250,000 objective, but provide a fund that shall be amply sufficient to maintain our hospital at the peak of efficiency, professional and financial.

"Let us make of our hospital a people's memorial."

Wallace S. Allis answered three questions which he said always occurred to him in an appeal of this kind: Is it doing a worthy work? Does it need help? What can I do to help? The Backus hospital has grown from treating 547 patients in 1907 to 1344 patients in 1920. In its first 20 years it has received only $25,000 in gifts. In 1915 it had 890 patients at $15.67 per capita cost, with maintenance expenses $39,673.67 and normal income $42,067.84. In 1922 there were 1268 patients at per capita cost of $27, with maintenance expenses $79,799.86 and income $67,428. In modern times there is a constant demand for new modern appliances. Norwich has been fortunate in its hospital service in the past but it can do now for itself and for the hospital what other places have done for themselves and their hospitals.

Samuel Goldberg, one of the vice presidents in the campaign, spoke of his personal knowledge of what the hospital had done in cases where patients were in poor circumstances and he predicted that the money is waiting for the call of the workers and the campaign is sure of success.

Rev. W. A. Keefe, another of the vice presidents, spoke enthusiastically of the campaign which he said is one of the best undertakings that Norwich business men have ever enlisted in. He told of the service which he knew the hospital rendered at all times of the day and night and to all classes of people, rich and poor alike, and said we can never begin to pay back for the service that the hospital renders. It is a service that is insurance for the business men and as practical businessmen the community should put the hospital in position to meet emergencies. This is a charity that appeals and Norwich will respond, heart to heart and shoulder to shoulder, to put this drive over the top and beat what Westerly did for a hospital.

James L. Case explained the organization of the campaign and announced the dates, beginning with a supper in the town hall, with a speaker, on Friday, Oct. 19. All meetings are to be held in the town hall.

The meeting adjourned after a brief talk by Treadwell Cleveland, who spoke in appreciation of the fine spirit of cooperation he had found in Norwich, which had made it possible to complete the organization for the campaign so far in advance of its actual start. Such cooperation indicated that no difficulty would be met that could not be surmounted in the campaign.

GERMAN PARLIAMENT IS DEADLOCKED OVER PROGRAM FOR ECONOMIC REFORM

Early Retirement of Chancellor Stresemann Unofficially Forecast—The Reichstag Has Failed to Give the Chancellor United Approval for His Proposed "Economic Dictatorship"—After a Conference With President Ebert the Cabinet Went Into Session for the Purpose of Reaching a Compromise, if Possible, on the Existing State of Emergency.

Berlin, Oct. 2.—(By the A. P.)—Chancellor Stresemann's efforts to construct a national parliamentary coalition, giving united approval for his proposed "economic dictatorship" have failed to win the undivided support of all the Reichstag parties, and up to a late hour tonight the political situation was in a state of extreme confusion.

At the end of a day devoted to party caucuses and deliberations over the chancellor's "authorization bill," by virtue of which he would receive sweeping authority in dictating economic measures, the united socialists informed him that, while they were not altogether opposed to some of the cardinal features of his economic programme, they were opposed to the existing state of emergency and would support the communist resolution demanding its immediate repeal.

Upon receipt of this ultimatum, the chancellor immediately proceeded to President Ebert and apprised him of the socialists' attitude, which, if put into execution, would jeopardize his majority. After a long conference with the president, the cabinet again went into session for the purpose of reaching a compromise, if possible.

The parliamentary situation tonight is not unlike that obtaining when the Cuno government retired after the socialists had informed Chancellor Cuno that they could not avoid supporting the communists' "no confidence" resolution. While the demand by the socialists that the existing state of emergency be raised is viewed as a bold piece of party tactics and a high price for the radicals' further participation in the present coalition it also throws a fierce spotlight on the gravity of the crisis, which, it is assumed, will have a decisive influence on the further trend of national politics, is that it now will be demonstrated whether the dictatorial regime demanded by Stresemann as an indispensable prerequisite for the nation's economic salvation can be put into operation without an active working majority in the Reichstag.

With the defeat of its endurance test along the Rhine and the Ruhr, and its sequel, as reflected in sober contemplation of trillions wasted on passive resistance, Chancellor Stresemann and such leaders of big business as were not wholly blind to the laws of economics, promptly launched a plan for salvaging the nation through an economic dictatorship, which would be removed from the partisan intervention of the Reichstag, but which would not be so constituted as wholly to eliminate parliamentary sanction.

This was the whole problem which occupied the coalition parties in their caucuses throughout the day and which caused postponement of the Reichstag session, at which the chancellor was to present the government's new programme. While Stresemann ostensibly figures as the author of the scheme installing a business dictatorship, it is well known that the ides originated with the leading industrialists, who have been urging adoption of a platform demanding increased production, added working hours and rigid curtailment in the governmental wage budgets. These men told the chancellor after the Ruhr battle was over that Germany had lost a costly economic war and that the nation could only be saved through the immediate mobilization of every ounce of man-power at its disposal.

HOW CONDITIONS ARE VIEWED BY WORKERS IN THE RUHR

Duesseldorf, Oct. 2 (By the A P.)—While some of the miners' unions in the Ruhr have reached the stage of adopting resolutions to resume work, nobody as yet has gone into the pits, as far as can be ascertained tonight.

As regards the railroads, the situation is less optimistic, and it is believed there are many obstacles to be overcome before the men willingly return to work. Heinrich Meyer, district secretary of the Free Traders' union of the Rhineland and Westphalia, told the correspondent today that the railroad men generally considered the conditions laid down by the French and Belgians for resumption of work too humiliating, and that many of the men preferred privation to acceptance of the terms.

Among the conditions promulgated by the directing heads of the occupation administration are understood to be:

First—The men must submit a detailed personal history.

Second—They must state how long they have worked on the German railway system, and in what capacity.

Third—Applicants must swear allegiance to the administration, agreeing to execute its orders faithfully, including orders for the transport of munitions and troops.

The railroaders claim the conditions of the third clause constitute a request for virtual renunciation of their German nationality.

The fourth condition says that only applicants who have worked on the system for more than a year will be considered, and then only men under medium age. The fifth condition is that only railroad men born within the limits of the occupied area will be considered for jobs.

Up to the present every local of the railroaders' union that has considered the conditions has rejected them, the latest of these being the locals at Geisenkirchen and Bochum, whose decisions were voted today.

SUIT BROUGHT AGAINST KLAN IN SOUTH BEND, IND.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 2.—Charges that members of the Ku Klux Klan are conspiring to become a supergovernment that will supplant the Constitution of the United States, and are endeavoring to take over the administration of justice in the United States, are contained in a suit against the Klan filed in federal court here today on behalf of six residents of South Bend, Ind. It is further asserted in the action that the Ku Klux Klan intends to take over the military forces of the country and take government properties to be turned over to the defendants, and influence army boards of inquiry that look into the disposition of property.

The suit asks that the membership lists of the Indiana Klan organization be seized and that A. B. Anderson, judge of the federal court, enjoin the defendants from representing the plaintiffs to be members of the Klan.

The Klan is an organization to oppress American citizens who are negroes, Catholics and members of the Jewish faith, the complaint charges, in violation of the first article of the Constitution of the United States, which guarantees religious and political freedom, and the 13th, 14th and 15th amendments.

COOLIDGE STILL STUDYING AGRICULTURAL SITUATION

Washington, Oct. 2.—President Coolidge, continuing his study of the agricultural situation and took under consideration today a proposal that as a means of relieving the farmers of the country the war finance corporation accept settlements made by foreign buyers of American farm products.

The proposal was presented to the president of the executive committee of the American Farm Bureau Federation, which like the executive committee of the national grange, received yesterday by the president, called by invitation of the executive.

As laid before the president the plan contemplates no additional legislation or action by congress. It merely would have the War Finance corporation take over settlements received by farmers cooperative organizations for grain sold for export, the corporation paying from its funds to the cooperative organizations the amounts involveed. Authority for such action is contained in the act creating the War Finance corporation and the plan, in the opinion of the Farm Bureau Federation, could be quickly put into effect.

Geneva, Oct. 2.—(By the A. P.)—The United States has followed up her official refusal to participate in the forthcoming conference on customs formalities by inquiring whether it would be agreeable to the League of Nations to have American experts present to keep in touch with the proceedings. Officials of the League explain that there will be no attempt to impose any special customs regulations by the various countries, but merely to secure any revisions of regulations essential to simplification. Article 1 of the Agenda says the states will undertake to apply the principles underlying article 23 of the covenant.

The Agenda will be of interest both to travellers and persons engaged in international commerce through attempts at concerted world action on making more uniform and simpler such things as the examination of luggage and a more rapid passing of goods through customs houses. The creation of an international identity card for commercial travellers will be another subject of interest to Americans.

Mexico, which is not a member of the League, has accepted an invitation to participate in the conference. This will be her first appearance in league activities.

ONE-MAN "INTERNATIONAL BLACK HAND SOCIETY"

New York, Oct. 2.—A one-han "International Black Hand society" which extracted hundreds of thousands of lire from victims in Italy by mailing them published accounts of the murder of 5 year old Giuseppe Varotta by New York Black Handers, is believed, police said today, to have been put out of business by the arrest Saturday of Francisco Gulla, a Brooklyn clerk.

Gulla was taken in custody at the Tarabella bank as he was cashing a draft for 15,000 lire obtained from Mrs. Alfonsina Pisano. The woman, a wealthy widow, mailed Gulla the money from Italy, then took the next boat here to help authorities arrest him. He is charged with having used the mails to defraud.

Gulla has confessed, according to the police, that he conducted the Black Hand business under the name of "Francisco Talarico, President."

Mrs. Pisano tlod of having received newspaper clippings describing the death of the Varotta boy, whose body was found in the Hudson a few years ago after he had been kidnapped from parents who disregarded the threats of a New York gang of blackmailers.

"This is what our agents can do—here or in Italy," were letters, signed by "Talarico," that accompanied the newspaper accounts. The last letter Mrs. Pisano received contained a demand for 60,000 lire, she said.

Gulla was held in $5,000 bail.

Sofia, Oct. 2.—(By the A. P.)—Ten persons are known to have been killed and more than one hundred injured in a fire which yesterday swept the city of Vratza, forty miles northeast of Sofia, destroying the largest and most important section of the town.

HAD PERILOUS EXPERIENCE ON MOTOR BOATS IN STORM

New York, Oct. 2.—Tales paralleling each other for adventure and fortitude, were recounted tonight by passengers of the motorboat Major, last to return of a little fleet of four which had been missing since Sunday. She docked at Sheepshead Bay. The Gertrude, F-12, and Skibo, had been accounted for earlier in the day.

The boat disappeared in a heavy storm which swept the coast, for a time all were believed lost. Then, one by one, the staunchest of the prodigal craft, returned. Others were abandoned at sea, when rescuing ships brought the occupants to port.

The Major left on a fishing trip Sunday, carrying W. L. McIlwain, an editor, Capt. C. P. O'Sullivan, Frank Smith, and George Flanigan, all of Brooklyn. Motor trouble developed and for fifty hours they battled tenfoot waves which momentarily threatened to sink the craft. One boat, when hailed, declined to send them aid, and made off, they rescued said.

GOV. WALTON OF OKLAHOMA WAS REBUKED AT THE POLLS

Indications Are That All the Larger Cities Will Return Large Majorities in Favor of Legislature Convening at a Majority Call—Governor Walton's Home Town Voted More Than 6 to 1 Against the Governor—No Returns Have Been Received From the Rural Districts, Where the Governor is Strongest—The Courts Probably Will be Required to Pass Upon the Legality of the Election.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 2.—Acts of Governor J. C. Walton it was indicated by an overwhelming vote in favor of an initiative measure according to early scattered returns from the larger sities. Returns from rural regions where Walton is said to be strongest were not included, but the city vote was about 6 to 1 against the governor's position.

The citizens of the state ignored the decree of the executive postponing the election and every announcement of first returns throughout the state bore out the previous unofficial indications that the amendment to permit the legislature to assemble in impeachment session without call of the governor would be carried by a substantial majority.

The courts will be required to pass upon the legality of the election.

The first 52 precincts to report on the legislative proposition gave: Yes, 8,407; no, 1,522. These precincts include 40 in Oklahoma City.

The first 24 precincts in Oklahoma City show the soldiers' bonus proposition losing ground. These precincts out of 138 in the county gave: for the bonus, 1,670; against, 3,482.

Oklahoma City, the governor's home town, on the basis of early official returns, was voting more than 4 to 1 to open the day for the legislature to consider his record. The first 50 precincts in the city returned 9,535 votes for the amendment and 1,533 against.

Only one precinct in the state had returned a majority against the measure at 8 o'clock. That was at McAlester in a coal mining district.

No returns had been received from rural districts, the governor's strength centers.

Eighty-two precincts in the legislative proposal give: yes, 12,909; no, 2,217. These included 55 precincts in Oklahoma City.

LATEST RETURNS FROM ELECTION IN OKLAHOMA

Oklahoma City, Oct. 2 (By the A. P.).—With virtually one-fourth of the state heard from at 9.30 o'clock tonight, it was indicated that a constitutional amendment to open the way for the state legislature to consider the official record of Governor J. C. Walton had swept to victory with the greatest majority ever recorded in an election in Oklahoma.

On the basis of returns up to that hour, compiled by four newspapers of the state, it was indicated that the measure would carry by approximately 250,000 majority.

Six hundred and fifty precincts out of 2,887 on the proposition gave: Yes 76,361; No 17,511.

It is estimated that the total vote will be approximately 450,000.

Partial returns from 38 out of 77 counties in the state indicated that the measure had won in each.

In two counties no votes were cast because election supplies did not arrive.

Against Soldier Bonus.

Returns from 660 precincts tabulated from returns to four newspapers, on the soldier bonus measure gave: Yes 34,645; No 46,021.

The result stood 124,526 for and 32,702 against the legislative amendment when 3,109 precincts had been tabulated from returns gathered by four Oklahoma newspapers.

STATEMENT ISSUED BY REPRESENTATIVE M'BEE

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 2 (By the A. P.).—In a statement issued tonight, Representative W. D. McBee of Stephens county said that "such an overwhelming majority has repudiated Governor Walton's administration that it no longer can be representative of a small portion of the people." Representative McBee is a leader in the impeachment movement against the executive.

"Governor Walton's despotic methods and high-handed system of handling affairs during the few months he has been governor has become so disgusting to the people that they have risen up at the first opportunity at the polls and by a possible five to one majority have given him such a rebuke that an ordinary man would not recover in years," McBee asserted.

WHAT GOVERNOR WALTON HAS TO SAY OF ELECTION

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 2 (By the A. P.)—Governor J. C. Walton issued the following statement at 9.30 o'clock:

"The fight on the invisible empire has just started in Oklahoma. I am still governor of the state."

At that hour the returns indicated that a majority of 250,000 votes had been cast in a special election today for a measure opening the way for the state legislature to consider impeachment charges against him.

Martial law status throughout the state will remain unchanged, the executive stated.

Troops which had been held in reserve during the day for any emergency, were not used, he said, and no disorders or requests for services of guardsmen were received.

"WOLF OF WALL STREET" CAUGHT IN MEXICO CITY

Mexico City, Oct. 2. (By the A. P.)—Trapped by a beautiful widow whose heart he believed he had captured, David Lamar, known as "The Wolf of Wall Street," fell into the hands of American detectives here who had been pursuing him relentlessly for some time in an endeavor to take him back to the United States, there to work out a sentence imposed on him in connection with a stock market transaction.

After he had been taken into custody Lamar was ordered expelled from the country as a pernicious foreigner, but when he reached Torreon, on the way to El Paso, he secured a writ of amparo and thereby escaped immediate deliverance into the hands of the United States authorities at the border. The writ of amparo is an appeal against the expulsion order, and a hearing on it has been set for October 17.

According to the Mexican secret service, Lamar entered Mexico from the state of New Mexico. Speaking English and French perfectly, and quickly acquiring Spanish, Lamar, or Ernest Lamar Lemann, as he called himself, quickly became famous in certain Mexican and foreign circles. He spent his money lavishly.

The suspicions of local bankers were aroused over deposits made by Lamar and enormous financial deals he attempted to promote, and inquiries were made of New York banks as to his standing. When these inquiries were answered both the Mexican and American authorities were advised.

Meanwhile a detective from New Mexico, cooperating with a New York detective and Mexican secret service operatives, got on Lamar's trail. Needing a photograph of Lamar for the purpose of establishing his identity, the police secured the cooperation of a handsome widow, a member of the American colony, who is said to have pretended to fall in love with the fugitive and to have agreed to elope with him. She secured the photograph without exciting his suspicion.

EVIDENCE OF POISON IN BODY OF MRS. CHARLES WEBB

White Plains, N. Y., Oct. 2.—Some evidence of poison was discovered by chemical analysis in the body of Mrs. Charles Webb, wealthy society woman who died last Tuesday under allegedly mysterious circumstances, but unless something further is found the case will be dropped, Coroner Fitzgerald stated tonight.

The report of Dr. A. O. Goettler, Bellevue hospital toxicologist, has not yet been completed, but present indications are that although poison was present in the body, it was not found in sufficient quantities to cause death.

Mr. Webb, on the advice of friends, today made a statement in New York concerning the circumstances of his wife's death. He said that although he had no reason to believe she had died from any but natural causes, he would welcome any investigation to clear up the case. He also declared that despite the fact that Mrs. Webb's last will was unsigned, and therefore not valid, he would abide by the wishes expressed in it, as he believed she would have wanted him to do.

TROUBLE IN REPUBLICAN POLITICS IN INDIANA

Indianapolis, Oct. 2.—(By the A. P.)—Republican politics in Indiana were thrown into a turmoil today as a result of charges and counter charges concerning the republican central committee meeting here Monday, to consider Governor Warren T. McCray's financial affairs.

A declaration by John Moorman, Knox, Ind., political adviser to Governor McCray, that yesterday's meeting was ordered by President Coolidge at the instigation of former Governor James P. Goodrich was followed by a subsequent denial by Mr. Goodrich. Mr. Goodrich in turn asserted that charges by prominent men that McCray had been guilty of actions involving the most serious consequences alone led to the meeting.

Both men issued statements, Mr. Moorman declaring that the "nub of the whole effort to remove Governor McCray from office is the fear of republican leaders that they will be held responsible for the depression in the value of farms and farm products and they are alarmed over the effects that may follow in the wake of such a notable example as the collapse of the governor's fortune." Mr. Goodrich termed Mr. Moorman's statement as being "absolutely false." He denied discussing Mr. McCray's affairs with President Coolidge and charged Mr. Moorman and the governor in their public statements with "trying to throw dust in the eyes of the people of this state and create the impression that the meeting of the committee was simply an effort on the part of certain machine politicians to obtain control of the committee."

GERMAN PARLIAMENT IS DEADLOCKED OVER PROGRAM FOR ECONOMIC REFORM

Early Retirement of Chancellor Stresemann Unofficially Forecast—The Reichstag Has Failed to Give the Chancellor United Approval for His Proposed "Economic Dictatorship"—After a Conference With President Ebert the Cabinet Went Into Session for the Purpose of Reaching a Compromise, if Possible, on the Existing State of Emergency.

Berlin, Oct. 2.—(By the A. P.)—Chancellor Stresemann's efforts to construct a national parliamentary coalition, giving united approval for his proposed "economic dictatorship" have failed to win the undivided support of all the Reichstag parties, and up to a late hour tonight the political situation was in a state of extreme confusion.

At the end of a day devoted to party caucuses and deliberations over the chancellor's "authorization bill," by virtue of which he would receive sweeping authority in dictating economic measures, the united socialists informed him that, while they were not altogether opposed to some of the cardinal features of his economic programme, they were opposed to the existing state of emergency and would support the communist resolution demanding its immediate repeal.

Upon receipt of this ultimatum, the chancellor immediately proceeded to President Ebert and appraised him of the socialists' attitude, which, if put into execution, would jeopardize his majority. After a long conference with the president, the cabinet again went into session for the purpose of reaching a compromise, if possible.

The parliamentary situation tonight is not unlike that obtaining when the Cuno government retired after the socialists had informed Chancellor Cuno that they could not avoid supporting the communists' "no confidence" resolution. While the demand by the socialists that the existing state of emergency be raised is viewed as a bold piece of party tactics and a high price for the radicals' further participation in the present coalition it also throws a fierce spotlight on the gravity of the crisis, which, it is assumed, will have a decisive influence on the further trend of national politics, in that it now will be demonstrated whether the dictatorial regime demanded by Stresemann as an indispensable prerequisite for the nation's economic salvation can be put into operation without an active working majority in the Reichstag.

With the defeat of its endurance test along the Rhine and the Ruhr, and its sequel, as reflected in sober contemplation of millions wasted on passive resistance, Chancellor Stresemann and such leaders of big business as were not wholly blind to the laws of economics, promptly launched a plan for salvaging the nation through an economic dictatorship, which would be removed from the partisan intervention of the Reichstag, but which would not be so constituted as wholly to eliminate parliamentary sanction.

This was the whole problem which occupied the coalition parties in their caucuses throughout the day and which caused postponement of the Reichstag session, at which the chancellor was to present the government's new programme. While Stresemann ostensibly figures as the author of the scheme installing a business dictatorship, it is well known that the idea originated with the leading industrialists, who have been urging adoption of a platform demanding increased production, added working hours and rigid curtailment in the governmental wage budgets. These men told the chancellor after the Ruhr battle was over that Germany had lost a costly economic war and that the nation could only be saved through the immediate mobilization of every ounce of man-power at its disposal.

HOW CONDITIONS ARE VIEWED BY WORKERS IN THE RUHR

Duesseldorf, Oct. 2 (By the A P.)—While some of the miners' unions in the Ruhr have reached the stage of adopting resolutions to resume work, nobody as yet has gone into the pits, as far as can be ascertained tonight.

As regards the railroads, the situation is less optimistic, and it is believed there are many obstacles to be overcome before the men willingly return to work. Heinrich Meyer, district secretary of the Free Traders' union of the Rhineland and Westphalia told the correspondent today that the railroad men generally considered the conditions laid down by the French and Belgians for resumption of work too humiliating, and that many of the men preferred privation to acceptance of the terms.

Among the conditions promulgated by the directing heads of the occupation administration are understood to be:

First—The men must submit a detailed personal history.

Second—They must state how long they have worked on the German railway system, and in what capacity.

Third—Applicants must swear allegiance to the administration, agreeing to execute its orders faithfully, including orders for the transport of munitions and troops.

The railroaders claim the conditions of the third clause constitute a request for virtual renunciation of their German nationality.

The fourth condition says that only applicants who have worked on the system for more than a year will be considered, and then only men under medium age. The fifth condition is that only railroad men born within the limits of the occupied area will be considered for jobs.

Up to the present every local of the railroaders' union that has considered the conditions has rejected them, the latest of these being the locals at Gelsenkirchen and Bochum, whose decisions were voted today.

SUIT BROUGHT AGAINST KLAN IN SOUTH BEND, IND.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 2.—Charges that members of the Ku Klux Klan are conspiring to become a supergovernment that will supplant the Constitution of the United States, and are endeavoring to take over the administration of justice in the United States, are contained in a suit against the Klan filed in federal court here today on behalf of six residents of South Bend, Ind. It is further asserted in the action that the Ku Klux Klan intends to take over the military forces of the country and take government properties to be turned over to the defendants, and influence army boards of inquiry that look into the disposition of property.

The suit asks that the membership lists of the Indiana Klan organization be seized and that A. B. Anderson, judge of the federal court, enjoin the defendants from representing the plaintiffs to be members of the Klan.

The Klan is an organization to oppress American citizens who are negroes, Catholics and members of the Jewish faith, the complaint charges, in violation of the first article of the Constitution of the United States, which guarantees religious and political freedom, and the 13th, 14th and 15th amendments.

COOLIDGE STILL STUDYING AGRICULTURAL SITUATION

Washington, Oct. 2—President Coolidge, continuing his study of the agricultural situation and took under consideration today a proposal that as a means of relieving the farmers of the country the war finance corporation accept settlements made by foreign buyers of American farm products.

The proposal was presented to the president of the executive committee of the American Farm Bureau Federation, which like the executive committee of the national grange, received yesterday by the president, called by invitation of the executive.

As laid before the president the plan contemplates no additional legislation or action by congress. It merely would have the War Finance corporation take over settlements received by farmers cooperative organizations for grain sold for export, the corporation paying from its funds to the cooperative organizations the amounts involved. Authority for such action is contained in the act creating the War Finance corporation and the plan, in the opinion of the Farm Bureau Federation, could be quickly put into effect.

Geneva, Oct. 2.—(By the A. P.)—The United States has followed up her official refusal to participate in the forthcoming conference on customs formalities by inquiring whether it would be agreeable to the League of Nations to have American experts present to keep in touch with the proceedings. Article 1 of the Agenda says the states will undertake to apply the principles underlying article 23 of the covenant.

The Agenda will be of interest both to travellers and persons engaged in international commerce through attempts at concerted world action in making more uniform and simpler such things as the examination of luggage and a more rapid passing of goods through customs houses. The creation of an international identity card for commercial travellers will be another subject of interest to Americans.

ONE-MAN "INTERNATIONAL BLACK HAND SOCIETY"

New York, Oct. 2.—A one-han "International Black Hand society" which extracted hundreds of thousands of lire from victims in Italy by mailing them published accounts of the murder of 5 year old Giuseppe Varotta by New York Black Handers, is believed, police said today, to have been put out of business by the arrest Saturday of Francisco Gulla, a Brooklyn clerk.

Gulla was taken in custody at the Tarabella bank as he was cashing a draft for 15,000 lire obtained from Mrs. Alfonsina Pisano. The woman, a wealthy widow, mailed Gulla the money from Italy, then took the next boat here to help authorities arrest him. He is charged with having used the mails to defraud.

"This is what our agents can do—here or in Italy," were letters, signed by "Talarico," that accompanied the newspaper accounts. The last letter Mrs. Pisano received contained a demand for 60,000 lire, she said.

Gulla was held in $5,000 bail.

The boat disappeared in a heavy storm which swept the coast, for a time all were believed lost. Then, one by one, the stauncher of the prodigal craft, returned. Others were abandoned at sea, when rescuing ships brought the occupants to port.

The Major left on a fishing trip Sunday, carrying W. L. McIlwain, an editor, Capt. C. P. O'Sullivan, Frank Smith, and George Flanigan, all of Brooklyn. Motor trouble developed and for fifty hours they battled tenfoot waves which momentarily threatened to sink the craft. # GOV. WALTON OF OKLAHOMA WAS REBUKED AT THE POLLS

Indications Are That All the Larger Cities Will Return Large Majorities in Favor of Legislature Convening at a Majority Call—Governor Walton's Home Town Voted More Than 6 to 1 Against the Governor—No Returns Have Been Received From the Rural Districts, Where the Governor is Strongest—The Courts Probably Will be Required to Pass Upon the Legality of the Election.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 2.—Acts of Governor J. C. Walton it was indicated by an overwhelming vote in favor of an initiative measure according to early scattered returns from the larger cities. Returns from rural regions where Walton is said to be strongest were not included, but the city vote was about 6 to 1 against the governor's position.

The citizens of the state ignored the decree of the executive postponing the election and every announcement of first returns throughout the state bore out the previous unofficial indications that the amendment to permit the legislature to assemble in impeachment session without call of the governor would be carried by a substantial majority.

The courts will be required to pass upon the legality of the election.

The first 52 precincts to report on the legislative proposition gave: Yes, 8,407; no, 1,522. These precincts include 40 in Oklahoma City.

The first 24 precincts in Oklahoma City show the soldiers' bonus proposition losing ground. These precincts out of 134 in the county gave: for the bonus, 1,670; against, 3,092.

Oklahoma City, the governor's home town, on the basis of early official returns, was voting more than 6 to 1 to open the day for the legislature to consider his record. The first 50 precincts in the city returned 9,585 votes for the amendment and 1,533 against.

Only one precinct in the state had returned a majority against the measure at 8 o'clock. That was at McAlester in a coal mining district.

No returns had been received from rural districts, the governor's strength centers.

Eighty-two precincts in the legislative proposal give: yes, 12,909; no, 2,217. These included 55 precincts in Oklahoma City.

LATEST RETURNS FROM ELECTION IN OKLAHOMA

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 2 (By the A. P.).—With virtually one-fourth of the state heard from at 9.30 o'clock tonight, it was indicated that a constitutional amendment to open the way for the state legislature to consider the official record of Governor J. C. Walton had swept to victory with the greatest majority ever recorded in an election in Oklahoma.

On the basis of returns up to that hour, compiled by four newspapers of the state, it was indicated that the measure would carry by approximately 250,000 majority.

Six hundred and fifty precincts out of 2,337 on the proposition gave: Yes 76,361; No 17,511.

It is estimated that the total vote will be approximately 450,000.

Partial returns from 38 out of 77 counties in the state indicated that the measure had won in each.

In two counties no votes were cast because election supplies did not arrive.

Against Soldier Bonus.

Returns from 660 precincts tabulated from returns to four newspapers, on the soldier bonus measure gave: Yes 34,645; No 46,021.

The result stood 124,526 for and 32,702 against the legislative amendment when 1,109 precincts had been tabulated from returns gathered by four Oklahoma newspapers.

STATEMENT ISSUED BY REPRESENTATIVE M'BEE

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 2 (By the A. P.).—In a statement issued tonight, Representative W. D. McBee of Stephens county said that "such an overwhelming majority has repudiated Governor Walton's administration that it no longer can be representative of a small portion of the people." Representative McBee is a leader in the impeachment movement against the executive.

"Governor Walton's despotic methods and high-handed system of handling affairs during the few months he has been governor has become so disgusting to the people that they have risen up at the first opportunity at the polls and by a possible five to one majority have given him such a rebuke that an ordinary man would not recover in years," McBee asserted.

WHAT GOVERNOR WALTON HAS TO SAY OF ELECTION

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 2 (By the A. P.)—Governor J. C. Walton issued the following statement at 9.30 o'clock:

At that hour the returns indicated that a majority of 250,000 votes had been cast in a special election today for a measure opening the way for the state legislature to consider impeachment charges against him.

Martial law status throughout the state will remain unchanged, the executive stated.

Troops which had been held in reserve during the day for any emergency, were not used, he said, and no disorders or requests for services of guardsmen were received.

"WOLF OF WALL STREET" CAUGHT IN MEXICO CITY

Mexico City, Oct. 2. (By the A. P.)—Trapped by a beautiful widow whose heart he believed he had captured, David Lamar, known as "The Wolf of Wall Street," fell into the hands of American detectives here who had been pursuing him relentlessly for some time in an endeavor to take him back to the United States, there to work out a sentence imposed on him in connection with a stock market transaction.

After he had been taken into custody Lamar was ordered expelled from the country as a pernicious foreigner, but when he reached Torreon, on the way to El Paso, he secured a writ of amparo and thereby escaped immediate deliverance into the hands of the United States authorities at the border. The writ of amparo is an appeal against the expulsion order, and a hearing on it has been set for October 17.

According to the Mexican secret service, Lamar entered Mexico from the state of New Mexico. Speaking English and French perfectly, and quickly acquiring Spanish, Lamar, or Ernest Lamar Lemann, as he called himself, quickly became famous in certain Mexican and foreign circles. He spent his money lavishly.

The suspicions of local bankers were aroused over deposits made by Lamar and enormous financial deals he attempted to promote, and inquiries were made of New York banks as to his standing. When these inquiries were answered both the Mexican and American authorities were advised.

Meanwhile a detective from New Mexico, cooperating with a New York detective and Mexican secret service operatives, got on Lamar's trail. Needing a photograph of Lamar for the purpose of establishing his identity, the police secured the cooperation of a handsome widow, a member of the American colony, who is said to have pretended to fall in love with the fugitive and to have agreed to elope with him. She secured the photograph without exciting his suspicion.

EVIDENCE OF POISON IN BODY OF MRS. CHARLES WEBB

White Plains, N. Y., Oct. 2.—Some evidence of poison was discovered by chemical analysis in the body of Mrs. Charles Webb, wealthy society woman who died last Tuesday under allegedly mysterious circumstances, but unless something further is found the case will be dropped, Coroner Fitzgerald stated tonight.

The report of Dr. A. O. Goettler, Bellevue hospital toxicologist, has not yet been completed, but present indications are that although poison was present in the body, it was not found in sufficient quantities to cause death.

Mr. Webb, on the advice of friends, today made a statement in New York concerning the circumstances of his wife's death. He said that although he had no reason to believe she had died from any but natural causes, he would welcome any investigation to clear up the case. He also declared that despite the fact that Mrs. Webb's last will was unsigned, and therefore not valid, he would abide by the wishes expressed in it, as he believed she would have wanted him to do.

TROUBLE IN REPUBLICAN POLITICS IN INDIANA

Indianapolis, Oct. 2.—(By the A. P.)—Republican politics in Indiana were thrown into a turmoil today as a result of charges and counter charges concerning the republican central committee meeting here Monday to consider Governor Warren T. McCray's financial affairs.

A declaration by John Moorman, Knox, Ind., political adviser to Governor McCray, that yesterday's meeting was ordered by President Coolidge at the instigation of former Governor James P. Goodrich was followed by a subsequent denial by Mr. Goodrich. Mr. Goodrich in turn asserted that charges by prominent men that McCray had been guilty of actions involving the most serious consequences alone led to the meeting.

Both men issued statements, Mr. Moorman declaring that the 'nub of the whole effort to remove Governor McCray from office is the fear of republican leaders that they will be held responsible for the depression in the value of farms and farm products and they are alarmed over the effects that may follow in the wake of such a notable example as the collapse of the governor's fortune." Mr. Goodrich termed Mr. Moorman's statement as being "absolutely false." He denied discussing Mr. McCray's affairs with President Coolidge and charged Mr. Moorman and the governor in their public statements with "trying to throw dust in the eyes of the people of this state and create the impression that the meeting of the committee was simply an effort on the part of certain machine politicians to obtain control of the committee."

SEVEN DEATHS FROM HURRICANE IN ST. PIERRE

St. Pierre, Miquelon, Oct. 2.—In a gale of hurricane force that swept this region last night and today, at least seven men lost their lives and shipping suffered severely, according to reports reaching here.

The Newfoundland schooner Allan-F. Rose broke away from her anchorage and was driven on the rocks. The vessel was said to be a total loss and her crew of seven are believed to have perished.

The Auroch, while riding out the storm, broke her propeller on the rocks of the coast, but is safe. Several fishing vessels, one of them the Porto, were driven ashore. The British steamer Troutpool which stranded on Diamond Point Sunday night, broke in two during the storm. The wind was moderating tonight.

WOULD PURCHASING AGENT SAVE STATE $1,500,000 A YEAR?

Hartford, Oct. 2.—Governor Templeton stated today at the meeting of representatives of institutions and of departments at the capitol to consider the question of appointing a purchasing agent for the state, that the work of a purchasing agent would save Connecticut $15,00,000 a year, and that that sum could be used for the benefit of institutions and departments. Comptroller Frederick M. Salmon did not share the governor's views, in their entirety, in regard to the advisability of having a purchasing agent. The meeting adjourned to November 6.

Russell J. Dahlgren of Hartford and Miss Hazle Sullivan of Springfield, Mass., formerly of this city were married Tuesday morning at St. Joseph's church by Rev. O. S. Beaumister, who also sang the nuptial high mass. The attendants were Harry Sullivan of this city, brother of the bride, and Miss Margaret Heirendt of East Hampton, as maid of honor. The bride's gown was of white canton crepe. She wore a wreath and veil, she carried bride roses. The maid of honor was attired in Nile green taffeta gown with a hat to match and carried pink roses. The groom gave the best man a gold stick pin and the bride's gift to the maid of honor was a gild mesh bag. Breakfast was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Greene, 145 Main street. Guests came from Springfield, Hartford, New Haven, Meriden, Middletown, East Hampton and Willimantic. After a honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. Dahlgren will reside on Cass street, Springfield, Mass.

Mr. Dahlgren is a graduate of St. Joseph's school, this city, and of the Training school in connection with St. Joseph's Hospital, class of 1923. She has been connected with the Ludlow hospital. The groom is engaged in the plumbing business in Springfield. The bride received many handsome gifts.

Misses Evelyn and Claire Dumas, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dumas of Mansfield avenue, were tendered a surprise party recently at their home in honor of their birthdays. A lunch was served and games were played. Those present were Misses Leona and Yvonne Marrotte, Blanche and Irene Ducharme, Esther and Loraine Mansfield, Marie Rose, Lucinne and Rita Rondeau, Evelyn and Jeannete Racicot, Eileen and Mildred Smith, Claire Trembly, Ida Rosen, Evelyn Dyer, Ernestine Leona and Marie Rose Delude, Eva Marceau, Rose Nahass, Rose and Teresa Daudeuil, Lillian and Hanna Lessard, Agnes and Marie Rose Summer, Ethel and Helena Hanna, Rose and Lena Insignia, Marjorie and Lorsine Sears, Mildred Hersant, Rose Laffrie, Evelyn Durey, also Masters Paul Dumas, Clement and Raymond Racicot, Henry Marrotte, Russell Dyer, Joe Hersant and Joe Colorado.

Mrs. Adeline Welch Rouse, 91, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Catherine L. Wilcox of 214 Church street, Tuesday morning, after a lingering illness. She was the widow of Silas Rouse. She was born in Windham, April 23, 1832, and is survived by four children, Arthur D. Rouse of Warehouse Point, Mrs. F. Agnes Hyde of Greenwich, Ernest G. Rouse of New London and Mrs. Catherine L. Wilcox of Willimantic.

A local woman known to have G. O. P. tendencies put one over in grand style during the battle of votes in the town elections Monday. Members of the woman's branch of the republican party were very anxious to have the woman vote and thereby add another ballot to the good cause but the woman declined on the plea that she was too busy with her housework. An automobile was sent for her at three different times and she finally was taken to the polls. After her vote had been duly registered she was returned to her home and there she addressed the zealous suffragettes, "If you ladies are interested in how I voted, let me say that I voted a straight democratic ticket. Perhaps the next time you will let me cast my ballot as I see fit and when I see fit to do so."

With only three members absent the weekly meeting of Willimantic Rotary club took on the appearance of a house warming party Tuesday. President "Jim" Mustard presided. Howard Foster, an automobile salesman, was the guest of Maurice J. Leonard. Rev. Harry S. McCready announced the first in the series of Community Forums to be held next Sunday night. He asked for the cooperation of the Rotarians in making thme forums a success this year. District Governor Georg Cooper plans to be in Willimantic Tuesday, October 23, and the Rotarians will arrange for a banquet that evening. The members will be allowed to invite friends and special music will be provided. Upon a motion by George W. Hickey the following committee was appointed to take care of the details of the affair: John F. Ahearn, George W. Hickey Harry W. Standish, James J. Mustard, James P. Bath and Richard E. Dodge.

The Rotary Spring conference will be held April 3-4 in New Britain.

George W. Hickey, school committeeman-elect offered cigars to the members in appreciation of the support and recognition given him in Monday's election. The "non-smokers" handed their cigars to Rev. Harry McCready with directions that he smoke the weeds at the rate of one in four days or one inch a day. President Mustard read the initiation address to seven members who were later put through the ceregonies by Harry Standish. The new Rotarians are: Ellison S. Smith, Dr. M. D. Riordan, A. Linn Weatherhead, Charles B. Pomeroy, F. W. Carey, George Buck and Alfred Abee. During the initiation "Big Tim" Weatherhead broke the rules while trying to evade responsibility. "Tim" will give his life history at the next meeting as a forfeit. The meeting was then turned over to John F. Ahern of the entertainment committee, who called on seven of the members who had recent birthdays to give one minute talks. James P. Bath, George W. Hickey, Harry W. Blanchette, Ellison S. Smith, A. Linn Weatherhead, John C. Tracy and Harry W. Standish. All were born in the 19th century. The group then gathered around the piano and with bowed heads warbled "Darling I Am Growing Old."

An attendance contest will open next week and will last for three months. The meeting was followed by a session of the committees who planned the work for the ensuing season.

JEWETT CITY

Monday evening District Deputy J. F. Hennon of Jewett City installed the following officers of Very Rev. Michael McCabe Council, K. of C., for the ensuing year: Grand knight, William J. Duggan, deputy grand knight, Richard Dudkowski; chancellor, Peter Flynn; recording secretary, John Jacobs; financial secretary, John A. Hourigan; treasurer, Chester Dudkowski; lecturer, Rev. J. J. Tyler; advocate, Francis Driscoll; warden, William Wallace; trustee, Ulderic Jodoin; inside guard, Dennis Griffin; outside guard, Homer Gagnon.

After the installation, District Deputy Hennon gave an interesting talk on the work of the order. It was decided to hold a celebration in honor of Columbus Day, Thursday evening, Oct. 11th. Refreshments were served and a social hour was enjoyed.

Miss Daisy Benjamin, R. N., who has been visiting her mother in Glasgo, has returned to her duties in the hospital at Woodsville, N. H.

John Welsh, town clerk and treasurer re-elected Monday received the entire vote of Griswold, his name appearing on both tickets.

Reports on the frost that visited this section September 17, 18 and 19, prove that its damage was done in belts or spots. Ensilage corn showed it most, with two acres at one place ruined, and a patch 200 feet away not touched.

Paul Anthony is a patient in St. Joseph's hospital, Providence, to undergo a surgical operation today (Wednesday). His wife was in Providence Tuesday to visit him.

It is well to keep one's eye skinned, as it were, for wrist watches here nowadays. Three valuable ones have been found in the road in as many days.

Frank H. P. Clement, superintendent of the schools of Griswold, says, it is too bad that on account of the shortage of coal last winter the night school, that most valuable branch of Griswold's school system, had to be discontinued. He sees the need of the night school, and points out that in Jewett City with a population of 3,196, there is a large percentage of illiteracy in the native white as well as in the foreign born white. Mr. Clement says further:

The lack of a school nurse is to be deplored—the value of her work cannot be estimated. Griswold schools should have one. The teachers do all that they can in the line of health work, but they should be guided by an expert.

The health and work of the children have improved greatly since they have been required to take physical exercises every day. Exercises keep the body fit and the result of having a healthy body is to have a fit brain which is alert and "on the job."

He says the teaching force should always be kept on a high standard. To obtain and retain efficient teachers, it is necessary, to pay adequate wages—this we do not at present. We pay a flat wage to every teachers, regardless of preparation and experience. This attracts inexperienced teachers but it will not hold them because this system lacks incentive. A scale of wages is the best method of remuneration for teachers—such a scale has been completed and should be adopted.

Jewett City people are agreeably and no less certainly convinced that the day of accommodating and doing things for the other fellow is not passed. There was a delegation of 43 from the borough at Danielson Friday evening when the seats collapsed at the boxing match and Jewett City people feel grateful for the information they received from the Backus hospital, The Bulletin, the nurse at the Day-Kimball hospital and a man at the Bohemian club, Danielson, for the help given in relieving the anxiety that was felt in the borough.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

WINTER RYE CAN BE GROWN IN ALL PARTS OF COUNTRY

Winter rye is the hardiest of all cereals. It can be grown in all parts of the country, says the United States department of agriculture, but is most profitable in the northern and eastern states. Its production in the United States has increased rapidly during the past few years, due chiefly to a heavy foreign demand, high priced labor, low yields of wheat, and the development of improved varieties of rye. It is grown largely as a cash grain crop in the western half of the country, but is used also for pasture, as a green manure or nurse crop and to smother weeds.

The ordinary time for sowing winter rye in the northern part of North Dakota and Minnesota is about Sept. 1, with later dates in sections south of this. Many farmers will find it profitable to sow winter rye yet this fall, using grain stubble, corn ground, fall-plowed land, or summer fallow, if climatic conditions permit, the department believes. Sowing on grain stubble is often the most profitable because of the cheaper cost of production. The grain should be sown with a drill at the rate of four to six pecks per acre.

In the important rye-producing western states the average acre value of the rye crop is somewhat less than that of wheat. While the yields of rye usually are higher than those of wheat, the price is much less, being largely determined by the foreign markets which use most of our crop. At low prices rye cannot be grown for grain at a profit except under good management and in favored localities, the department of agriculture says. While rye makes good hay, green manure, pasture, or a nurse crop for legumes, it is not a suitable concentrated feed for livestock unless mixed with other grains. It is too heavy and sticky and is not very palatable feeding tests show. When fed in mixtures, rye has a feeding value lower than corn but nearly equal to that of barley.

USE OF PULLETS AS BREEDERS QUESTIONED BY AUTHORITY

The hatching results for the season of 1923 were very poor throughout most parts of the United States. There are doubtless a number of contributing causes and, according to Dr. M. A. Jull, in charge of poultry investigations of the United States department of agriculture, one of the causes of poor hatches has been the use from year to year of pullets as breeders.

In a general sense it is apparent that the hatchability of eggs depends upon the constitutional vigor of the breeding stock producing the eggs. If the breeders are healthy and vigorous and are kept in comfortable quarters, then the eggs should hatch well, providing the methods of incubation have been satisfactory. Taking the country as a whole, however, Dr. Jull believes that the hatching results from one season to another are not as good as might be expected.

The use of pullets as breeders may affect this situation in the following manner: The practice of using pullets as breeders frequently leads to the use of immature birds. In this way hatching results are affected because the young pullets do not seem to have the abundance of constitutional vigor possessed by older birds. Moreover, all birds as pullets usually lay a smaller egg than as yearlings. Since the size of chick hatched depends to a considerable extent upon the size of the egg producing the chick, it is obvious that, as a rule, larger chicks are produced from the eggs of yearlings. Then again, it has been a matter of common observation among poultrymen that the chicks from yearlings are usually stronger and grow better than the chicks from pullets.

Another very important matter to which poultrymen should give more attention is the influence of forced feeding on hatchability. Many flocks of pullets are fed heavily throughout the fall and winter to induce heavy egg production, and then in the hatching season the eggs from these pullets are used for incubation purposes. This is a questionable practice, says Dr. Jull, since heavy egg production is a heavy strain upon the stamina of the hen and the eggs from birds that have been fed heavily are very apt to be low in hatching quality. Finally, it would seem that all factors point to the advisability of the use of yearling birds as breeders rather than pullets.

HOW TO DEVELOP A BETTER STRAIN

The improvement of strains in poultry is one of the most important factors in poultry work and can often be carried on by the smaller poultryman to better advantage than by a large breeder for the simple reason that he can put more time on this kind of work.

There is very little use in talking about the productiveness of any particular breed or variety because the strains in these varieties vary so widely, and good strains are found in practically all breeds.

For example, in one well-known experiment extending over several years with Plymouth Rocks, great variations were noted. In this experiment, of two fowls looking equally as good, one laid 252 eggs during one year and the other failed to lay a single egg in five years. Out of a total of 600 fowls one small flock was selected in which each hen laid 200 or more eggs in a year.

In other flocks of Plymouth Rocks and other breeds there are undoubtedly fowls that will show as wide variations as these. The quality of egg production is a distinct quality that can be inherited and fowls should be raised for breeding purposes only from those showing the greatest production.

Breeding is a very fascinating occupation and all of the best strains have not by any means been discovered. They have been developed.

The poultry raiser who starts out to produce a high egg producing strain, and who keeps persistently at it over a number of years, may produce results that he cannot now dream of.

In order to be successful a great deal of attention must be given to watching the fowls and counting their eggs. The most definite and satisfactory method is to trap-nest fowls. Many poultrymen claim that by careful watching they can keep tabs on the birds without going to this trouble.

A careful selection of breeders for several generations has often been found to show an increase of practically 100 per cent. in the production of a flock.—Seth W. Shoemaker.

How to Kill Bean Weevil

The bean weevil attacks dried beans, causing great damage. The grubs found inside the bean are about an eighth of an inch long. Infestation may be caused and very often is by old beans left over in the containers used for storing purposes. Now is the time to help prevent infection for another year. See that all containers are entirely empty and clean. Then disinfect these boxes before placing them in their winter quarters.

If weevils are present in beans still in storage or new beans that are not to be used for seed, they should be fumigated to kill them. Carbon bisulphide or carbon tetrachloride is the best treatment. Saturate a sponge with this material and put inside an airtight container for one hour with the beans.

RULES FOR PROPER MIXING OF CONCRETE

One county agent says that the farmers are making concrete more and more for their construction work on the farm. The ones that use it the most are those who have the best luck in mixing it he declares. The following three fundamental requirements for good concrete construction should be helpful to anyone mixing concrete:

1. Grade the aggregate (sand and gravel.) The average bank-run gravel as it comes from the pit contains too much fine material and should be put through a 1-4 inch screen to separate the fine from the coarse. The material that goes through the screen is considered fine aggregate and the part that is too large to pass through is considered coarse aggregate. These two grades of material should be remixed with the cement in a three-term proportion, for instance 1-2-4 (1 bag of portland cement, 2 cubic feet of sand, 4 cubic feet of coarse material such as pebbles or crushed stone. This precaution makes denser concrete, increases the strength of the concrete and saves on the amount of cement required.

2. Do not make the mixture too wet and sloppy. When mixing the concrete use only enough water to make the mixture workable and plastic. An excess amount of water in the mixture reduces the resulting strength of the concrete materially. An addition of 30 per cent. more water than is necessary in the mixture reduces the strength of the concrete by 50 per cent.

3. Curing the new concrete: The hardening of concrete is not a drying out process but a chemical change which requires the presence of water. If the fresh concrete is kept moist and damp for ten days after it has been placed in the forms, it will accomplish the following: Prevent cracking, increase the strength 75 per cent. and increase the resistance to wear 65 per cent.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Joseph Goldberg of Boston, a collector of antiques, will have an opportunity to explain to town court officials this afternoon something of his methods of business, when he appears to answer to charges of theft and breach of the peace. Goldberg was arrested near South Killingly Tuesday by state police, after a telephone complaint had been received against him.

Goldberg, traveling about with a truck, did, it is alleged against him, intrude himself into a home at South Killingly, seeking for antiques and persisted in going upstairs to look about, even after he had been forbidden to do so by the woman of the house. He bargained to buy a picture and a shawl for stipulated prices and, it is charged, left less than the amount in money as he went out of the house. When he had gone it was found that two watches were missing, but these were not found in Goldberg's possession. When police came seeking Goldberg in response to the telephone call they found him at another place in the neighborhood and again the complaint was heard of his refusing the woman there to leave the premises when she ordered him to do so.

Goldberg was released until the time ordered for his appearance in court under bonds of $500, which he supplied out of a roll of several hundred dollars.

In the town court Tuesday morning, Louis Basilio of Goodyear was fined $25 and costs, but $20 of the fine was remitted, after he had been found guilty of operating his car recklessly. The machine figured in a minor accident in this town Monday evening when it was in collision with a car in which Mr. and Mrs. Julian Tattoon of Putnam and Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Williams were riding. Out of the ordinary was the misunderstanding of the Putnam people of the order of the officer of the investigating officer for the appearance in court of Basilio, and they appeared with counsel Tuesday morning prepared to defend themselves, when they were desired in court only as witnesses.

Another man who appeared in court Monday to answer to a charge of violating the motor vehicle laws by not having plates on the side of his truck showing the maximum capacity and for not having a Connecticut registration was Joseph A. Bombardier of Southbridge. He was fined $5 on each count, with costs.

Sent to jail for 180 days from the town court of Killingly on Monday was Joshua Kenyon of this town. He was arrested after having been intoxicated and threatening his wife so much as to terrify her. He was given 30 days for intoxication, 60 days for breach of the peace and 90 days for assault.

James R. Walsh, who comes into the office of tax collector as the first democrat in memory to hold the office in this town, comes into his new position not as a stranger, but as one with whom the people of the town, particularly here in Danielson, have been well acquainted for many years, both as a business man and a consistent member of his party, who has served for registrar through a period of years.

In receiving congratulations Tuesday, Mr. Walsh said he appreciated the splendid support given him in the election and that he would expend his best efforts in being worthy of the trust placed in him. Mr. Walsh will make a good tax collector. His victory Monday attests that he was an exceptionally strong candidate for the place, as he had to be to overcome the normally heavy republican majority Killingly.

Among the first of those to congratulate Mr. Walsh was the retiring collector, George A. Williams, republican. Mr. Williams goes out of office with a record of having been one of the best tax collectors Killingly has had. He has done his work efficiently and faithfully, and there is nothing in his defeat Monday that is in any way a personal repudiation. There was a widespread sentiment throughout the town against the rate of compensation fixed for the tax collector's services, as demonstrated by the vote reducing it to one-half of one per cent. at the business meeting of the town and Mr. Williams seems to have suffered at the polls through this feeling, although voting against him could not possibly serve to change the rate of pay, a matter to be considered in the business meeting, where it was finally disposed of. With a special and powerful drive being made against his candidacy by both the democrats and the citizens party Mr. Williams went down to defeat, but even as many citizens contemplate this, they give full credit to Mr. Williams for having been a very fine town official.

On the ever changing stage of life there now appears a new matter of public interest in Danielson. Some of those who listened to an address at an open air religious service in the business section last Sunday evening took offense at some of the statements made and are now seeking the prohibition of any more such open air meetings on the ground that such remarks as were included in last Sunday night's talk were offensive to many who have no quarrel with anyone's religious belief and that they tend to stir up ill feeling and unrest. Warden W. A. Burrows has been interviewed as to the proper steps to be taken for the suppression of any further such meetings and there the matter rests for the present, although the statement was heard Tuesday that such further steps as may be necessary will be ascertained and followed out in the effort to stop the meetings.

Killingly starts the new year following the election with a board of selectmen of the same personnel as that in office for the past few months. Even with six candidates in the field this year, the republicans brought through to victory their two candidates and the democrats elected one their's. Both the candidates on the citizens' ticket fell by the wayside. George A. Alvord again demonstrated that he is the strongest candidate of the democrats for selectman, as illustrated by his defeat of Alcott D. Sayles of East Killingly, who formerly was a commanding figure in his party, but again failed of election, as was the case when he last appeared as a candidate.

Just Married, the production at the Orpheum theater Tuesday evening, was proclaimed the best theatrical attraction that has been offered to Danielson theater goers in a long time, and is regarded as indicative of the class of shows that the new management will provide for the local public.

Over in Brooklyn the democrats achieved a victory at the polls Monday, electing two of the three members of the board of selectmen and placing their candidates in other important town offices. Albert Webb is the first selectman, winning with 181 votes, while Henry M. Evans, the other democratic candidate, was elected with 178 votes. Their companion on the board is J. Edward Allen, republican, who was elected with 156 votes. The defeated republican candidate was Marshall J. Frink, whose vote was 148.

The duck hunting season having opened, numbers of Danielson's sportsmen are now out as they get opportunity to test their fortunes at this form of sport.

Curbing to be set on the northerly side of Reynolds streets along the south side of Davis park has been distributed along the route where it is to be set.

J. A. Hubbard of Newton, Mass., was a visitor with friends in Danielson Tuesday.

Weekly vaudeville of quality is in store for Danielson during the fall and winter period.

L. J. Johnson of Providence was a visitor with friends in Danielson Tuesday.

Thought for the Day.

PUTNAM

Following a meeting of the town school committee, it was announced that arrangements have been made with Ralph Gibson to transport eight children from East Putnam to the sessions of the high school here. The school committee also will arrange for liability insurance to protect the town in this arrangement, as is customary. Members of the committee made generous individual contributoins to the high school athletic fund that is being established.

It was explained Tuesday that the reason why Putnam at its annual town meeting Monday did not pass a vote asking an appropriation in the usual amount of $20,000 from the state for state aid roads and maintenance was that Putnam mortgaged its allowance of this appropriation for several years in advance when it joined with the state in meeting the cost of constructing the cement roadway through Grove street. This construction cost in the neighborhood of $40,000, and the town in meeting its share of the cost used up about four years' appropriation from the state aid road funds, and that the period when Putnam will again be eligibble to share in the fund has not yet expired.

A $25 tip for Jailer Charles Parker, another tender of $15 to a waiter and some other gifts to jail attaches were numbered among the beneficences of Putnam men who have been at Brooklyn for 15 days for violations of the liquor law. The Putnam men expressed themselves as very well pleased with the kindly manner in which they were treated by Jailer Parker, and their gift to him was in appreciation of this. One of the men returned here smiled amusedly as he told of how what he described as a group of "old hens" kept watch of the jail during the first few days the Putnam men were there to report on whether the Putnam prisoners, as well as the Willimantic people who were in for like offenses, were let out to stroll about, as the gossips had it would be the case. The men were kept closely confined and while they were kindly treated they fully realized every minute of the time that they were in jail and not on a vacation trip.

Numbered among political upsets Monday, and of more general interest than many of them, was the defeat of County Commissioner E H. Corttis of the town of Thompson for re-election as tax collector. Mr. Corttis, a republican, and one of the best known of the neighboring town's citizens, was defeated by Philip Duhamel democrat, and an ex-service man, the vote being Duhamel 416, Corttis 380. The average republican majority in Thompson was about 100, but Mr. Duhamel was assisted into office with the aid of considerable strength drawn from the republican ranks.

Another neighboring town that returned its usual substantial republican majority Monday was Woodstock. The selectmen elected are Byron W. Bates and Albert H. Williams, republicans, and George A. Wetherell, democrat. Frank E. Barret again is town clerk, an office he has filled for years in that town. Oliver Hiscox, Robert Harris, republicans, and Mrs. Mary A. Hopkins, democrat, were elected members of the town school committee.

Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch of Columbia, chairman of the Connecticut Federation of Democratic Womens clubs, and Miss Margaret Cotter of Hartford, secretary, will be here today (Wednesday) for a meeting of the executive board of the state federation. The board will meet with the Putnam club at 11 o'clock this morning and the session will be open to all democratic women in towns hereabouts. The session will be followed by a lunch at Putnam inn.

The holiday period of the Feast of Tabernacles, or Succoth, which has extended from Monday of last week, came to a close Tuesday. The period has been observed by the Hebrews of this city and surrounding towns.

Mill workers in this territory who have heard and read so much during the past year of the competition of southern cotton mills will learn with interest that the cotton industry in the south has come under the control of northern mill interests through the purchase of mill company stocks in the south by New England cotton manufacturers. This move is regarded as forecasting a readjustment of manufacturing conditions in such a way as to eliminate the unfortunate competitive features that have made operating such a difficult problem for many northern mills. Shorter hours and better wages in the southern mills are expected to be among the changes made to balance up the industry and make it less hazardous everywhere throughout the country.

In Putnam the republican party, normally considered the majority party, came through Monday's election without losing any prestige. Aside from the contest for the tax collectorship, there was little real interest in the election. Any possible contests for places on the board of selectmen were eliminated by reason of the fact that the democrats named only one candidate, so that all the nominees were assured in advance of their election. Likewise, the democrats endorsed David Flagg, republican, as their candidate for town clerk.

Pomfret republicans maintained their traditional control of town politics by electing their entire ticket in Monday's election. George Hicks and Herman Danielson, republicans, and Frank Noon, democrat, make up the selectmen, while Willis Covell was elected town clerk, an office in which he has served for many years.

N. T. Light, Hartford, state director of rural education, and L. T. Garrison, regional director, will make addresses at a conference of teachers to be held in Abington Monday next. Teachers from the towns of Pomfret, Woodstock, Eastford, Union, Chaplin, Hampton, Scotland and Canterbury and Ashford will attend this institute, which will open at 10.30 a. m. It is anticipated that about 60 teachers will be in attendance. The institute is to be held in Grange hall.

Just Married, as presented at the Bradley theatre was being proclaimed here Tuesday as one of the most entertaining productions seen at the house in a long time. The company left here Tuesday morning and played in the evening at the Orpheum theatre, one of the circuit of theatres owned by the S-A Amusement company, with headquarters in this city.

Completion of the state highway from North Woodstock to the Massachusetts line to give an all-state road route to Southbridge is one of the improvements that will be urged for next year. This route is the most direct one of this territory for traffic moving into western Massachusetts and for points in the White mountains.

Mrs. Louis A. Reeves of Ravine street entertained the members of the Sunnyside club of the Baptist Sunday school Tuesday evening.

Good progress is being made this week on the job of building the new stretch of state highway through Killingly avenue.

There is an unusually large apple crop in this territory this fall, the fruit ranging in quality from the very highest through various grades down to the sour and shriveled varieties.

Duck hunters are making the most of their opportunities to enjoy being afield in advance of the general opening of the game shooting season Monday of next week.

Court City of Putnam, F. of A., which has had quarters in the downtown business section for the past quarter of a century, held its first meeting in its new quarters on Marshall street, in the northern section of Putnam, Tuesday evening. The new quarters are attractive and well arranged.

SPENDING GOVERNMENT MONEY

It is not so long to the opening of congress and interest is already whetted as to whether there is going to be a discrimination between the meeting of necessary expenditures and those that cannot be rated as such, but could be delayed without any harm being done.

Congress is invariably faced by a large list of demands for new buildings. Instead of making the best possible use of that which is possessed there is a cry for a new building, for the abandonment of the existing one and the erection of another with a different finish, for the construction of an elaborate addition. The aim is too often to get these things just because something of the kind has been done elsewhere and because it is felt that the government funds are there for the purpose of being shoveled out for such purpose.

Conditions at the capital are such that a new archives building is needed, and government owned quarters for the departments of state and justice, the internal revenue bureau and the general accounting office are sought to replace the scattered and unsatisfactory floor space now rented by the government.

It might be possible to make a beginning on such structures but the fear is expressed that it will be impossible to obtain the appropriations without putting through a general building bill that will mean the scattering of considerable sums throughout the various congressional districts. In other words in order to get necessary quarters for the conduct of the departments of the government at Washington it bids fair to be necessary to spend a vastly larger sum for projects that are not actually needed and could wait just as well as not.

If it were a fact that the government had so much money that it didn't know what to do with, a larger revenue than its expenses without collecting federal taxes and no such huge debt there are many ways in which the funds could be applied. Such, however, doesn't appear to be the case and until it is wisdom should guide the spending of that which is available.

A TENDER SPOT.

It is the natural response and one that should have been anticipated when the governor of New York tells the governor of Pennsylvania that his state is responsible in maintaining the high price of coal.

This exchange of views came about through Governor Pinchot, who was the central figure in the adjustment of the coal strike, advising the governor of New York that he should shoulder some of the responsibility for keeping the price of coal within the bounds of reason. It will be remembered that when the governor of Pennsylvania set forth his terms concerning the strike adjustment, and it was made clear that he was favorable to an increase for the miners, that he declared the increase in the cost of producing coal should be taken care of before it reached the consumer and that he would devote his best efforts to accomplish that absorption. Such difficulties stood in the way that little faith was placed in the ability of Governor Pinchot to accomplish it. And as the coal buyers know prices have advanced just as it was expected they would when the advance was granted to the miners.

As a part of the price of each ton of coal there is a tax exacted by the state of Pennsylvania. It isn't the work of Governor Pinchot but while he has been pointing out where there should be reductions made in prices, and telling what agencies ought to cut their rates or have them cut, it has not failed to be noticed that he has said nothing about the elimination of the Pennsylvania tax on coal, which has been the object of long and emphatic protest on the part of other states.

Thus when the governor of Pennsylvania attempts to shift to the shoulders of others the responsibility for keeping down the increase in the coal price that seemed certain to come, he should have anticipated that he would be called to account for the part which the Keystone state is playing and the relief which it is failing to provide and which he is in fact not urging. It may be a tender spot with Governor Pinchot but he invited the attack on it.

OIL POLLUTION.

From the conference now in session at Atlantic City for the purpose of setting forth the facts regarding the growing menace of oil pollution in harbors and along the coast some progress is to be expected in the way of crystallizing opposition even though no definite method of tackling the problem is agreed upon.

Representatives of various groups of interested parties are dealing with a new but a growing problem. They are cognisant of the harm that is being done to marine life, they recognize what a nuisance such oil and tar deposits are to the bathing beaches and they understand the danger that it threatens to shipping as a fire hazard. There can be no question but what the condition ought not to, exist, but it does and the task is to eliminate it as completely as possible and to do it without any greater delay than is absolutely necessary.

With the representatives of organizations that are in touch with the conditions and know the situation assembled there should be an airing of the problem in a fitting manner. Just what part legislative action is called for by the states as well as by congress should be determined and once a policy can be agreed upon the full force of the supporters influence should be turned in its behalf.

There can be no question but what the different states that have a coastline are fully acquainted with the situation, and it is from such that the united action that is necessary can be expected. It cannot be expected that the use of oil by steamships, or its transportation in vessels can be prevented. There is no desire for such. The aim must be to prevent the promiscuous dumping of the refuse whenever and wherever it pleases those who have it regardless of the harm that it does to others. It is a form of pollution that can be stopped more easily now than a score of years from now. Methods of handling the refuse are known to plants on land where oil and tar are discarded and more and more of them are relieving pollution by properly disposing of such material. With the proper attention devoted to it a way can be devised for dealing with this oil refuse of vessels, and the Atlantic City conference should put it well on the way.

LLOYD GEORGE'S VISIT.

After having been threatened several times this country seems to be due for a visit from Lloyd George, the British premier during the days of war and for an important period during the days of readjustment after peace was declared.

The Welsh leader who held together the coalition forces and directed vast government activities will be given a welcome. It was in cooperation with his forces that this government acted and there will be an eagerness to see and hear this statesman from across the water.

The statement is made that he comes to this country to study the manner in which we are solving certain problems. Like other prominent figures during the war his reception will unquestionably be conspicuous in the various sections of the country. Just what he will have to say remains to be disclosed. There are those who have come here for the purpose of educating this country along certain lines. They have endeavored to create support for particular views and indicate why things have been or should be done in a certain way.

Without a question Mr. Lloyd George's coming will be the more interesting because of the part that he played as a great leader of government during his best and most trying days rather than in the defense or advocacy of certain policies which have failed or not materialized.

He is one of the great political leaders who has not visited this country. He comes as an ex-premier but nevertheless a distinguished British leader and every freedom will be offered him for such study as he desires. Probably there is no more reason to expect that he will withhold his views any more than others have.

MAKING AMENDS.

Having been awarded the 50,000,000 lire by the council of ambassadors the Italian government has decided that 10,000,000 lire will be returned to Greece for the care of the Greek and Armenian orphans within that country.

This marks a decided change of attitude on the part of Mussolini. It is in marked contrast to the sending of the fleet to Corfu and the bombardment of the bathing beach where more than a dozen orphan children were killed. It displays an entirely different temperament and gives the impression that Italy is anxious to make amendments for what it has done, now that it realizes that such strong arm methods were not necessary and have not made a good impression among other nations.

Had Mussolini been prompted by the desire to be a good neighbor and to obtain justice while still refraining from a threatening attitude he would have created a far different feeling among those observing the situation. Had he even turned to the league of nations, of which Italy is a member, and sought its efforts to obtain a peaceful adjustment he would have done credit to himself and strengthened the organization of which his country is a part. Had a different course been followed there would have been no reason for making amends, no Corfu incident to live down and a better relationship with Greece would prevail.

Mussolini is not to be denied the credit of returning the 10,000,000 lire but the very fact that he takes such action indicates that he is yielding to a guilty conscience and striving to overcome an unfavorable impression that is due to no one but himself and which would have been far better had he avoided creating it.

ANOTHER DEATH BED CONFESSION

Gloria Phelps was modern from the "toppest" hair of her shining red mass of bobbed curls to the soles of the two-colored sport sandals on her prettily arched feet. Her father gloated in his daughter's modernness. "Shows she has a mind of her own," he always said. And "Gloria can't ever come to any harm, for she's just like her mother."

The newly made mother had died shortly after she had given Gloria into the father's keeping. "You'll have to watch over her, dear, and she will take my place."

Mr. Phelps was at first unconsolable at losing his one pal; but when the tiny two weeks old Gloria clasped his great fingers in her frail little hand, and looked up at him with her mother's eyes, he found he had something very precious to live for. From that time on his daughter was his only passion. Her slightest whim was granted.

And, it is no wonder that Gloria thought the world was made just for her. At times, she was all tenderness and consideration, which "showed her mother peeping out of her;" but these moods were few. There was seldom opportunity for Gloria to be other than a selfish little creature, for her father delighted in having her ways his ways, and for 19 years the daughter had full say in all matters.

Small wonder that she resented the interference of her father's new secretary. He, one Brandon Cort, had been in their employ only two weeks, when he positively forbade Gloria to intrude upon her father during the hours of 11 to 2. This was a bombshell, and when Mr. Cort started to take her father on business trips, without even consulting Gloria, the little sparks of resentment were fanned into flames of intense dislike. Some day she would put this man in his proper place!

During the summer of 1922, Mr. Phelps' interests in London took an alarming turn, and it was necessary that he go over there at once. Gloria, her old nurse, Nanette, and Mr. Cort were to accompany him. Just the day before they were to start, Gloria rushed into the forbidden room.

"Where is my father, Mr. Cort?"

"He is out of town, Miss Phelps, and will not return until late tonight."

"Oh, bother! I did so want to see him. Well, you'll just have to cancel our passage and get new ones for a week from tomorrow."

"And why?"

"Because my two new evening dresses will not be ready until next Thursday, and I shan't leave without them."

"Miss Phelps, I think you are the most selfish, self-centred girl I've ever known. If your father does not leave tomorrow, he will lose a great deal of money, and, what is more, the respect and confidence of his men in London. That is not worth satisfying the foolish whim of a girl like you. We sail tomorrow, with or without you."

Gloria's only answer was a loud bang of the door, and the quick patter of heels up the hall. "She could be such a sweet woman with the proper training," thought Brandon to himself. "But how she does flare up!" He whistled, and smiled, then busied himself at his work.

Next morning Gloria, with Nanette, appeared all ready for the voyage, and nothing was said of the interview of the day before.

"Wonder what trump card she has up her sleeve," thought Brandon.

Mr. Phelps took to his stateroom immediately, and Gloria was left to the mercies of Mr. Cort. He proved to be an excellent sailing partner, and saw that Gloria wanted for nothing. At times he was as tender and as anxious to gratify her every wish as her father would have been.

"He really is human, after all," was Gloria's explanation of the change in his manner toward her. "Well, I'll bury the hatchet for the time being."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Eleanora Duse, Italy's famous tragedienne who is soon to begin a professional tour of America after some years' retirement from the stage, today enters upon her sixty-fifth year. The life of the great actress has been a tragedy in itself. Her path to fame was rough and thorns lined the way. She was born on a railway train between Padua and Venice, her parents being strolling players. Her girlhood was spent in squalor, her one problem being how to get enough to eat. At thirteen she was put on the stage to earn a living. She earned little and ate little, and her existance was one of unending slavery. Then came a manager who saw in the little girl the spark of genius. Under his management the young actress gained fame. Afterward he married her, but the union proved unhappy and the couple separated. But the fame of Mme. Duse was established and soon her genius was recognized in France, England and other countries as well as in her native Italy. She has made several tours of America, the first in 1893.

SOUTH RHODESIA

South Rhodesia, to which Great Britain has just granted the right of self-government, was expected to be a second Rand but has turned out a South African Kansas, observes a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"At present South Rhodesia has a government like none other in the world. It discloses the only instance where a great corporation, the British South African company, governs a vast and populous country in which a considerable white population is actively engaged in business, politics and farming. Hitherto and elsewhere that form of government has been reserved for native, and usually backward, peoples.

"The country's future status came up automatically at this time under the charter granted by Victoria at the behest of Cecil Rhodes, which charter provided that at the end of 25 years, or at the end of any subsequent 10-year period, it might be renewed, altered or annulled. The quarter century expired in 1914, when it was reaffirmed. Discussions about action to be taken in 1924 brought the announcement that the country is to join the family of British states.

"It is hard to realize how far South Africa has emerged from a 'dark continent' status; and South Rhodesia's rise has been kaleidoscopic. Should an airplane land you today at its metropolis, Bulawayo, you might be invited to lecture about your trip before a group of gentlemen in evening dress. You would find the conveniences of a modern hostelry in Bulawayos big hotel.

"Stroll down a broad, paved, electric-lighted street, however, and you would encounter many natives, peaceable and nearly nude. Less than 50 years ago the blood-thirsty Lobengula held sway here over the warlike Matabeles. This crochety chief had an idea that a pain could be cured by the sacrifice of a head from any chance passerby. And he seemed to have as many pains as a highly civilized hypochondriac.

"With the finesse of a William Penn, Cecil Rhodes bought the mining rights to Lobengula's domain for a monthly pension, a thousand rifles and some ammunition. But the empire builder's most famous exploit occurred many years later in this, his namesake colony. After a native outbreak was put down by Lord Plumer and 800 soldiers the tribesmen took to the Matopos mountains. Thither marched Rhodes, with only two companions, unarmed, and camped along the hills until he had interviewed every chief and concluded a peace. For two months he remained, surrounded by fierce, bloodthirsty savages.

"While in these mountains on that precarious mission Rhodes is said to have selected the site of his world-famous burial place, which he called 'the view of the world.' Between two great boulders is the mountain-top 'Here Lie the Remains of Cecil John Rhodes.'

"A second grave, that of Dr. Jameson, recalls the occasion when this 'slight, bald, mild little man' led his heroic handful of men against the Matabeles at Bulawayo. There the savage horde made their last stand after a series of forays against settlers. Jameson wired Rhodes for advice and got the laconic reply, 'Read Luke, fourteen, thirty-one.'

"Jameson sent for a missionary Bible and found this injunction, 'Or what king, going to make war against another king, sitteth not down first, and consulteth whether he may be able with ten thousand to meet him that cometh against him with twenty thousand.' Jameson wired back, in substance, 'All right I have read it,' and then planted the British flag firmly in Bulawayo and crushed Lobengula's power.

"Everybody knows, in an academic way, of South Rhodesia's great natural spectacle, the Victoria Falls. Glibly reciting its dimensions—a mile wide and from 250 to nearly 350 feet high—means little. The imaginative person might stand on Capitol Hill in Washington, look at the capitol's dome and try to visualize a sheet of water higher than that dome extending all the way from the capitol, down Pennsylvania avenue, to the White House.

"Even then he would miss the roar audible ten miles away and the feel of the mist which carries almost as far. And the spectacle of this great water volume hurling off through a 100 foot outlet into a yawning gorge that winds away for forty miles. And the bridge over this gorge at nearly 400 feet above the water level.

"The many-sided Cecil Rhodes had an eye for publicity. It was he who insisted that the bridge should be built near enough to the falls so the spray would wet the cars as trains rolled by. Engineers told him 'no,' as they told Harriman when he proposed his 'wild scheme' of a bridge across Great Salt Lake. Both Rhodes and Harriman had their way.

"But in his hope for South Rhodesia's future Rhodes was mistaken. The colony prospered but not from the mines, as Rhodes expected. Instead farming and grazing lands are the magnets which drew the 33,000 white men to this remote area; enough, even with nearly 800,000 natives, to be given the reins of government."

Makes Cooking Easy

You can cook everything on this menu all at once with a Gold Medal Glenwood

NOT even a dinner party has any terrors for a Gold Medal Glenwood. With its three capacious ovens, four covers for coal and five gas burners, it can do all the cooking that any one person can take care of.

See, for instance, how this range would make it easy to get ready every item on this dinner menu:

1. Soup—on a gas burner.
2. Steak—in the gas broiler.
3. Potatoes—on a coal cover.
4. Peas—on a gas burner.
5. Stewed Tomatoes—on a gas burner.
6. Pie—in the coal oven.
7. Hot Biscuits—in the gas oven.
8. Coffee—on a coal cover.

—and there's still room for the tea kettle.

A Gold Medal Glenwood is actually two ranges in one. Each section is completely equipped with every modern device to save time and trouble. Finished in ebony black or pearl-grey porcelain enamel. It really does make cooking easy.

OBITUARY

Francis E. Beckwith.

The sudden death of Francis E. Beckwith occurred Monday night about 9.30 o'clock with heart trouble after he had retired for the night, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Ford, East Great Plain, with whom he had lived for the past 23 years. Mr. Beckwith had appeared in his usual good health and was about the city on Saturday. He was a descendant of Matthew Beckwith of Yorkshire, Eng., who located in Hartford in 1646 and later lived in New London and Lyme.

Francis E. Beckwith was born in East Lyme, March 22, 1843. At the age of 10 years he went to live with his grandfather and resided with him for eight years. He attended the district schools and in his early life took up farming. Later he learned the carpenter's trade with his uncle, John L. Beckwith. The first year of his apprenticeship his wages were $25 a year with board. In the second year he received $35 and board and the third year $65 and board.

On September 9, 1862, he enlisted in Company C, 26th Connecticut Volunteers, and was mustered into the United States service November 10, of the same year. He went with the regiment to Camp Buckingham, Centerville, L. I., the regiment remaining there until Dec. 4, 1862, when as a part of General Banks' forces it embarked on the steamer Empire City for New Orleans. The regiment served in the defenses of New Orleans and in the expedition against Port Hudson which surrendered July 8, 1863. The 26th remained on guard duty at Fort Hudson and Mr. Beckwith served with it until it was mustered out of the service August 17, 1863.

Mr. Beckwith then returned to East Lyme and completed the remaining two years of his apprenticeship as a carpenter and came to Norwich in 1867. He was employed from then until 1887 as a journeyman carpenter by Mr. Manwarring, a well known contractor of that time. Leaving Mr. Manwarring's employ, he entered business for himself as a contractor with remarkable success. Among the buildings which he constructed are the Mahoney block on West Main street, Bushnell chapel at the Central Baptist church and the addition to the Otis library. Mr. Beckwith also dealt in real estate.

In 1865 Mr. Beckwith was united in marriage with Erastus N. Beach, post-humous daughter of Erastus N. Beach of Waterford. Her death occurred November 27, 1899. Mr. and Mrs. Beckwith had one child, Jennie E. Beckwith, a talented musician, who married Henry B. Osgood, manager of a large number of agents in Oshkosh, Wis.

In his political views Mr. Beckwith was a staunch republican. Fraternally he was a member of Sedgwick Post, No. 1 G. A. R. in which he had held every chair except that of commander. He was a 32d degree Mason and was a member of Sphinx Temple, Mystic Shrine, and also was a member of Norwich Lodge, A. O. U. W. He was a member of the Central Baptist church, taking great interest in church affairs and was a member of the 26 th Regimental association, Conn. Vol.

He was a man of fine character, upright, honest and a true friend. His passing removed another of the civil war veterans whose ranks are fast thinning.

POSTAL SURVEY INDICATES MORE HELP NEEDED AT NORWICH OFFICE

Forty-two new members were elected to the Norwich Chamber of Commerce at a meeting of the directors at noon Tuesday, when President H. M. Laron presided. The new members have been secured by a quiet four-day canvass conducted by the directors, which was the first campaign held for four years. The following were voted in: J. D. Aiken, R. Alexander, Nelson J. Ayling, G. M. Beardow, Rev. U. O. Bellerose, Belt Bros., Walter N. Block, Charles R. Butts, Butts Art & Gift Shop, Herbert B. Cary, Community Bake Shoppe, A. Cramer, Fred A. Dugas, Eagle Clothing Co., William R. Frisbie, Charles Jacobson, Kadish Bros., George A. Keppler, M. Frank Leonard, Harry Lahn, Theodore Lowenberger, Joseph Marchessault, Maurice Sample Shop, Max Gordon Corp. (2 new members), Motor Mart, Dr. Martin E. Mullen, T. C. Murphy, National Clothing Co., New England Equity Corp., Norwich Building & Loan, A. E. Pingree, Princess Shop, Harold T. Robinson, Edwin Boss, Savard Bros., R. S. Stephenson, Leopold Schidler, Arthur Story, Woquonnoc Discount Co., A. Werman, Charles D. White, Clifford E. Wilson, James E. Young & Sons.

In conjunction with an investigation into the postal service in Connecticut, which the state chamber of commerce is making, the directors considered the mail service in Norwich. According to information supplied the chamber, in 1915 there were 21 carriers and 15 clerks in the Norwich post office. The total business transacted in 1915 amounted to $75,-000, while this year it will be close to $120,000. There is an average C. O. D. parcel post of 80 pieces a day and work of the money order and registry departments have increased in proportion. In addition to this there are several sections in the city limits that are not covered by the carriers because the necessary authorization has not been forthcoming from Washington. The working force of 21 carriers and 15 clerks still remains the same, and it was considered that the service for Norwich would demand at least two extra clerks and two extra carriers to give the people of Norwich the service that should be theirs.

Plans were also discussed for the election of six new directors. The election is conducted by a primary and final election which is the most direct method of conducting an election of this kind. The directors whose term expires this year are James L. Case, W. H. Cruickshank, Grosvenor Ely, J. C. Macpherson, C. D. Noyes and F. B. Ricketson. According to an amendment of the by-lawe, no director can be re-elected to succeed himself, but is eligible again after a year's intermission. The six directors who hold over are, Dr. H. B. Campbell, E. LaRue Bliven, President H. M. Laron, C. A. Saxton, A. L. Peale and J. N. Weymouth.

Attention was called to the better train service that has been secured for Norwich, as indicated by the new time table just issued. Such better passenger service has been largely the result of the efforts of the chamber of commerce. For the first time in several years good connections can now be made from Norwich for Boston, New York and other important cities. The train formerly leaving Norwich at 10.45 a. m. for New London and which made no connections is now superseded by an express train from Norwich to New London, leaving Norwich at 11.03 and connecting in New London for New York at 11.40 and Boston at 11.47. In the same manner the afternoon schedule has been rearranged so that now Norwich has a train leaving here at 2.56 p. m. which connects for New York at New London at 3.43 and for Boston at 4.09.

The New Haven railroad, however, did not meet the wishes of the chamber of commerce in the matter of a night train from New London to this city, but the matter has not been dropped by the chamber of commerce officials.

It is also to be noted that the local railroad ticket office is now open on Sundays for the benefit of patrons desiring to purchase tickets on that day. For about a year the railroad closed the local office on Sunday.

LORETTA HIGGINS TO SING WITH NEW YORK SYMPHONY

Loretta Higgins, who, under the management of Robert Kellogg, will open her Connecticut concert engagements in this city under the auspices of the Rotary club and who will be heard in Hartford under the auspices of the Lion's Club, spent the past week in New York where she has had interviews with many important persons in the musical world. Damrosch heard her sing last Monday and has promised her the first opportunity his schedule will permit to appear with the New York Symphony orchestra. Mr. Damrosch arranged for her to sing for Gatti-Casazza, director general of the Metropolitan Opera company, but Miss Higgins feels that for the present at least her greatest opportunity lies in Europe where she already has a three-year contract with the Opera Comique company in Paris.

In her Norwich concert one of her numbers will be a new song written and dedicated to her by Frederick Vangerpool of New York. Miss Higgins sang for her first records for a well known producer while she was in New York and was a guest at the beautiful home of Mrs. George Lee Braedy at East Hampton L. I.

She returned Monday to her home in this city where she will be until after her Norwich concert.

AUSPICIOUS OPENING FOR MUSIC ASSOCIATION SEASON

The Norwich Music association opened its season Monday evening at Slater hall annex with Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Dittler of New York in a recital for violin and piano. The audience of 250 gave an enthusiastic reception to the artistic program presented, which began with Cesar Franck's Sonata in A major for violin and piano. This was interpreted with a fine conception of the composer's work. Mr. and Mrs. Dittler played in sympathy and accord that was notable and cordially recognized in the applause that they received.

In his first group for the violin, which was nearly all double-stop work, Mr. Dittler charmed his audience, and throughout he displayed marked certainty of tone and touch and admirable technique. Mrs. Dittler proved herself an accomplished student of Chopin, fluent in phrasing and playing with wonderful touch and delightful tone.

The concert made an auspicious opening for the association's season.

YANKS RULE FAVORITE IN FINANCIAL CIRCLES

New York, Oct. 2.—The New York Yankees, despite their defeats at the hands of the Giants in the last two world's series, have been established as slight favorites in financial circles for the 1923 diamond classic. Several wagers were recorded in Wall street today at odds of 6 to 5 and 11 to 10 on the American League champions.

As indicative of interest in the series, it was predicted that speculation this year would equal, if not exceed all previous records.

FAVORITES WIN EASILY IN FIRST ROUND OF PLAY

Rye N. Y., Oct. 2.—(By the A. P.)—In a gentle zephyr that followed the gales of yesterday and brought the finest sort of golf the first round of the women's national championship was played today over the undulating course of the Westchester-Biltmore country club, resulting in easy victories for Miss Glenna Collett, the defending champion, Miss Alexa Stirling, her chief rival, and other stars There were but two upsets, the defeat of Miss Louise Fordyce, of Youngstown, the Ohio champion and of Miss K. Gorman, of Parkersburg, West Virginia's titleholder.

The golf of Miss Collett and Miss Stirling was of the first water and was not equalled by any other player excepting Miss Edith Cummings, of the Onwentsia club of Chicago. There were few faults noticeable in the game of any of this trio. Long off the tee, excellent with their irons and up to the standard in their putting they were well up on their opponents all the way round.

Miss Collett defeated Mrs. Fred C. Letts, one of the keenest match players in the tournament, 4 and 3.

Miss Stirling won five and four from Miss Marjorie Anable, of Montreal, one of the leading women players of Canada and turned in a nine medal card in doing so. Miss Cummings won, 5 and 4, from Mrs. Quintin Feltner, of New York, a veteran tournament player.

Miss Miriam Burns, of Kansas City, the western champion, was taken to the eighteenth hole before she defeated Miss Berenice Wall, of Oshkosh, Wis., 1 up. Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd won at the nineteenth hole from Miss Bessie Fenn, Poland Springs, Me. The defeat of Miss Fordyce was the great surprise of the round. She was at the height of her game on the outward journey and made the turn three up on Miss Faust, of St. Louis. After all was even at the 18th tee bad luck cost her the 18th and deciding hole, missing a 15 foot putt for a halve.

Mrs. Melvin Jones, of Chicago eliminated the West Virginian, Miss Gorman, at the 18th, one up. Miss Maureen Orcutt, the sixteen year old flaxen haired miss from the White Beeches club played brilliantly against Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck, of Philadelphia, but lost one up.

In the upper half of the second round Miss Stirling will meet Miss Burns, Mrs. R. H. Barlow will meet Mrs. Melvin Jones, Miss Georgiana Bishop will play Mrs. E. H. Goss and Mrs. Norman N. Toerge will meet Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd.

In the lower bracket, Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck is against Mrs. Jack Ronwick; Miss Collett against Miss Dorothy Higbie; Miss Edith Leitch against Mrs. H. Blumenthal and Miss Cummings against Miss Faust.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 2.—(By The A. P.)—Ethelinda, owned by the Goodtime stable of Goshen, N. Y., and driven by Walter Cox won the Kentucky Futurity, feature of today's Grand Circuit programme, after one of the most sensational races ever trotted in the event. Hollyrood Leonard took the first heat in 2.05 1-2. The Senator took the second in 2.03 1-2, equalling the record for the stake and the world's record for three-year-old trotter stallions. Ethelinda won the third heat also in 2.03 1-2 and the final in 2.07 1-4, leading all the way in the last heat.

The unfinished Walnut Hall cup race was comparatively easy for Favorian. Only he and Clyde the Great were eligible to start in the final heat raced today.

The 2.06 trot was comparatively easy for Mrs. Yerkes and Hal Malone had little trouble in disposing of the 2.02 pacers. War Bride was an easy winner in the 2.14 pace.

RACE BETWEEN ZEO AND MY OWN FOR CHANCE TO MEET PAPYRUS UNLIKELY

New York, Oct. 2.—(By the A. P.)—All prospects of a meeting between My Own and Zev next Saturday to determine which shall carry America's colors in the $100,000 international race against Papyrus virtually disappeared today when the Jockey Club's race committee in the face of a deadlock between the rival owners over distance abandoned further efforts to arrange a final tryout.

Harry F. Sinclair, owner of Zev, added his final word to the controversy today when he declared the Rancocas colt would not be permitted to race My Own at a mile and a half because of the horse's recent foot injury. Also, Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, owner of My Own who last night rejected the proposal of Zev's owner for a race at a mile and a half on eighth declined to alter his stand in favor of the long distance, which is the same as that for the international race.

Major August Belmont, chairman of the race committee, it was said, My Own, at a mile and a half, will do so after October 20, regardless of which is chosen to oppose Papyrus, Mr. Sinclair declared in his statement today. The Rancocas owner said he would agree to such a contest on Admiral Grayson's own terms.

This the Jockey Club, in all likelihood, will be forced to make its choice between the two thoroughbreds without a final test, and in turf circles here today it was regarded as practically a certainty that Zev would be accorded the honor of opposing Papyrus, the English derby winner. Color to this view was given by the statement of Major Belmont, last night, in connection with the proposed final trial in which he pointed out that Zev, in winning the Lawrence Realization first official tryout, had made a more impressive showing than did My Own in capturing the second test, the national sweepstakes.

There were reports that the Jockey Club had already reached a decision in favor of Zev but this was denied by Major Belmont who declared that the selection would not be made until next Saturday, October 6. Under the agreement with Ben Irish, owner of Papyrus.

Zev, while not prepared now to race My Own, at a mile and a half, will do so after October 20, regardless of which is chosen to oppose Papyrus, Mr. Sinclair declared in his statement today. The Rancocas owner said he would agree to such a contest on Admiral Grayson's own terms.

FREE FORESTERS MAKE 35 RUNS IN FIRST DAY

Philadelphia, Oct. 2.—The Free Foresters of Great Britain piled up 357 runs against the All-Philadelphia Cricket team today in the first innings of a two-day match. Half a dozen Philadelphia bowlers worked their arms numb trying to stop the barrage of hits.

WITHDRAWING FROM THE FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM

Washington, Oct. 2.—National banks in increasing numbers are withdrawing from the federal reserve system and obtaining state charters so as to engage in the branch banking business, Governor Crissinger of the federal reserve board testified today before the congressional commission inquiring into the reasons for the failure of state banks and trust companies to join the federal reserve system.

Unless congress authorizes national banks to engage in branch banking, Mr. Crissinger said, the national and federal reserve banking systems will be further weakened by withdrawals.

He proposed that such branch banking be confined to the cities within which the national banks are located, but Vice Governor Platt told the commission these banks should be authorized to establish branches throughout a state where state banks were permitted to do so.

Governor Crissinger also urged that national banks be allowed to do a general departmental banking business like that engaged in by trust companies and savings banks, but under a requirement that the savings accounts be segregated. Mr. Platt recommended an amendment to the Clayton anti-trust act to permit not to exceed three banks to have interlocking directorates, asserting that the present law against such directorates was operating to the disadvantage of the federal reserve system.

DECISION BY ADMIRALTY COURT OF CANADA

Montreal, Oct. 2.—The admiralty court today held that it has no jurisdiction over a foreign-owned vessel used in exporting goods.

The decision was handed down in the case of the Harris Abattoirs company, Limited, which sought to recover $2,577 from the United States shipping board because the latter's vessel, the Aledo, delayed sailing for nine days in July, 1922, thereby destroying the value of a quantity of cheese shipped on her by the company.

SUES FOR $10,000 FOR INJURIES BY AUTOMOBILE

Three new cases, including a $10,000 damage action, have been filed in the superior court office in this city, all returnable before the first Tuesday in October. Mary Palenca, a minor, of Stonington, has sued, through Andrew Palenca, Cyrus F. Mitchell of Stonington for damages of $10,000 as a result of accident in Mystic. The plaintiff claims that while she was crossing Greenmanville avenue in Mystic, she was hit and knocked down by an automobile owned and operated by the defendant.

It is claimed by the plaintiff that the defendant slid his automobile 30 feet and 7 inches over the ground after the brakes had been applied, this tending to show that he was driving at a reckless rate of speed. The girl had her collarbone broken and suffered painful bruises.

Edith Jackson Harold of Groton has filed suit for divorce against Walter J. Harold, now of Providence. The suit is brought on grounds of desertion since Sept. 1, 1913. The couple were married May 29, 1903. There is one minor daughter.

On grounds of cruelty Lottie Young Rcray of New London is suing Ralph Roray of New Haven for divorce. The couple were married May 29, 1923, and cruelty since April 1st is alleged. The plaintiff asks permission to resume her maiden name.

SCOUT EXECUTIVE BENTON RETURNS FROM KENNEBAGO

Fifty-five Scout Executives and Councilmen met for the past week at Kennebago Lake House, Maine, for a conference and study of the Scout program, and all returned with a feeling of renewed ambition and determination to give to the work more definite and organized activity in all lines. Dr. Geo. J. Fisher, Deputy Chief Scout Executive, Arthur Schuck, Financial Expert, L. L. McDonald, National Camp Director and Fernie Barclay, of the Educational department all of the National Office were present part or all the time. Mr. Barclay was decorated with the Legion of Honor Medal while reorganizing the Boy Scouts in France since the war and gave the men much to thing about along educational lines. Other noted men present were: Mr. Parsons, Commissioner of Forestry for Maine, Robert H. Hale, Camp Inspector of Boston, Regional Executive Roy N. Berry of Boston, accompanied by H. W. Wikel, Deputy and a number of Maine guides virile men of the Bill Sewall type. The Executives were pleasantly located in a group of log cabins belonging to the Kennebago Lake Hose Company and met together for conference in a large hall nearby.

Financial policy, boy leadership, Scout program were discussed by the leaders and the Executives at the forenoon and evening session and outdoor Scouting was practised outside during the afternoons. Hiking, Camping, cooking, fishing and nature study was studied first hand.

The valuable knowledge of the guides was taken advantage of at these times and Harry Jordan, a veteran lumberman and real man gave constant instruction in handicraft and woodcraft that was invaluable to a Scout. He taught the men to make bows, arrows, baskets, pack berries and other things from the materials at hand. It is expected that his services will be secured for a part of the camping period at Tippecan next summer, and the Norwich Scouts will be fortunate indeed if he come. Negotiations are under way now to secure his valuable instruction.

Each evening a group of men selected to dramatize a Scout function or activity which gave practical demonstration of Scout procedure and incidentally caused a great deal of fun. Mr. Benton conducted one evening a Scout Investiture. Twelve executives from Connecticut formed the Troop and put the candidates through the tenderfoot initiation.

During the recreational periods opportunities were plentiful for trout fishing and study of the Maine woods. Many trout were caught by all holding licenses. Mr. Benton returned by automobile, motoring down from the Rangely Lakes through the White Mountains, past Mount Washington, the Old Man of the Mountain, Franconia Notch, Echo Lake, Lost River, Bretton Woods, and other noted points of interest.

On the way north the Mohawk Indian Village was visited and the Merit Badge Booth "Bee Keeping & Insect Life" was very ably set up and demonstrated by William Latham. Bill received recognition as being the second most popular Scout there, and did credit to the Norwich Council.

The Kennebako Conference closed Friday and most of the Connecticut men returned by automobile.

Sunday Service at Y. M. C. A.

The parlors were filled to overflowing with a mixed audience Sunday afternoon at the 4 o'clock meeting at the local Y. M. C. A.

After the singing of several hymns, scripture reading and prayer and pleasing solos by Hugh Kinder, the closing part of the "Life of Moses," was shown in moving pictures; these included Moses receiving the law from Jehovah on the mount, the casting down of the golden calf, the consecration of Aaron and the death of Moses. Following the pictures on Moses, a short reel on "Love One Another" was shown and one on Jephta's Daughter. These were impressive and helpful. Between the reels, Secretary Hill gave a brief talk, and among other things said:

"I want to speak briefly on the thought of reverence and respect. We noticed the deep reverence displayed all through the story of Moses, how he often led his people in prayer for God's help, and then was equally reverent in his prayer of gratitude, our prayers are too often prayers for favors from God, and too often we seem to forget to say "thank you" to Him; we should include more of the expression of gratitude in our prayers, for God is ever so gracious to us at all times. We should reverence the church, the Bible and we certainly should show due reverence for all things holy. We should respect our bodies for they are "the temples of the Holy Ghost" and we should therefore keep them pure and clean. We should reverence some things and some persons, and we should show due respect for others, and grant them their rights. There is one personage whom we should have both reverence and respect for, and that is no less than the great Christ of God; He demands and properly so, our complete respect and our devoted reverence. We will respect and reverence Him if we keep in mind what He has done for us, in suffering and dying on the cross that we might be redeemed. May God grant that every one of us may live as though we appreciated His sacrifice and God forbid that any one of us shall ever cast reflection on His name.

Emmett J. Fritz operated the moving picture machine.

DISHRAG PRINCE'S WIFE AT WOMEN'S STATE FARM

Lillian Wilkomerson Van de Vere, wife of Reginald M. Van de Vere of Hartford, also known in New York and this state as Harold Schwarm, alias the Dishrag Prince, was committed to the state farm for women at East Lyme by Judge Day in Hartford Saturday. Her co-partner came a short time after her husband had been sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $25 and costs for the theft of goods from the store of Wise, Smith & Co., following unsuccessful efforts on her part to shield her husband from complicity in the thieving by shouldering the entire blame herself.

As the result of a protest by the Monroe County W. C. T. U., Mayor Clarence D. VanZandt of Rochester, N. Y., has ordered "Black Oxen" a novel by Gertrude Atherton, removed from the shelves of all the public libraries in the city.

SOUND TESTIMONIAL EVIDENCE

showing the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the ills of women is constantly being published in this paper. The strongest recommendation any article can have is that borne by the persons who use it. Once ill with ailments that caused suffering and despair, but now restored to the joys of health, from a grateful heart multitudes of women write letters of appreciation to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. of Lynn, Mass. Such evidence of the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the ills of women should induce every suffering woman to try it.

George A. Necery has sold a two-family dwelling house and lot on Spring street to Michael and Mary Pawlicki, of Montville.

Daniel S. Marsh Jr., has sold the six car garage, barn and shed and land upon which the structures are situated on Bayonet street to Samuel Freeman.

Capt. and Mrs. James F. Smith have purchased from Mrs. Annie Gilbey the house, 16 Spring street, where they have made their home several years.

During the year ending September 30th the New London fire department responded to 220 alarms of fire. Of this number sixty-two were bell alarms, the remaining 152 being still alarms. Ten of the latter calls were from towns adjacent to New London asking for assistance in combatting flames.

It is planned to expend about $10,000 on improvements at St. Mary's cemetery within a short time, as announced today by Rev. Dr. T. M. Crowley, rector. The money is to be raised by subscription and will be expended on laying out 100 new lots and the general grading and improvement of the cemetery, including the laying of walks.

Rev. T. M. Crowley, rector of St. Mary's church, has replied to State's Attorney Hull in the following letter:

"A simple question prompted by an honest motive seems to have caused considerable misunderstanding.

"First, then, I am not opposed to Sergeant Hick being paid for his services. On the contrary I have many times contended that if he gives service he should be compensated.

"Secondly, I do not desire to pose as curtailing the powers of State Attorney Hull. As a matter of fact, I do not know just how extensive those powers are and so any attempt on my part to restrain the activities of our very efficient state attorney would only make me appear ridiculous.

"Thirdly, I have no intention of putting any obstacle in the way of checking the bootlegger. As far as stopping the pernicious activity of the bootlegger is concerned, I can very cheerfully comply with Mr. Hull's request, "May I appeal to you for the mighty aid a word from you can give?"

"I simply want to know who pays the bills, the city or the state, when the work is done entirely outside the city. Only this and nothing more."

In the police court today Morris Kaplan, who conducts a shoe repairing shop at 19 Bank street, was fined $100 for owning and keeping at his place of business certain spirituous and intoxicating liquor with the intent to sell them. The police went to the Kaplan place last evening and there found a pint of whiskey in Kaplan's coat which hung on the wall. Arthur bottle had less than half a pint in it. Officers Graham and Leyden had a search warrant and they made a pretty thorough search of the place. Kaplan was very positive that he did not sell, but the police followed the directions of their informant and found what they sought. Kaplan has some four or five children and has not been prosperous in his business, he says. Judge Prince imposed the fine stated and Kaplan paid it, through his brother.

Napoleon Cade, who said he was a carpenter and came from Holyoke to look for work here, was found helplessly drunk on Howard street yesterday. He was taken into custody and today admitted that he was very drunk when he was found. He was given a chance to get out of town or be brought before the court again if found here tomorrow.

Fred Bilo attended the performance at a local theatre but was drunk and soon fell asleep. There he remained till he was lifted out bodily and locked up. At the time for closing the house Bilo was asleep in a seat. To arouse him he was shaken and yelled at but that method had no effect, so a couple of police officers carried him to the patrol wagon. He said today that he was a railroad worker at Midway. To get rid of him the court suspended judgment and told Bilo to leave the town never to come back, unless he was free from liquor when he again appeared.

New London lodge of Elks will inaugurate the fall season Thursday evening with a "feed" and a program of entertainment. There is to be initiatory work also.

Patrolmen Patrick Sheehan and Clarence Wells are having two weeks vacation.

Miss Phyllis Hankey, daughter of Attorney and Mrs. Philip Z. Hankey, has entered the Gateway school, New Haven.

Mrs. Anna Barnow and daughter, Dorothy, of New York, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Schwartz.

The police, headed by Detective Sergeant Charles Hammond, visited the store of a Polish merchant on North Bank street this afternoon, for the officers had been informed that liquor was on the premises and intended for sale. Armed with a search warrant Sergeant Hammond and six patrolmen swooped down on the place, and made a thorough and systematic search, but no evidence of liquor was obtained.

Peter Truken, a Waterford farmer, was before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton in Waterford this morning, charged with cruelty to animals and breach of the peace. The latter charge was nolled, but Truken was fined $10 and costs on the cruelty to animals charge and as a result was forced to pay $29.87.

Truken went to the farm of Carl Reynolds yesterday afternoon and purchased a load of apples. After the fruit had been placed in barrels and loaded upon the wagon Truken started to drive home. While going along the highway Truken is alleged to have become enraged because of his horse not being inclined to run and applied the whip to the beast in such a vigorous manner that the attention of Miss Elizabeth Gatter was called to Truken's action. Miss Gatter investigated and the animal showed the marks of having been beaten. She remonstrated with Truken and received a volley of abuse. Miss Gatter then sought the assistance of Humane Agent John Sweezy of New London and the latter turned the case over to State Policeman J. K. Palmer who took Truken into custody.

The police who have been on duty at several places in the business section of the city the past three weeks where it was suspected that liquor was being sold, have been called off and as a result none of the places that had an officer stationed at their entrances or in the building, are now guarded by the police. Since the police were stationed at these places, six or seven of them, no evidence that liquor was dispensed at any of them was obtained, although two places went out of business, being altered to conform to business of another nature.

One of the city's large water mains on Bank street burst tonight and as a result that part of the city in the vicinity of Bank and Shaw streets and Montauk avenue, was without water supply for several hours. The main burst shortly after 8 o'clock and when the water left the broken pipe a deluge was emptied into Bank street, near the corner of Shaw. The water and sewer department was notified. In order to make repairs the water in that section of the city was shut off and it was not until nearly midnight that repairs were completed.

The Aben Hardware company store at 78 Bank street appears to be marked by crooks. A crook entered the place during today and stole a Spanish No. 25 automatic revolver. The theft was not discovered until the place was closed this evening when a report of the gun theft was made to the police.

Mrs. Edna Weaver Manwaring, proprietor of the Oswegatchie House, Waterford, was arrested by state police several weeks ago, charged with violation of the liquor law in selling drinks of alcoholic contents at the fashionable summer place. She was not tried at the September term of the superior court because of an abcess appearing in her throat and she is now a patient at Lawrence hospital, was operated upon Saturday, it became known today, for the removal of her tonsils. At the institution this evening it was stated that Mrs. Manwaring was getting along well.

As a result of Sergeant Samuel Hick, who with Patrolman Frank Philopena has been assigned to special work, chasing bootleggers and watching for illegal sellers of whiskey on orders of State's Attorney Hull, having taken an officer from his beat, a week ago, without consulting the desk sergeant at the police station, Captain Charles A. Pinney today instructed Sergeant Hick that in the future if the sergeant desired any assistance to make arrests or raids, the sergeant should make application for such men as needed at the police station. Sergeant Hick while performing the special line of work is not performing the duty of street sergeant and as long as he is working under orders of the state's attorney Sergeant Hick has no authority over the members of the New London force and the patrolmen are not held responsible to him.

POETRY

OCTOBER'S BRIGHT BLUE WEATHER

O suns and skies and clouds of June
And flowers of June together,
Ye cannot rival for one hour,
October's bright blue weather.

When loud the bumblebee makes haste,
Belated, thriftless vagrant,
And goldenrod is dying fast,
And lanes with grapes are fragrant!

When gentians roll their fringes tight
To save them for the morning,
And chestnuts fall from satin burrs
Without a word of warning;

When on the ground red apples lie
In piles like jewels shining,
And redder still on old stone walls
Are leaves of woodbine twining;

When all the lovely wayside things
Their white-winged seeds are sowing
And in the fields, still green and fair,
Late aftermaths are growing;

When springs run low, and on the brooks,
In idle golden freighting,
Bright leaves sing noiseless in the hush
Of woods for winter waiting;

When comrades seek sweet country haunts,
By twos and twos together,
And count like misers hour by hour,
October's bright blue weather.

O suns and skies and flowers of June,
Count all your boasts together,
Love loveth best of all the year
October's bright blue weather.

—Helen Hunt Jackson.

SEPTEMBER'S THE-DANSANTE.

Come forth, dear love, and share with me,
September's hospitality,
Where goldenrod and aster spread
Purple and gold, for her to tread,
September gives a "dansante-the"
And greets her guests right royally.

Her robes of sapphire blue and gold
Blaze sumptuous, while a filet holds
With scarlet leaves, her blowing hair
Amethyst shadows, amber air,
Mistily veil her beauty rare;
Tender, languorous, dreaming lies
In the smile of her sweet, drowsy eyes.

The dancers dance in leafy bowers
Yellow and red; vermillion flowers
Of sumach, flame in gay festoons,
Among the greens, like scarlet runes.

The river's silver ripples beat
A rhythmic tune, with twinkling feet;
The clouds, their fleecy troops wind in
And out, in mazes of the dance.
Then hand in hand they all advance
To flutings of the south wind's call,
Then whirl and flee, and chasses-all.

And grapes from Arethusa woo,
And apples reddened in the sun,
September spreads for everyone;
While from the sunlight's golden chine
She pours the rapture of her wine.
And so, dear love, come share with me
September's hospitality.

Satsuma, a variety of orange, is to be introduced to the New York public this season. It is not entirely novel, but has never been marketed under its own name. A concerted attempt to specialize in this variety is now under way in certain districts of southern Alabama, and arrangements have been made to handle it co-operatively in New York under the name of Satsuma.

It was in Germany that the fireless cook stove was perfected, and there is now, it is reported, on foot in France a plan to develop an efficient fireless railway locomotive. It is equipped with a boiler after the manner of other locomotives, but the water in it is heated to the necessary temperature from a stationary plant. Enough power can be stored in it to operate it four hours, for switching purposes in a railway yard, and it does not, it is contended, take more than fifteen minutes to charge it.

Fisheries experts and scientists have been unable to ascertain accurately how sponges feed. An ordinary sponge will grow from one to one and one-half inches or more a year. The portion of the sponge with which we are familiar is the skeleton or framework of the sea product as it exists in the briny deep. The slimy, gelatinous substance is decomposed by wind, weather and sunshine and subsequent soaking in sea water cures out any gelatinous materials which still adhere to the sponges.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

New York, Oct. 2.—Speculative uncertainty over the business outlook for the next few months was again reflected in the narrow and irregular fluctuation of prices in today's quiet stock market. There was, however, a virtual subsidence of recent selling pressure which gave the market a slightly better tone but failed to lift it from the narrow trading area in which it has been floundering for the last few weeks.

Reports were circulated by the financial tickers that brokers' loans now approximate $4,875,000,000, a decrease of $25,000,000 in the last ten days and about $625,000,000 below the high mark of February, while the estimates of the short interest were variously estimated at from 500,000 to 2,000,000 shares. It is generally conceded that stock loans are at or near the peak of the year.

Overnight news developments seemingly had little effect on the economic situation and were disregarded as market factors. Even the government cotton ginning and condition reports, which brought about a 106 point rise, followed by a subsequent 130 point drop and a partial recovery in cotton prices, failed to stimulate any interest in stocks.

United States and Bethlehem Steels, Baldwin and American Can, generally regarded as pivotal stocks, all fluctuated within an area of one point and closed at slight fractional gains. Studebaker, which has been the target of considerable bear pressure lately, closed 3-4 higher at 95 1-8 after having sold as low as 94, or within 1-4 of the year's minimum.

One of the most conspicuous weak spots was National Enameling, which was depressed nearly 4 points to 45, a new low for the year, upon the circulation of unconfirmed reports that the dividend might be passed at the directors' meeting later in the month. The stock bounded back to 47 before the close.

Considerable short-covering was in evidence in Allied Chemical and Davison Chemical, the former closing 2 3-8 higher at 62 1-2 and the latter showing a net gain of 1 5-8 at 47 5-8 after having touched 48 1-2. There were a few other strong spots in the industrial list namely Iron Products, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, Wells Fargo, Savage Arms and Liggett & Myers, up 2 to 5 points.

Rails showed more consistent strength than the industrials with special attention being paid to the big dividend paying systems. Baltimore & Ohio was up 1 point to 58, a new top for the year, and Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis jumped 6 1-2 points to 95 1-8, also a new top. Wabash Preferred A was another active feature.

Call money opened at 5 1-2 per cent., eased to 5 around noon and thence to 4 1-2 where it closed. The time money market was extremely dull with a slight stiffening in rates. Bankers are asking 5 3-4 per cent. for the longer maturities with brokers bidding 5 1-2 for all dates.

Foreign exchange business was also quiet. Demand sterling improved 8-8 of a cent to $4.54 1-8 but most of the other principal European currencies were slightly reactionary, French francs being quoted around 9.98 cents, Belgian francs around 5.07 cents and German marks at 30 cents a hundred million.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—During a general rush to the buying side, the wheat market today made a sharp advance in price, but heavy profit taking sales later brought about a reaction. Reports that government measures to provide farm relief were being considered was the chief basis for the new upturn in values. Wheat closed unsettled at a shade to 3-4 cent net gain. Corn finished 3-8 to 2 3-8 cent up, oats unchanged to 1-8 cent off, and provisions at a rise varying from 5 cents to 25 cents.

On the rise in prices in the wheat market, bulls had things their own way, until the December delivery had climbed more than seven cents a bushel from its recent low. Although profit taking sales had been in progress from the outset, the offerings were well absorbed, and it was only in the last half of the day that setbacks became pronounced. Aside from expectance of government help, another thing which gave strength to the market was the fact that receipts at domestic primary terminals were small, northwestern arrivals being in particular but half as large as a year ago.

Increased inquiry for flour was reported from widely scattered territory, and it was said also that the buyers were showing more of a desire for early delivery. The better demand for flour was an additional bullish influence as to wheat. On the other hand, however, rains southwest were reported to have put winter wheat soil in the best condition at this time in years.

All deliveries of corn and oats touched a new price record for the season, but as in wheat a decline followed as a result of payoff taking sales.

Provisions were firmer with grain and because of a big decrease shown in the stock of lard here.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Oct. 2.—After an early firmness accompanied by unusual activity in the railroad division, bond prices slumped in the late trading today and closing prices generally shaded those of yesterday. New lows for the year again were touched by the tax exempt 3 1-2s of the U. S. government and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube 8s, recently freed from the protection of the offering syndicate.

Bond traders declared the movements indicate a condition of indigestion and that buyers are inclined to sell quickly for a small profit, thus returning the bonds to the market. Uncertain stock prices has influenced some selling of bonds on the downward trend for fear the holders would sustain further losses.

Instances of quick profit taking on fractional gains were evidenced in today's movement of sugar, oil and steel company liens, all of which advanced in the forenoon and sold off later. The same situation prevailed in the railroad group.

Bankers continue to hold in abeyance several large bond issues which are reported to have been ready for some time.

Enid Bennett the beautiful Maid Marion of "Robin Hood" fame and the puritanical Priscilla who gives Miles Standish a stare as stony as Plymouth Rock in "The Courtship of Miles Standish" has surpassed all of her previous characterizations in the dual role of the cabin boy on the pirate ship and the demur little British lady in "Strangers of the Night" the picture adapted from the famous "Captain Applejack" which will be shown for the last times today at the Breed theatre.

Miss Bennett's rise to fame has been rapid. She started her stage career in Australia playing in "The Whip," "The Fortune Hunter," and "Seven Keys to Baldpate." Turning to motion pictures she starred in the "Keys to Righteousness," "The Biggest Show on Earth," "A Desert Wooing" and other photoplay successes, eighteen of which were produced under the direction of her husband, Fred Niblo.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Calling on Miss Mousie.

Now let me think. Did Little Jack Rabbit finish telling about Rabbitville in the last story? Well, I can't quite remember but I do know the rabbit king said:

"You are a very interesting bunny.

He saw a white water horse.

If you will stay with me, I will make you Seneschal of my castle."

"No, thank you," answered Little Jack Rabbit, "I'd rather travel, for,

"I am a home-loving bunny lad,
I'll never make my mother sad,
But, oh, the wonderful things I've seen
When I met the beautiful Fairy Queen,
And Merry Laugh, the Giant big,
And the little dwarf man with the magic sprig.
I've seen the face of the Man in the Moon,
And met the dish that ran away after the spoon.
Oh, many a dangerous deed I've done
But, goodness me, I haven't begun
To tell of the wonderful things I saw
So goodbye king, let me shake your paw."

and with a low bow he left the white rabbit's castle and hopped away once more upon his journey of adventure.

By and by, after a while, he saw a white water horse in a river, snorting and dashing the spray high into the air.

"Are you one of Neptune's horses" asked the little bunny boy leaning far over the bank to get a good view of the beautiful white steed. Dear me! I hope the little rabbit won't fall in.

"No," answered the big white horse, "but get on my back," and then away he went with the little bunny boy.

By and by, they came to a stable and the little rabbit hopped off to the ground. Just then, a swallow flew down from a tree.

"Oh, I know you," said the bunny boy. "I've seen you many times. But where is Little Miss Mousie's house?"

"Follow me," said the swallow, leading the way to a funny little house at the foot of a big oak tree.

"Here's where she lives," she chirped.

Before the little bunny could knock on the front door the little mouse looked out of the window. She was such a timid creature that she never opened the door without first looking out of the window.

"Mercy me!" she cried. "A rabbit is knocking on my front door," and slamming down the window she hid behind the old grandfather clock in the corner of the room.

"Dickory, dickory, dock,
I'm hiding behind the clock,
So please go away, for I'm sorry to say
I haven't put on my new frock."

"Oh well, I'll call another time," said Little Jack Rabbit.

Then away flew the swallow back to the stable to tell an old owl what a fussy thing Miss Mousie was.

GAIR CO. BUYS WATER RIGHTS AT OXOBOXO

All the land and water rights of the Oxoboxo lake, situated along the New London turnpike, three or four miles south of Gardner Lake, have been purchased by the Robert Gair company from the Uncasville Manufacturing company. The newly acquired water rights give the Robert Gair company practically the entire control of the flow of water in that locality as the concern also holds the water rights of the Wheeler pond dam in Palmertown. The Robert Gair company has a large paper mill in Uncasville.

OLD RAILROAD CONDUCTOR DIES AT NORTHAMPTON

William Ward Webster, employed by the old New London Northern before that road was taken over by the Central Vermont in 1891, and in later years a passenger conductor on the Massachusetts Central division of the Boston and Maine, running between Ware and Boston, and then between Boston and Northampton, died in the latter city Sunday, 69 years old, and was buried there Tuesday. The Masons of the Meadow City conducted the funeral, and railroad men from all along the line between Springfield and White River Junction, Vt., attended the services at the home and went to the grave.

Ward Webster, as he was called by hundreds in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Vermont who rode on his trains, was on the old Northern with the late Henry B. Downer, Horace Saunders and "Dan" Patch. He was born in Tolland and one of his brothers, Dwight, lives in Putnam now. His widow and the brother alone survive.

MISS MILDRED PEARSON BECOMES GIFTED SINGER

Miss Mildred Pearson, a Norwich girl by birth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pearson, who resided here a dozen years ago, is shortly to return here to give a concert for the benefit of the Swedish Lutheran church on Hickory street. For the past four years Miss Pearson has been studying in New York as the protege of a wealthy New York woman who heard her sing at Eastern Point and was so much impressed by the possibilities in her voice that she assumed the expense of her musical education. Musical critics have pronounced Miss Pearson a singer of rare charm with a voice of beautiful quality and gift in artistic expression. She is a pupil of Herbert Witherspoon.

TAFTVILLE

The new fire engine house, which has just been formally opened, is up-to-date in every manner. The first floor has a concrete floor and the apparatus is kept here. There is also an adjoining room. The second floor has a roomy hall, with good floor, which can be used for social gatherings by the firemen. The labor necessary to erect this building was freely given by the members of the company and the Property Owners' association, who also provided the funds with which to carry on the work. The completed building represents an enormous sacrifice on the part of those interested, and they are to be complimented on its successful completion.

After the "hill" section had three times been swept by fire and thousands of dollars' worth of property destroyed, the property owners of that section of the town banded together and purchased a small chemical and through the courtesy of the town school committee in providing a site, they erected a small building. This apparatus was found to be entirely unsuited for the protection of the property of Taftville and it was decided to request the town to make an appropriation for the purchase of a pumper that could be depended upon to give the best of service at all times. The voters of the town in meeting assembled generously appropriated a sufficient sum, and now Taftville has one of the finest equipped volunteer fire departments in the state.

The officers of the department are: Chief, Ralph C. Dion; first assistant chief, Louis Gregory; second assistant chief, Philemon Gauvin; secretary, Hormidas Gladue; treasurer, Louis L'Hereux. There are 27 firemen and five are capable of driving the pumper. The officers of the Property Owners' association, which made the fire company possible, and supports it wholeheartedly, are: President, Joseph C. Marsan; vice president, Hormidas Gladue; secretary, J. Omer Tellier, Sr.; treasurer, Joseph E. Benac. The department was incorporated three years ago, and the entire building is completed with the exception of the installation of the heating system, which it was announced will be contributed by the Ponemah mills.

The Congregational church school has contributed $5 to the stricken children in Japan.

HAVE A BIG STORE IN A SMALL TOWN

There are such stores that hold the trade for miles around, some of them built up without largely increasing the capital.

The merchant buys small standardized stocks of the best sellers that are being sold in the large cities. He is careful to display the exact pattern that is being popularized.

His stock is kept complete at all times by small but frequent orders placed with the Jobber or Manufacturer by TOLL LINE.

Shipment is made the same day by express or parcel post and a quick delivery made possible. Customers are enthusiastic over the fact that they can buy what they want in their home town.

UNITED EFFORT

THE marvelous precision and accuracy of "warp, weft, and shuttle" in the loom, exemplify the efficiency of co-operation and united effort.

In sixty mills, more than 35,000 skilled workers are making a united effort to produce woolen and worsted fabrics of dependable value for the millions who need them.

And through that unity—the elimination of waste, the use of efficient machines and the co-operation which only fairly-treated employees can give — the American Woolen Company is annually producing millions of yards of fabric which enables the people to buy good clothing at fair prices.

TASK OF FORMING NEW GERMAN CABINET HAS BEEN ASSIGNED DR. STRESEMANN

The Old Stresemann Ministry Resigned After the Reichstag Had Rejected, 61 to 54, the Compromise Proposal by the Government—Socialists Rebelled at the Proposed Authorization Law, Which They Deemed Was Aimed at the Eight Hour Day for Workers—All Miners in the Ruhr District Have Resumed Work.

Berlin, Oct. 3 (By the A. P.)—Dr. Gustav Stresemann and the members of his ministry resigned from office tonight. President Ebert then called upon the retiring chancellor to form a new cabinet.

The Stresemann government retired from office with the relinquishment of passive resistance in the Ruhr and the Rhineland as the only active accomplishment to its credit. While criticism of its usefulness on this score would seem to be not entirely fair, in view of the hopelessly tangled legacy assumed by it as the successor of the Cuno ministry, the Stresemann coalition in its political composition was such as to preclude in the long run any hope of productiveness in the nature of financial and economic reforms, on account of the conflicting currents which hampered its deliberations.

With a theoretical socialist in the ministry of finance and an industrialist party man as minister of economics, one chronic point of friction was promptly established, it led to the retirement yesterday of Hans Von Rauner, who held the latter post, as he may be recently wearied of carrying on a running debate with Dr. Hilferding on financial and economic dogmas.

This was only one of the several minor paradoxes with which the Stresemann ministry was handicapped. The chancellor well known optimism which was praised as a useful asset when he assumed office, was unable to overcome the sisyphean task of getting an economically and politically moribund Germany back on its feet.

M. Poincare, the French premier, is blamed by the German government and the reichstag leaders for the collapse of Chancellor Stresemann's coalition government. If Poincare had given the slightest indication of a reciprocal attitude in response to Germany's abandonment of passive resistance official and political quarters believe that Dr. Stresemann's position would have been measurably strengthened, inasmuch as it would have been spared the nationalist onslaught, which not only gained momentum through the unconditional Ruhr surrender, but also from the swiftly collapsing internal situation.

Both factors sufficed to knock the prop from under the cabinet, whose advent as a "big coalition government" was acclaimed less than seven weeks ago as presaging internal reconstruction, as well as progress in the foreign situation.

After the socialist members of the reichstag rejected by a vote of 61 to 54 the compromise proposed by Chancellor Stresemann on the mooted points of the eight-hour law and modification of the authorization law, its four members in the cabinet, Dr. Hilferding, minister of finance; Schmidt, reconstruction; Soliman, interior, and Radbruch, justice, apprised the chancellor of their retirement, whereupon the chancelor convoked the remaining members of the cabinet for a decisive session.

MUNSEY FAVORS NEW YORK FOR POLITICAL CONVENTIONS

New York, Oct. 2.—Declaring that New York had financed the national campaigns of both democratic and republican parties for fifty years, Frank A. Munsey, publisher, today told a committee which aims to bring the next democratic convention, and the republican convention of 1924, to this city, that a rejection of New York's invitation by either party would be "little short of impudent."

The statement, which comprised Mr. Munsey's entire speech, enlivened a meeting at the Biltmore Hotel, of business, financial and industrial leaders who launched a campaign to boost New York as the convention city.

The committee approved plans for raising a $250,000 civic fund for the conclave, the money, to be solicited from trades and individuals, will go to entertaining the 400,000 delegates and tourists who, it is estimated would come here in connection with the convention.

Sponsors of the plan emphasized its non-partisanship, declaring the chief aim was to "cure New York of its provincialism," and dispel ideas, which they declared prevalent in the west, that "New York is all Broadway, white lights and booze."

Success of the movement, it is said would mean a later drive to hold the republican national convention here in 1928.

Various speakers, citing New York's claims to the convention, pointed out that no national convention of either chief political party has been held here for a half-century.

CONVENTION OF COUNCIL OF CATHOLIC WOMEN

BUSINESS BEFORE AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR

Portland, Ore., Oct. 3.—(By the A. P.)—Two issues loomed up in the opinion of labor leaders tonight as committees continued to work on a mass of resolutions introduced at the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor here.

From three states and from one of the large international unions there have come demands that the American Federation of Labor enter actively into politics, and from three states there have been received suggestions that unions amalgamate into single organizations, each to cover one industry. Adoption of either of these would involve a departure from the policies of the federation in recent years. Labor leaders predicted the conservative element at the convention would be strong enough to overcome both movements.

Hoots greeted efforts of Max J. Sillensky, of Cleveland, Ohio, to bring a resolution on recognition of soviet Russia before the convention with a request that it be transferred to the committee on international relations from the resolutions committee to which it had been assigned. His appeal to the committee from an adverse ruling of President Samuel Gompers was lost by an over-whelming vote.

Representatatives of the Minnesota state Federation of Labor, the Pennsylvania state Federation of Labor and the Chicago Federation of Labor have asked that labo rlaunch into the political arena as a party. Delegates from the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers have joined in this stand.

Amalgamation of union is sought in resolutions proposed by representatives of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, the Trades and Labor Council of Butte, Montana, and the Portland ,Oregon Centrl Labor Council.

They are.

1. Announcement by Dr. Alexander S. Goettler of Bellevue hospital in New York that he had found mercury in the viscera of Mrs. Webb, but that tablets taken from the sickroom were harmless.

2. Appearance before the grand jury of Mrs. Margaret P. Johnstone, wife of a former New York judge and intimate of Mrs. Webb, who left with the jurors her diary in which she had recorded certain facts preceding her friend's death which she had considered suspicious. The grand jury sessions then were adjourned until Monday.

3. Issuance in New York of a formal statement by Dr. William J. Meyer, who attended Mrs. Webb in her last illness, in which he criticised the treatment he has received from District Attorney Rowland of Westchester county and criticised Charles Webb, the husband, for displaying no desire for a constitution until the last minute; for conduct in the sickroom which the physician said was detrimental to his patient; and for indifference as the hour of death approached.

4. Renewed reports that friends of Mrs. Webb were preparing to ask Governor Smith to have the state take over the investigation—reports which Mr. Rowland scoffed at as "wild stuff."

5. Former Surrogate J. P. Cohalan in New York, in behalf of Edmund Adona Smith Hunter, a relative of Mrs. Webb, filed objections to the probate of her will which left all of her estate to her husband. Mrs. Webb's father filed a similar objection earlier in the week.

Siege of Mutinous Barricaded Convicts

Prisoners Are Cornered in Dining Room of Penitentiary at Eddyville, Ky.

Eddyvill, Ky., Oct 3.—Three convict murderers, cornered in the dining room of the Eddyville state penitentiary plant here today after they had killed a guard and wounded three others in a desperate attempt to shoot their way to liberty, still were besieged in their cul-de-sac tonight.

Ringed around with a grim circle of prison guards, reinforced by scores of citizen riflemen, the convicts held to their barricade, exchanging an occasional shot with the besiegers.

No concerted attempt to rush the improvised fortress of the convicts was made during the day. Tonight with a machine gun troop of the National Guard from Hopkinsville and the tear gas squad from the Louisville police department coming to help prison authorities meet the situation, officials expected to determine what ocurse to pursue after a conference with leaders of the reinforcements.

Hodge Cunningham, of Cadiz, guard, was killed in the first fusillade fired by the convicts. Guards wounded, were W. M. Gilbert, of Breckinridge county, believed fatally shot; W. P. Gillihan, Lyon county, shot through hips, and V. B. Mattingly, Leitchfield, shot through the body. Gilbert and Gillihan were taken to a Paducah hospital, but Mattingly, whose death physicians said was a matter of hours, was kept here.

Mattingly lay for nearly six hours in the spot where he was shot down, exposed to fire from the barricaded convicts. His fellow guards were unable to respond to his appeals for water and attention to his wounds. A prisoner took water to the wounded man. Mattingly refused to let the convict carry him to safety, fearing the barricaded men would shoot him to death in his rescuer's arms. He was able eventually to drag himself to a point where rescuers could reach him without being exposed to fire.

The convicts, Monte Walters of Louisville; Lawrence Griffith, Mayfield, and Harry Ferland, Covington of Newport, initiated their desperate bid for freedom in the shirt factory of the prison early today, according to Guard Gillihan. Between forty and 100 convicts were in the room, Gillihan said, when three men seized and bound Lee Scholse, lone guard there, and with automatic pistols in their hands made a dash for the main entrance to the prison grounds, firing at every guard they met.

The shots attracted guards from all parts of the prison to the scene and under a heavy rifle fire the convicts were forced to take refuge in the dining room, a two story brick building in the center of the prison grounds.

From vantage points in upstairs windows of the dining room the convicts were able to direct a withering rifle which forced the guards to take cover. A cordon quickly was spotted and citizens from the neighboring countryside, seizing such nondescript arms as were available, quickly added their strength to the besiegers.

Prison officials obtained a machine gun from a coal mine company at Nortonville and this was trained upon the barricaded building during the afternoon. Governor Edwin P. Morrow ordered Troop C, of the National Guard machine gun company at Hopkinsville to the scene and Louisville sent four tear gas guns in charge of the tear gas squad of the Louisville police department to the scene.

DISCORD IN OKLAHOMA IS TO BE FOUGHT OUT IN THE COURTS

Gov. Walton's Attack on the Legality of Tuesday's Election Has Been Assigned for Hearing Oct. 9—A Lull is Anticipated in the Contest Until That Time—Adjutant General Has Ordered Troops Removed From the Offices in Tulsa of the County Sheriff and City Police Commissioners.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 3.—(By the A. P.)—Governor J. C. Walton's attack on the legality of yesterday's election on a constitutional amendment to permit an impeachment session of the state legislature, was in full swing tonight with more than a third of the returns in the state not yet tabulated.

His first gun in the after-election fight was fired today when he obtained, in state district court, a temporary restraining order preventing the state election board from certifying the returns to the secretary of state.

Hearing on the application to make the order permanent was set for October 9. Observers on both sides anticipated a lull in the contest between the governor and legislature until then. The order was granted by Judge Tom G. Chambers, Jr., an appointee of Governor Walton.

In his application, the executive alleged the election was illegal because the proposed constitutional amendments submitted were not properly advertised before the election. He declared that thousands of armed special deputies commissioned by sheriffs throughout the state had intimidated voters.

Interest in the tangled situation will shift tomorrow to a hearing in state district court of an injunction sought by members of the legislature to bar the governor and his representatives from interfering with their attempt to convene an impeachment session. The injunction suit was brought following action of the military last Wednesday in dispersing, at the governor's order, a session called by a majority of the members without his sanction.

The action was instituted before it was determined that the legislative amendment would be voted on in yesterday's election.

Meanwhile a new attack was launched today against the official acts of Governor Walton by Campbell Russell, a political opponent of the governor who circulated the initiative petition for the legislative referendum.

This time he circulated a petition for a grand jury in district court here to investigate charges that Governor Walton has misused public monies and to inquire into the appointment of thousands of state "secret service" agents by the executive. More than the required number of signatures were obtained and the petition was filed.

Charging that the Ku Klux Klan dominated yesterday's election Governor Walton issued a statement tonight pledging the "American people" that the issue whether the "invisible empire" shall supplant constitutional government in Oklahoma would be decided in the special election on December 6. This was called by the governor as a substitute for yesterday's election, which was proclaimed illegal by executive degree. Only the legislative proposals will be submitted.

"The klux guns of the nation are now turned on me," Governor Walton declared in his statement. "I am daily in daily receipt of threats of assassination but I had rather die by the hand of an assassin than die the death of a coward."

The governor renewed his appeal for funds with which to carry on his campaign, declaring that "klan money" now is flowing into the state.

Declaring there is no klan issue in Oklahoma "except in the hallucinations of a distorted brain," Representative McBee later issued a statement, in which he said:

"The legislative committee has repeatedly denied that there is a klan issue in Oklahoma. We are as ready to protect the interests of one sect, creed, denomination or race as another.

"We realize that Governor Walton uses his smoke screen of 'klan issue' to fool the people outside of Oklahoma. He has failed to fool our own people, as is evidenced by the overwhelming rebuke at the ballot box Tuesday. His home precinct in Oklahoma City repudiated him by a vote of 243 to 16. The precinct where he lived prior to becoming governor turned him down, 177 to 47.

On petition of Mr. Price who claimed $20,000 due in rental, Judge Hand appointed Samuel D. Leidesdorf receiver under bond of $20,000 for the Bennat company. Liabilities were estimated at $954,000 and assets at $400,000.

Judge Hand also appointed Harding Norton and Alfred A. Hermann ancillary receivers in equity for A. ### $50,000 YACHT SEIZED WITH A $60,000 WHISKEY CARGO

New York, Oct. 3.—The Atalanta, a trim 70-foot gasoline cabin cruiser valued at $50,000 once the property of the late Gearge J. Gould, today was snared in the East River with a $60,000 whiskey cargo by three police boats maneuvering in the dawn.

The yacht, with sleek black sides and glistening brass, at one time threatened to give the patrol boats the slip, but a feed line clogged and she was brought to a halt under the shadow of the Astoria shore.

Four men aboard her were arrested and her cargo confiscated. The quartet asserted they had been hired as a crew by an unknown man and did not know the nature of the Atalanta's cargo.

New York, Oct. 3—August Heckscher, philanthropist, appeared before the 192 budget committee of the board of estimate today to denounce the society for the prevention of cruelty to children for turning the Fifth avenue building which he had given them, into a "jail" and herding the children put under their care in "segregated masses," he stated he had made an appeal to the governor to investigate the society, and asked the budget committee to look into the matter thoroughly before making an appropriation of $155,000 asked by the society's officers.

"The society shrouds itself in impenetrable mystery," he said.

"If you can show me that the money appropriated by the city is not properly spent by the society, I shall discontinue the appropriation. I have the power to do so." Comptroller Craig replied.

Stamford, Oct. 3.—Ten men employed on the site of excavations for the new Laurel reservoir in North Stamford, which is to become an auxiliary source of water supply for this city have been in Stamford hospital since Friday night suffering from typhoid fever, it was learned tonight. Every effort has been made to keep their plight a secret.

Investigations have been underway for the last two days by D. Hilliard Knowlton of the state department of health, and Town Health Officer Dr. Ralph W. Crane. All men in the camp have been inoculated. Indications are that the epidemic was communicated by carrier, belived to have been the cook in the camp, who is thought to have left Saturday for Jersey City, where efforts are being made to locate him.

The board of assessors for the town of Windham, John R. Pickett, Joseph F. Gaudreau and Lawrence S. Casey, held their first meeting Wednesday and organized as follows: Chairman, John R. Pickett; secretary, Joseph F. Gaudreau. The work on the list of 1923 was reviewed and the board arrived at the conclusion that they have a busy year ahead. Hundreds of new automobiles will be added to the list. According to the records there were nearly 1,000 transfers of real estate between October 1, 1922 and October, 1923, all of which must be adjusted and assessed in the new owner's name. Beginning October 26, the assessors will meet to receive sworn tax lists and they will be in session every day, excepting Sundays and holidays, until November 1, inclusive.

While large crowds were gathered on the business streets Monday night to await the election returns, John R. Pickett who resides on the corner of Summit and Turner street, telephone to the police station and complained that someone had attempted to break into his back door. Mr. Pickett was retiring at the time and upon hearing the fumbling about the rear door of the house he went to the window and demanded the identity of the late visitor. The party lost no time in taking to the nearby woods and Mr. Pickett then telephoned. About eleven o'clock Motorcycle Officer Grant Bombria and followed by Lieutenant Frank McLean and a Bulletin reporter on a machine speeded through the crowds to the Pickett home. The police were followed by nine or ten cars loaded with curious individuals. A search was made of the vicinity and Officer Bombria patrolled the surrounding streets, but no one was found.

Preston City cemetery, with its rehabilitated "old part" was visited Wednesday, by a large delegation from Jewett City, all were more or less interested in ancient gravestones, with their accompanying queer epitaphs and grotesque carved figures. Mrs. Henry Dorrance of Plainfield, an authority on old grave-markers, was there completing some of her lists for the state librarian. She gave the local party the benefit of her widely acquired fund of information. The old willow and urn, willow and well, and angel head stones were found and numbered by the party by the dozen. One stone, with the death's head top with holes for eyes and plenty of teeth, is classed in the very rare list. This stone is of the finest British slate. It was brought from England and marks the last resting place of "Mr. Samuel Prentice here lies buried his body, died in 1738." The cutting on this stone, done by a stereotype, 200 years ago, ies as cleanly traced today as any cutting of the present day. The majority of the red sandstone markers were brought there early in the 19th century from points around Portland, Conn., and other points on the banks of the lower Connecticut.

Seventy-five local Masons and visiting friends attended the session of Mt. Vernon lodge, Norman B. Parkhurst, master, Tuesday evening. A class of three received the Master Mason's degree. Lunch was served during the evening. The degree team presented something never enjoyed before.

Benjamin M. Knox, of Hartford, announces that he has resumed teaching, and will be at Room 19, Alice building, 321 Main street, on Friday of each week and will be glad to meet and talk wiht anyone interested in learning how to sing correctly and artistically.

Mr. Knox has been particularly successful in training singers who have been able to secure paying positions in church choirs. Practically all of those pupils who have been serious and regular in their study are now getting financial returns. In the neighborhood of twenty singers trained solely by Mr. Knox are now holding positions in various choirs in the churches of Hartford and vicinity, and also New York city. Five students secured positions last spring, and another one has just been accepted for a good paying position in one of the most prominent churches of Hartford.

This is convincing evidence that the method of singing taught by Mr. Knox produces the right kind of results.

Keith Vaudeville at the Strand Theatre.

An all around, well diversified program of B. F. Keith vaudeville is scheduled for the Strand theatre, starting today and remaining for Friday and Saturday.

A terpsichorean treat is in store for those who care for some real good dancing with The Roma Duo, and Jacó of in their fantastic and spectacular dance crations.

Zink & Panna offer a comedy novelty offering.

Waly James in Bon Mots and What Not promises to keep all in the best of humor with his great line of comedy patter and just like an expert marksman hits the target.

Joe Dunlevy and Irene Chesleigh appear in a comedy by Thomas J. Dugan called After the Show.

A man's worth is often veiled by a superficial mask of circumstances that tends to place him in the light of public vision as an incompetent when in reality he has ability, but has allowed that ability to lie dormant because he lacked incentive to apply it to a definite mode of living.

A clear-cut example of this is revealed in Fools and Riches, a Universal production starring Herbert Rawlinson, which is now being show at the Strand theatre.

Rawlinson's role is that of a spendthrift son of a railroad president who has never done anything worth while, but who is the champion spender of his set. There were parties and parties and always Jimmie Dorgan paid the bills—with his dad's money.

Keith Vaudeville at the Broadway Theatre.

A very fine program of B. F. Keith vaudeville is promised for the patrons of the Broadway theatre for the last half of this week, starting today.

The feature attraction is Maxwell Lee & Co. who present Oddities a la Militaire. The three in this company excell in buck and wing dancing that is above par.

The popular funster, Neil McKinley, is the second feature attraction. He offers Fun—and Then Some. As a provoker of grins and chuckles in the vernacular "he is there."

William O'Clare and Madeline, the Irish warblers, offer A Bit of Irish.

Frank Wilbur and Girlie offer Ups and Downs of Life, which is a bright comedy skit.

Is Divorce a Failure? the Associated Exhibitors feature showing today at the Broadway theatre, with Leah Baird featured in the leading role, attempts to show that civilization stunts rather than develops our real selves. We are covered over with the veneer of politeness demanded by social standards—the wolf and the lamb outwardly look the same, and it is not until a primitive life strips human nature of all superficialities that men and women are revealed in their true selves. Miss Baird adapted in Divorce a Failure? from Dorian Neve's stage play, All Mine, and in it she is supported by Richard Tucker, Tom Santschi, Walter McGrail, Alec B. Francis and others. It is said to contain four spectacular feature punches, as well as a powerful story.

Viola Dana in Rouged Lips at the Breed.

Today, Friday and Saturday the Breed theatre will house Viola Dana in her newest Metro picture, Rouged Lips, a story of the stage and stage people from Rita Weiman's story Upstage. It is a picture that gives Miss Dana an excellent opportunity to display her vivacious charm and extraordinary talent. Miss Weiman, the author, is the most delightful of all chroniclers of life behind the footlights and her stories have won millions of readers.

Supporting Miss Dana is a superlative cast of players. At the head is Tom Moore, famous in his own right and thrice famous as a brother of two other noted Moores, Owen and Matt. In the cast also are Nola Luxford, Sylvie de Grey, Arline Pretty, Franci Powers, Georgie Woodthrorpe and Burwell Hamrick.

Rouged Lips is the story of a little girl who is a member of a musical comedy chorus. She meets her Prince Charming who recognizes her innate sweetness and innocence but who is led astray by false rumors and fails to realize the secret wishes of every woman's heart. In the end Norah wins her Prince Charming, but how she succeeds in doing it against terrific obstacles forms as interesting a story as the local theatres have ever presented. It was directed by Harold Shaw from the scenario by Thomas J. Hopkins and photographed by John Arnold.

One of the most interesting features of Rouged Lips is a devil's chorus of "thirty under twenty." This expression has become famous in theatrical circles and signifies a collection of beautiful girls, perhaps thirty in number and all under twenty years of age. In Rouged Lips several of the big scenes are laid inside of a theatre with the performance in full progress before an audience. This chorus was picked out of hundreds of California beauties.

Movie Chats and an Educational comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Henry W. Babson and Abel Gingras will leave for Florida Wednesday next. They will motor south, visiting Gettysburg battlefield. Their trip will take them to Palm Beach and Miami before they terminate their touring at Winter Haven, where they will spend the cold weather season, returning here in the spring.

Much of more than ordinary interest was discussed at the meeting of the chamber of commerce held Tuesday evening. Among other things the meeting heard a representative of the local lighting company present plans for a more brilliant illumination of the borough's business center and of the area around Davis park, occupying a location commanding two of the main approaches to the borough. A blue print showing what was proposed was displayed at the meeting and the subject gone into in considerable detail. The outcome of the matter was the appointment of a committee consisting of Alfred L. Reed, Francis E. Storer and F. E. Bitgood to confer with borough officials on the subject.

In carrying out a suggestion from Warden W. A. Burrows the chamber appointed two of its members—A. L. Reed and F. E. Bitgood—to represent the chamber on the committee that Warden Burrows is organizing to perfect and present a set of traffic rules for the borough.

Of special interest was the action of the meeting in opposing a proposition submitted by a representative of a profit-sharing coupon company that the chamber lift its ban against the use of trading stamps and other such devices by its members. The coupons recently were introduced here by the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company. The sentiment expressed at Tuesday evening's meeting was decidedly against the coupon plan which appeared to be generally regarded as the old trading stamp proposition in a new dress. Following the meeting it was suggested by one of those present that the chamber would approve another reduction in lighting and gas rates as a premium preferential to profit sharing coupons.

The meeting appointed F. E. Bitgood chairman of its committee for the Windham house fund of Connecticut college.

Settlement has been agreed upon in the case of Miss Gertrude A. Wardell vs the town of Killingly, and it was stated Wednesday that in bringing this matter, long in the public eye, to a close the town will pay $1200. Miss Wardell brought suit for $8,000.

The case grew out of her being summarily discharged from her duties as supervisor of music in Killingly's schools during the time when Horace Turner was superintendent of schools here. Much of the detail that led up to a situation that became so strained as to eventually result in Miss Wardell's dismissal on what she alleged to be only a few minutes' notice will never be generally known to the public, for there will be no trial and giving of evidence.

There are many versions as to these details and retailing them here would serve no useful purpose. It may suffice to state that the case, during the several years since it was first filed, has been in the superior court several times and before different judges for argument of various legal technicalities that counsel for the state set up before they would permit it to come to trial and that it twice has been considered, as to certain phases, by the supreme court of errors.

The expense attached, both to the town and Miss Wardell, will be very considerable, amounting, it is said, to several thousand dollars. What a jury would have said as to how much Miss Wardell suffered in her professional career and otherwise as the result of her dismissal here must now remain a matter of mere conjecture. The fact remains, however, that a settlement has been bought about for $1200, although Miss Wardell's counsel at first asked much more than that, and that the town must have considered it would be as cheap to settle at that price and have the matter permanently closed than to continue litigation and accumulate additional expenditures.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Bassett and son, Earl, of Broad street, will leave this (Thursday) morning on a motor tour that will take them through the White mountains, then to Montreal and through the province of Ontario to Toronto and Niagara Falls, returning here through New York state.

Opening of the Orpheum theater's vaudeville season Friday, matinee and evening, with five high grade acts.—adv.

Henry B. Wilkinson of Providence was a visitor with friends in Danielson Wednesday.

Albert Cardinal, whose leg was injured Friday evening at the town hall, will be discharged in a day or two from the Day Kimball hospital, though he will remain at his home here until fully recovered. His leg is not broken, as was at first supposed.

After all the storm over leasing the town hall under an agreement allowing professional sports for another year, a proposition which the town supported at the annual business meeting of the town, that it may not be used for that purpose much longer. There is a movement on foot to erect an arena in Danielson in which to hold professional sports and if the proposed building is constructed it will have a seating capacity of 1800 and be so arranged that it will be available for dancing, roller skating, basketball and boxing shows.

The first regular meeting for the year of the Civic federation is to be held at the home of Mrs. E. H. Keach Friday afternoon.

Pleased by the attendance of Just Married at the Orpheum theater and with the success of the production here, the management announced on Wednesday that additional high grade attractions will be booked for the fall and winter period.

A crew of the state highway department repair men was engaged on Wednesday in touching up worn spots in the pavement in the business section.

Cider mills all through this territory are operating at top speed. It was pointed out Wednesday that a permit is not required to make cider, as in the case of making wines for home use.

ANTIQUE COLLECTOR GOT FRESH; FINED IN COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Oct. 3.—In disposing of the case of Joseph Goldberg, of Boston, in the town court here Wednesday afternoon, Judge W. Fenner Woodward reaffirmed the rule that one may be adjudged guilty of a breach of the peace if one enters another's home and without premission of the occupants of the home roam about it, especially after a warning has been given the intruder that his presence is not desirable.

Goldberg, a collector of antiques, came into court to answer to charges of theft and breach of the peace. He was found not guilty on the theft charge. On the other charge a fine of $15 and costs was imposed, a total of $29.58, which he paid.

Mrs. Etta M. Spink, of South Killingly, and Miss Charlotte Rice, of the Mashentuck district were the complainants against Goldberg, one of a pair of men going about the country districts east of here Monday, with a truck, collecting antiques.

Mrs. Spink said that Goldberg came into her home and in spite of her protests that she did not want him in her pantry and that she forbade him to go upstairs into her attac he did both, remaining upstairs for nearly twenty minutes. As she was alone and not in the best of health she was powerless, she said, to enforce her orders to Goldberg, who eventually bargained for an old picture, for which he agreed to pay 50 cents, and a paisley shawl, for which he offered $2.00, and which she refused to sell, although telling him that at one time she had been offered $5.00 for it. Finally, Mrs. Spink said, Goldberg threw 15 cents in change and a $2 bill on her sewing machine and walked off with the shawl and picture. He placed the articles in the truck and drove off. She followed as quickly as possible, but could not locate the truck, so she went to the store and requested Stephen Douglas to telephone for the state police.

Goldberg denied in court nearly everything that Mrs. Spink had to say about the case, claiming she had sold him the shawl and picture and that he neither went into her pantry or into the attic. Recalled later, Mrs. Frink unequivocally said that Goldberg was a liar, using just that word, and that she was telling "God's truth."

Miss Charlotte Rice told of Goldberg refusing to leave her place until she threatened him with a shotgun and of his being in the pantry, refusing to obey her orders to vacate the premises and to desist from his bargaining for antiques she did not wish him to handle and had no thought of selling.

Goldberg denied that he was in the Rice house at all, saying his partner had gone into that home and that he stayed out in the truck.

It was at the Rice house that Goldberg and his partner were overtaken by the state police and searched for two watches, missed from the Spink home, after Goldberg's departure. Goldberg denied taking the watches, they were not found upon him nor in his truck nor on the person of his partner and the issue was not pressed in court.

Attorney Bill, prosecuting for the state, made a strong plea for punishment of men who like Goldberg, insist on going about people's homes when such a proceeding is not allowed and insisted that the public should be protected from such intrusions. Judge M. H. Geissler of Putnam appeared for Goldberg.

In settling the case, Goldberg agreed to return the shawl and picture he acquired at the Spink home and Mrs. Spink paid back the $2.15 he left there.

PUTNAM

Considerable business was transacted at the October meeting of the common Council.

The acceptance of several streets as follows was requested: Intervale street, Alpha street, for 230 feet east of Mechanics street; Whittemore street for 210 feet east of Mechanics street; Nicholas street for 300 east of School street; North Prospect street, off Woodstock avenue; Mill street, off Providence; Powhattan street, off Providence; a 200 foot continuation of Chapel street; Maple street from Church street to Gilman street; Gilman street from Maple street to Ravine. It was voted to authorize the city engineer to inspect these streets and draw up plans of them.

North Prospect street probably will be renamed if it is accepted as a city street. This is because there is already a Prospect street, this on the east side of the city, and to have Prospect street on the west side of the city would naturally cause confusion.

The police report announced 29 arrests for the last month of which fifteen were for intoxication, nine for auto violations. Two offenders were sent to jail, and of the remainder thirteen paid fines and costs the total of which was $905.63.

Several taxes were abated as recommended those who asked abatement being in most cases ex-service men.

Building permit petitions as follows were followed to the highway committee: The request of Charles Seder, throus his attorneys, Torrey and Geissler, for permission to change the locations of houses on Lee street and the corner of Lee and Main, and to erect a new brick block in the lot at the corner of Lee and Main streets thus made vacant; that of the Putnam Savings bank for new building on Main street, that of Luther M. Keith for permission to build a three car garage in the Grove street district; that of James Bibeault to alter his home; that of Philip Brousseau to build a house, and that of O. R. Hermanson to erect a new greenhouse on Grove street.

The appointment of William Mansfield and David Favreau as firemen, succeeding James Barnes and William Hughes respectively was confirmed.

Fire Chief Thurston gave a report of the time required to empty various city school buildings, following the sounding of the fire signal. The time at the Israel Putnam school was one minute and thirty-four seconds; at the High school fifty-one seconds; at the Smith Street school, fifty-two seconds; and at the old parochial school building three minutes and fifty-six seconds. No fire alarm system has as yet been practiced at the new parochial school.

The highway committee is to take up with the trolley company the matter of putting in a hollow on lower South Main street, where water remains for several days after a rainstorm, there being no means of getting it out from between the tracks.

Aldermen Dean and Libby were the only ones absent from the meeting.

Alphonse Castougury, wanted by the Southbridge police to answer to a charge of stealing $15 in a pool room in that place, was picked up here and later turned over to Chief Breault of the police in the Massachusetts town. When arrested here Castougury was lolling about a hotel office. He had a half pint of liquor in his hip pocket and a few cents over $9 in his possession.

Fire Tuesday evening destroyed the barn on the Wheaton place, Oak Hill, the highest point in the city. It is believed that the fire may have been caused by boys playing in the neighborhood a short time before the blaze was discovered. Firemen responding to the call found that a stream from the hose was practically without pressure at that high point in the city until the pumper was attached and then streams of effective force were developed. The barn stood on the E. M. Wheaton place and was a lone structure, the house having been destroyed by fire a few years ago. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Henry Belleriave, a Pomfret man, has a fractured leg as the result of falling from the roof of the house of Mrs. E. P. Perrin, on Bradley street. He is said to have slipped and lost his balance.

Putnam police have finally decided that the reason a Massachusetts man who was ordered to appear in court here for violation of the motor vehicle laws has failed to do so, although three weeks have elapsed since he was given the order, is because he is in trouble in his home state. Officer Eugene Gibney in looking through a Massachusetts paper found where the same man had been arrested for driving a car while intoxicated and is now being held by the police, which is good and sufficient reason for his non-appearance here.

Papers have been executed leasing the City hotel, Putnam, to Thomas Culley of this city. Samuel Smith, owner of the building and its proprietor, will retire from business, though continuing to make his home there. Ill health is given as the reason for Mr. Smith's retirement.

Mr. Culley has been a resident of this city for many years and at different periods and under various managements had been employed as a clerk at the City hotel. At one time he was a steward on the White Star Line and at another served in the same capacity on vessels of the United Fruit Company. He is a veteran of the Boer war and also of the World war, having seen hard service in France with the Royal Field Arallery of the British expeditionary fores.

Mrs. W. F. Rafferty and daughter, Miss Elizabeth, have been at Boston to visit with Ensign William Rafferty, U. S. N., an officer on the U. S. S. Utah, which has been through an overhauling at the Charlestown navy yard. Mrs. Rafferty and Miss Rafferty were priviliged to inspect the great fighting machine, which soon is to depart for southern cruises on which Mrs. Rafferty's son will sail.

Repeating a sort of acoident that occurs from time to time on that particular stretch of highway in the center of the city, the brakes on an ice truck released or failed to hold sufficiently Wednesday morning and allowed the truck to start, unattended, down the steep grade in Pomfret street and crash through a window in Bacon's store. The damage consisted chiefly of broken glass and was really minor.

Surprisingly fast progress is being made with the giant cement mixing machine in laying the new concrete roadway through Killingly avenue. Although the first of the concrete was laid a week ago this afternoon the new road is now built half its width down to the old North Killingly cementery. It is said that the machine working to capacity and uninterruptedly is capable of laying 1,000 feet a day. On this particular job the newly laid cement is covered with dirt, which is kept wet, and the forecast is that the new stretch of highway stretching over the line into the town of Killingly will be one of the finest in this section of the state.

STRUGGLING FOR SAFETY.

When the statement was made at the congress of the National Safety council at Buffalo this week that this is the most careless nation in the world, that automobile fatalities have reached the total of 100,000 and fatalities at railroad crossings have increased 35 per cent this year it presents a situation which one is reluctant to admit and yet which seems to be well supported by the facts.

Just how far the present tendency must go, before there is an effort on the part of that portion of the auto owners who are responsible for it, to correct conditions there is no indication. Carelessness in connection with the operation of autos is not our only weakness. That same carelessness is to be noted in connection with the great fire loss which the country experiences each year in contrast to what happens in other countries.

For the correction of the frightful loss of life due to the auto it is recommended the adoption and strict enforcement of uniform, practical laws relative to traffic and the protection of the law-abiding drivers against the criminally reckless few, a better study of our street and highway systems by competent engineering and traffic experts to obtain safe and efficient traffic movement, the training of school children in safety thinking and the mobilization of all community forces through state and city safety councils for securing these ends through the overwhelming force of enlightened public opinion.

Certainly there can be no satisfaction in witnessing such conditions going from bad to worse. While we are told that there never has been so many safety activities, and such is recognized by those who stop to think, it is apparent that there is not only excellent reason for their existence but good and sufficient ground why they should be given better support that their results may be better, and an increased interest in starting whatever other movements are necessary to bring about a decrease in the carelessness even though it may not be possible to put an end to it. It is one thing upon which there should be no difficulty in getting a unanimous verdict.

THE MUSCLE SHOALS PROJECT.

There are those who are certain to do their best to make political capital out of the fact that the Alabama Power company got the Gorgas steam power plant rather than Henry Ford.

It was a case where both wanted it. The power company because it in fact had an option upon it, inasmuch as it stood on their land, and Henry Ford because it was part of the results that had been obtained by governmental expenditures in connection with the Muscle shoals project, which was in fact the water privilege that Ford really had his eye on.

Such a situation is one that Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi could not permit to go unnoticed. It is one of those matters which it would have been possible for him to have complained of whatever had been done, so his claims regarding it now are no more than what should have been expected.

The power company having the right to buy the Gorgas plant, it would have been leaving itself open to criticism had the government refused to carry out its part of the agreement and failed to give it the chance to exercise its option. Thus if the plant had been sold to Mr. Ford regardless of the attitude of the power company the government would have been open to suit and it would have given Senator Harrison the chance to berate it for not respecting a contract. On the other hand Mr. Ford offered no way by which the government could avoid doing as it did, and now of course Senator Harrison sees in it a scheme to keep the plant away from Mr. Ford and deceive the country.

Such reasoning isn't going to get far. The only politics in it is that which the senator is trying to inject. The fact is that the water privilege at Muscle shoals is just as available to Mr. Ford today as it ever was and it is the water privilege that interests him in that particular corner of the country. No reasonable person would expect the government to sell to Mr. Ford something which it couldn't deliver. Yet that seems to be the course the senator would have had followed.

A JOB FOR CONGRESS.

When the officers of the National Coal association set forth to the American mining congress at its annual session that what seems like the prospects of two years without interruption of coal production should not be misjudged it furnishes food for thought that needs to be well digested.

By the anthracite agreement everything seems slated for steady production of coal for the next two years, provided the agreement is respected. But the mining of hard coal does not comprise the whole coal industry, and it is to the expiration of the agreement in the union bituminous fields the first of next April that the coal association officials refer.

To bring this matter to attention at this time is certainly timely. That the anthracite production should not be threatened with curtailment for the next two years may give some satisfaction but there is of course quite as much concern over the production of soft coal. Industries, power stations, lighting plants, railroads and many householders are dependent upon it.

Thus just because the anthracite situation seems to be patched up for a while it does not mean that the coal problem is settled or that it can be disregarded. It will be only a short time before April first rolls, around and it will not do to delay until March 30th before giving it attention.

As the result of the investigation that was made by the coal commission there were suggestions offered for the betterment of conditions in the coal industry and the better protection of the public. With the possibility of another coal strike in April it should be realized by the coming session of congress that the question of coal must not be sidetracked. There are unquestionably complications to be encountered but the harder the job looks the more determined should be the attack upon it.

THE NEW DIRIGIBLES.

Are we getting to the point where a mail service by airship can be expected between this country and Europe? Based upon the accomplishments of navigators of the air such is by no means impossible. There are those who have crossed in flying machines and it seems likely that there will soon be a crossing by an American dirigible, similar to the ZR-1 which is now giving such excellent demonstrations in this country.

That the crossing of the Atlantic, as far as distance is concerned, is entirely feasible is shown by the performance of the French airship Dixmude this month which has to its credit a voyage of 4500 miles. That would be sufficient to carry an airship across the Atlantic and as far inland as St. Louis.

That may in fact be the use to which the big dirigibles will be put in the years to come. In the carrying of mail or even the carrying of passengers there would be quick service. In the navy at the present time there is confidence in the successful outcome of such an undertaking for the delivery of mail, it being figured that it could be taken across in two days.

The dirigibles are coming in for increased attention. Even though their size and vulnerability make their use questionable in the time of war there may be peace time service which would make them highly desirable. By the airships which are now possessed or which are being made ready some valuable demonstrations are likely to be forthcoming. One great advantage now is the overcoming of the danger from inflammable gas by the use of helium. Where speed is required without regard for expense the dirigibles ought to be able to provide it.

SWINDLERS ALWAYS WITH US.

Even in time of calm prepare for a storm is good advice. The need of vigilance in many directions is constantly being shown and New York is a center where new ones develop almost with each passing hours.

Everyone is familiar with the Spanish prison swindle as conducted from the other side with assistants in this country, but the newest scheme of get rich quick seems to have reversed the situation and instead of trying to swindle Americans the separation from their wealth of those in Italy known to have funds was the object of this ambitious young Italian.

A Brooklyn clerk seems to have been the head, if not the entire machinery, connected with this plan of getting funds from those in Italy who feared the effects of the black hand and were ready to pay to escape. The threats were conveyed in the form of newspaper clippings of what was done to a New York boy who had been kidnapped and killed. The recipients of such were given to understand that that was a sample of the way the agents operated "here or in Italy."

Fortunately a wealthy widow not only refused to throw her letter into the wastebasket but decided to come here and help run down the person responsible for spreading such terror. It was not such a difficult job once the swindle was disclosed and the job tackled. It doesn't appear that there was any desperate jobs done by the young man but he squeezed many pocketbooks and frightened others though his bark was worse than his bite. Brought to justice for misuse of the mails he deserves punishment that will discourage both him and others in the future.

MISS BELINDA'S GUEST

It was Bill's first day at Hilltop. Miss Belinda had written to a friend who lived in a settlement to send her a child for a two-week holiday in the country, and somehow she had rather expected a wistful-eyed, golden-haired little girl. Therefore she was a trifle startled when red-haired freckle-faced, spindle-shanked Bill appeared. She welcomed him warmly, however, and tried to make him feel at home.

"Would you like to play a game of croquet with me?" she asked him after he had finished a hearty lunch.

"Naw, that ain't no game for live people. I ain't seen nothing but old guys playing it in the park."

"Then it will not do for us," laughed Miss Belinda. "Maybe you'd rather help me in the garden, William."

"I ain't workin' up here, am I? I thought this was goin' to be vacation."

"No, William, you don't have to do any work, unless you wish. But come down in the garden and watch me."

"Sure! Say, how do you get that William stuff? My name's Bill."

"All right, Bill, I just thought perhaps you would like to be called by what I fancied was your real name. I like Bill, though. It sounds big and strong and kind."

"Say, are you tryin' to kid me?"

"Why, no, Bill, I really do think that."

Bill gave Miss Belinda a sidelong glance, and then, with a rather sulky air followed her into the garden. She began to cultivate her aster bed.

"I s'pose you want me to do that for you," he remarked.

"Oh, no, thank you. I'm very fussy about hoeing. I really don't trust any one hardly, except myself. I really meant it, Bill, when I said you aren't to do any work unless you feel just like it. I had thought maybe you would think it fun to do some digging down at the other end of the garden, where I'm going to put in some tulip bulbs for next summer. There are lots of worms down there, and I thought maybe you would like to dig some for fishing, but if you would rather rest it's perfectly all right."

"Say, fishin' ain't work!"

"No, not always, but digging is," answered Miss Belinda, smiling. "Would you like to have me tell you where the shovel is, and what place is to be dug?"

"When could I use them worms, if I did dig 'em?"

"Well, there's Tim, the man cutting the grass over there. He likes to fish and I'll ask him to go out with you a little while this afternoon if you get some worms, Bill."

"Gee, I'll sure get 'em if there's any there. Can I row the boat?"

"Sure," replied Miss Belinda gravely.

Just before dinner when her young guest came running to the porch with a blue gill and three little perch on a string, and waved them excitedly before her, she looked as happy as he.

"You did have luck," she exclaimed. "That's splendid. After dinner you may watch Katie clean your fish."

"Gee, can't I do it?"

"Yes, if you don't mind working. Katie will show you how."

That evening Miss Belinda's brother asked her how she was getting on with her gamin.

"Why, Ben, you shall not call Bill such a name. He is quite a little gentleman. Tonight when I went up to his room to see that he was all right and to take him a piece of jelly roll and a glass of milk, he said, 'My gawd, isn't this service? Gee, Miss Belinda, you're the swell teacher.'"

"I s'pose then you're a vigilin' nurse.'

"Well, you're some swell dame even if you ain't got a man,' he said feelingly. And do you know, I'd like to keep that youngster all summer."

"Oh, Belinda, you're susceptible," said Ben. "Perhaps it might be wise to keep him until he learns not to use such frank words to his lady friend."

Miss Belinda laughed as she reached out and took her brother's hand.—Exchange.

Stories That Recall Others

And Undressed.

Little Emmeline was on a visit to her grandmother in the country. They had chicken for dinner, which pleased the little girl very much.

"Oh, where did you get the chicken, grandma?" she asked.

"From the chicken yard, dear. It's one of those you saw this morning."

"What, one of those I fed?"

"Yes, dear."

"Did you kill it?"

"Yes, darling."

"Oh, did you?" said Emmeline. "At home we buy ours ready made."

That One Went, Too!

In this household it was one procession of cooks. One day they entered the kitchen and the next they went out of the door. None of them seemed to have the slightest knowledge of how to boil an egg. A new "treasure" had just arrived and Mr. and Mrs. X sat down to breakfast on the morning after her arrival, with hope in their hearts. If Maggie's cooking was anything like her looks then it would indeed be good.

But, alas, when the bacon was placed on the table Mrs. X had only to take one look at it to see that it was burned to a cinder.

"Dear," said the wife to her husband, "the bacon is all burned again! I'm afraid you'll have to be satisfied with a kiss for breakfast this morning!"

"All right," responded the husband gruffly. "Call her in!"

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Prof. Niels Bohr, who is on his way to America to deliver a series of lectures at several leading colleges, is a young Danish scientist whose new theory of the structure of the atom earned him the Nobel physics prize for 1922. Prof. Bohr is 38 years old and a native of Copenhagen. Since 1916 he has held the chair in theoretical physics at the University of Copenhagen. For some years he was also attached to an English university as an instructor. In his studies and researches he has gone further than Sir Ernest Rutherford, a former Nobel prize winner, in that the Danish scientist has solved the problem of the relations of the inner structure of matter to the planetary electrons. Prof. Bohr, however, gives full credit to Sir Ernest as leader, and declares that his researches have been built on what the English scientist already had revealed.

A Little Talk on Thrift

Warning to Americans

Out of 100 average white male adults, nine leave estate which will produce $50 a month of more at 6 per cent. net; 37 leave estate which will produce an average of $20 a month at 6 per cent. net; and 54 leave little or, nothing.

These figures were obtained as the result of a survey made by Mr. Joseph J. Devney, economist and author of "Devney's Economic Table," among 20,000 adults throughout the United States. Assistance was given the compiler by 1,000 bankers and life insurance men. The reports showed the ages of the deceased, occupation, net estate and life insurance. More than one year was taken up in Mr. Devney's investigations, so he states, and the final results of his intensely interesting studies have but recently been made public.

Similar investigations have been made in this country from time to time and all have resulted in about the same general indications. Statistics, of course, have varied at different periods and in different parts of the country, but they have never varied on the one outstanding point that the closing years of the lives of many of less dependent on others for financial our citizens has found them more or succor.

These facts should serve the purpose of a timely warning to the millions of Americans who today are in the full enjoyment of health and prosperity.

The rules of life do not vary greatly. The 54 adults referred to in Mr. Devney's report were no less prosperous than 54 out of 100 average men today.

This is the thought that no individual can escape.

It is true that more and more of our people are appreciating the value of htrift; savings are growing in our banks; our lists of home owners is increasing; thrift is rapidly finding its way into the curricula of our schools.

But the actual conditions show that all too few of our people are able to hold onto the wealth they have helped to create.

It becomes a matter for each individual to study closely the situation that confronts him personally.

While you are able to earn and save, do so.

Make the resolve that, under no circumstances whatever, will you ever become one of the 54 out of every 100 for a whole life's work.—America who leave little or nothing to show Thrift Society.

QUARTERLY RETURN FROM POLICE COURT GREATER THAN EVER KNOWN

According to returns that were made Wednesday to the city treasurer by Clerk A. J. Bailey of the Norwich police court, the three months, from July 1st to Sept. 1st, have made the greatest quarter from a financial standpoint that the court has ever known. Clerk Bailey turned over to the city treasurer $7,043.94, which was the net receipts from the court for that period.

This quarter is the first of the city's fiscal year and as the receipts from the city court this year were estimated at $8,000 the court has already turned in close to the sum that was expected from it for the whole year. The net receipts as stated are three times what were estimated for a quarter at the yearly rate of $8,000.

The court has handled in receipts in the quarter $8,838.13 and the net sum that is turned over to the city treasury is what remains after deducting witness fees, state police fees, supplies for the court, and the money that is sent to Hartford from fines for violations of the motor vehicle law. The police court derives nothing from this last named business.

In 1915, which was the first year that Mr. Bailey was clerk, the entire net proceeds from the court amounted to $3,863.11, and the present quarterly return is more than any whole year during which he has been clerk. Prosecutions with fines for violations of the liquor law have played an important part in running up the financial side in the past three months as in the majority of the 39 such cases that have come before the court there have been fines of $200. Prosecutions for intoxication have also run up to an unusual number, reaching a total of 189. There have also been 95 cases of breach of the peace, both of these causes figuring in a substantial way on the financial side as they may be said to average fines of $5.

All this has greatly increased the work of the clerk's office, which is now more than it ever was before on the regular court business and in addition he has to keep the records of the juvenile court, which involve a great amount of detail in making out reports and statements to several different agencies concerned with juvenile cases.

ALL FAVORITES CONTINUE TO WIN IN WOMEN'S NATIONAL GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

New York, Oct. 3.—Four members of the New York Yankees, including Babe Ruth, their star of stars, were on the casualty list today but with a week remaining before the opening of the world's series, all are expected to round into condition again by the time the club takes the field against the Giants.

Wally Pipp, whose ankly injjury was reported to be so serious that he might not be able to start the series, hobbled into the Yankee offices today, aided by a cane, to announce that he was improving rapidly and would be at first base for the American league champions in the opening game. Pipp twisted his ankle in the series with the Red Sox at Boston recently.

Ruth, who was discussed as a likely substitute at the initial bag in case Pipp is kept out, also has a tender ankle. The injury is not serious but he will give it all the rest it needs however, for the next few days. The Babe also developed a slight infection of the hand in Boston but this was said to have practically disappeared.

McNally, utility infielder, and Bob Meusel, outfield, are the others on the casualty list, both with sprained ankles.

The Yankees return tomorrow to the stadium for a series with the Athletics that will wind up the season for both clubs. The Hugmen expect to have workouts Monday and Tuesday on the Polo Grounds, home of their rivals, to familiarize themselves with the lights and shadows of the reconstructed enclosure. The Giants go to Baltimore tomorrow to continue their series with the Orioles, International league champions.

Philadelphia, Oct. 3.—The baseball season closed in this city today, Philadelphia taking the final game of the series from Washington 12 to 8. ### TIGERS CONTINUE TO WIN, BEAT WHITE SOX 8 TO 4

Chicago, Oct. 3.—The Detroit Tigers defeated the White Sox for the third straight time today, 8 to 4. Robertson was hit hard in spots and retired after seven innings. The Sox could do nothing with Whitehill, a recruit left-hander who held them to three hits until the eighth inning. Heilmann was forced to remain out of the game because of an injured arm caused by his stumbling over first base in yesterday's game. Score:

NEALE DOES ALL SCORING FOR YALE

New Haven, Oct. 3.—Neale did all the scoring for the Yale varsity in the half hour scrimmage against the scrub team this afternoon. The teams had their work in the bowl for the first time this year in preparation for Saturday's opening game of the season against North Carolina.

Neale made two touchdowns, one the result of a 15 yard run and the other after a series of line plunges by Stevens, Neale and Bench.

Richeson started the game at quarterback, but was kicked in the arm and was replaced by Russell Murphy, who was quarterback on the freshman team three years ago. The rest of the backfield was made up of Stevens, left half; Neale, right half; Bench, fullback. In the line Bingham started at left end; the tackles were Miller and Diller; guards, Esselstyn and Norris; Lovejoy, center; Luman, right end. Late in the scrimmage Hart replaced Luman.

After the first touchdown Neale failed to kick a goal. After the second touchdown Murphy kicked a field goal.

The final score was made when the varsity had rushed the ball to the scrubs' 30 yard line and Neale kicked a goal.

Richeson will be able to scrimmage tomorrow and it is probable that Captain Mallory will be able to start the game Saturday, although he is limping from a shin bruise.

POLO CHAMPIONSHIP MAY GO TO FOREIGN SHORES

Westbury, N. Y., Oct. 3.—(By the A. P.)—For the second time in as many years the open polo championship of the United States may go to foreign shores

On the international field of the Meadow Brook club today the British army four, which recenty was defeated for the military championship of the world, galloped to an easy victory over the American Shelburne team, 10 to 5. As the Flamingo team has defaulted the other semi-final to Meadow Brook, the home club will contest the British team for the title on Saturday.

"Jingle" Wilson, Major A. H. Wilson in the army register, the chief factor when the United States won the military title, was all but eliminated from today's encounter by Major Vivian Lockett, back of the British four, who stuck to the defense like mucilage.

That allowed the British No. 2 and No. 3 to feed the ball to Col. T. P. Melville regarded as the best No. 1 in the British Empire, and he sent the ball across the American goal five times, as much as the whole American team did.

The British adopted the Americans' dashing style of play and left their adversaries at the center of the field at the play-off. Once, for a few minutes, Shelburne was within one goal of tying the score, but that was the best they could do.

J. Watson Webb, veteran internationalist and "southpaw," was the star for Shelburne. He seldom missed with his mallet, either in a melee or at full gallop, from either side of his mount.

CLAIMS SANDE THINKS ZEV BETTER THAN MY OWN

New York, Oct. 3.—A unique figure in the background of the controversy over the relative merits of Zev and My Own as candidates to race Papyrus in jockey Earl Sande, premier rider of American turf.

Sande has had the leg up on both Zev and My Own in all of their important victories this season and though he is under contract to Harry F. Sinclair, owner of Zev, he will ride America's color bearer in the international race with the English derby winner, regardless of which horse is chosen by the Jockey Club's committee next Saturday.

Sande has not figured openly in the controversy resulting from failure to arrange a final trial race between the rival American thoroughbreds but the jockey is said to have expressed his belief that My Own is better than Zev at a mile and a half, the distance of the international match. Zev's owner declined a trial race at this distance.

Sande carried Rear Admiral Grayson's colors on My Own in all of the horse's five victories, four at Saratoga and the fifth in the national trial sweepstakes at Belmont park recently. Except for Zev's first race this season, when Jockey L. Fator had the mount, Sande has ridden the Rancocas colt to victory in seven of its other eight races, including the Kentucky derby.

GOVERNOR TEMPLETON AT DANBURY FAIR WEDNESDAY

Danbury, Oct. 3.—Gov. Charles A. Templeton and staff and members of the Mayors' association of Connecticut attended the Danbury fair today. The governor acted as starter for one of the races. There were three races on the program today.

EXPECT FOUR CRIPPLED YANKEE PLAYERS TO BE IN WORLD'S SERIES

Rye, N. Y., Oct. 3 (By the A. P.).—The victory of Miss Alexa Stirling over Miriam Burns of Kansas City, the western champion, at the 18th hole, Miss Glenna Collett's fine medal score in defeating Dorothy Higbie of Chicago, and Miss Edith Cummings' 7 and 6 decision ovevr Miss Audrey Faust of St. Louis were the interesting points today in the second round play for the women's national golf championship.

The best golf of the round was played by Miss Collett, the defending champion. She turned the first nine holes in 37, one stroke under women's par as it is figured on the shortened course, and then in par figures won the next two holes and the match 8 up and 7 to play. Her shots up to the green were faultless and she would have been three strokes better for the 11 holes had her putting been better. She missed three putts of less than two feet.

The largest of the galleries followed Miss Stirling and Miss Burns. This pair turned the first nine all even and then were up and down until the 17th. After the 16th Miss Stirling was one up. Her drive off the 17th tee was straight down to the fairway to the joint of the elbow and she apparently had an easy shot to the green over the lake. Miss Burns drive was a bit short and in rough grass on the side of a rocky hill. Pitching over the mound, her ball hit a tree but took a lucky bounce into short grass. Miss Stirling's second failed to carry the lake and she was forced to drop a ball. Her fourth made the green. On her third Miss Burns took a chance and shot for the green, but her ball again hit a tree and bounded to the left. She was within 12 feet of the pin in four. Miss Stirling's approach putt stymied the western girl and it seemed the best she could do would be to halve. Then she stepped to her ball and curled around the stymie for a five and the hole, the match being all even.

Miss Stirling was on the 18th green on a drive, a mashie and an iron. A little shorter than her opponent on her first two shots, Miss Burns hit the green with her iron shot and rolled to the right. Her chip shot was within a dozen feet of the pin but her first putt rimmed the cup. Miss Stirling was down in two for a five to win the match.

Tomorrow Miss Stirling and Mrs. Jones will be opponents; Mrs. Goss will meet Mrs. Hurd; Miss Collett will play Mrs. Vanderbeck, and Miss Cummings and Miss Leitch will be opponents.

COLUMBIA ELIGIBLE TO COMPETE FOR TROPHY

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 3.—The trustees of the international fishermen's cup today declared the American schooner Columbia eligible to compete for the trophy.

After a meeting this afternoon the following telegram, signed by the Secretary, E. A. Saunders, was dispatched to Wilmot A. Reed, secretary of the race committee, Gloucester, Mass.:

"Measurements given by the Columbia make her eligible as a challenger under this year's rules, except for a slight difference in freeboard, which the trustees are willing to concede. If any other previously constructed vessel is nominated she must comply with last year's rules regarding draught, waterline, sail area, etc. We suggest October 20 as the date for the first race. Telegraph as soon as possible if you propose challenging, so that we may make necessary arrangements."

The Nova Scotia fleet race which will decide the defender for the fishermen's trophy now held by the province by the schooner Blue Nose, will be held off Lunnenburg at a date yet to be set, but probably about October 12.

MERRIMAN BREAKS OWN WORLD'S RECORD OF 2.01.3-4

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 3.—(By the A. P.)—Merriman, driven by Thomas W. Murphy, won the Cumberland stake, feature of today' grand circuit card, clipping a quarter second from his own world's record for 4 year old geldings of 2:01 3-4.

The 2:11 trot went to Ailsal after four heats. Not being satisfied with the drive of Rutherford in the third heat, Vic Fleming, was substituted, the mare being a handy winner in the final round. The judges awarded Fleming $50 for driving the heat and reserved decision as to Rutherford until later. Rex Harvester won the 2:19 trot after David Axworthy had won the first heat.

Walter M., and Artie John each had a heat in the 2:10 pace when it was forced to a postponement because of darkness.

GIANTS WIN EXHIBITION GAME FROM BALTIMORE

New York, Oct. 3.—The New York Giants, National League champions, today defeated Baltimore International champion pennant winners, in an exhibition game, 9 to 3.

Babe Ruth, Aaron Ward and Elmer Smith, of the Yankees, took part in the contest, which was for the benefit of John B. Day and James Mutrie, who were associated in the ownership of the Giants in the early days of the club. Ruth retired after knocking out a home run in the fifth inning.

Emil Meusel, Kelly and Cunningham also hit home runs. Score:

BECKETT FINALLY GETS HIS SHARE OF FIGHT PURSE

London, Oct. 3—The boxing officials today decided that Joe Beckett British heavyweight champion, should receive his share of the purse for his fight with Georges Carpentier, payment of which was held up after the fight Monday night.

It appears that the money, amounting to between pounds sterling 3,000 and pounds sterling 4,000 was withheld because the officials considered that the action of Beckett's seconds in throwing a towel into the ring as signal of defeat after the Englishman had been knocked down three times was unjustified. Upon further consideration, however, it was decided that Beckett could not be held responsible for this "indiscretion."

The bout was scheduled for twenty rounds, but ended twenty seconds after the opening bell was sounded.

TAFTVILLE-J B. MARTIN BOOKED FOR SATURDAY

The attention of baseball fans is being drawn to Taftville Saturday, when the final game between the Taftville A. A. and J. B. Martin Co. team is to be played on the Providence street grounds.

Manager Troland's players have won one game from their rivals and expect to win Saturday only after a hard fight.

Taftville's lineup for the fray is made up of players familiar to local fans, including Belair behind the bat, and Davis on the mound. Cardle will cover first base, J. Murphy second and Chip Dugas the dizzy corner. The short field will be handled by Liberty and the outer garden by Jarvis in left, M. Dugas center, and F. Murphy or Gaudette in right.

The battery for J. B. Martin is made up of Lemieux or Morin, pitch, and Haniel, catch.

Voluntown Defeats Plainfield.

The Voluntown baseball team ended their season on Sunday with a great victory over the Plainfield team. Dupont, pitching for Voluntown, pitched the best game of the season, holding the visitors to two singles, striking out 18 and passing one, and only one of the visitors reaching second base. Dupont was given almost perfect support and was master of the game at all times. The locals won the game in the third inning, a two base hit, a three bagger, a sacrifice and two singles bringing in four runs and the game.

Bosleigh, pitching for Plainfield, pitched a great game with the exception of the third inning and received fairly good support.

The local team, composed of nearly all green local talent, have had a very successful season, winning 10 out of 15 games played, winning the last six in a row, the last two being shutouts for the visitors, only one error being made in the two games, a very creditable showing.

What to Eat to Put Iron in Your Blood and Make You Strong

PHYSICIAN TELLS HOW IRON-CONTAINING VEGETABLES SUCH AS LENTILS, SPINACH, APPLES, ETC. WHEN REGULARLY TAKEN WITH ORGANIC IRON BUILD GREAT STRENGTH AND ENDURANCE

"At their own doors—in the very gardens of those who are weak, nervous and ailing all the while is one of the most valuable tonics and strength-builders known to medical science," says Dr. Emile Sauer, well known New England physician, when consulted recently.

Dr. Sauer further said: "If your daily diet contains an abundant amount of iron you are giving your body the red blood food it craves. But if your blood lacks iron and is thin, pale and watery you cannot expect to be strong and well. On the contrary, your nerves become weakened and you become irritable, fussy and easily upset. In such cases, what you need is iron—organic iron to remove the cause of your trouble, and the moment organic iron is supplied it is often wonderful how quickly your multitude of symptoms will disappear and how strong and vigorous you will become." But be careful to distinguish between ordinary metallic iron which people usually take and true organic iron. Metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on iron filings, while organic iron is a true red blood food, like the iron in your blood itself and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. In fact, if you will eat a pint or two of spinach, half a pint of lentils and three or four baked apples each day you will probably not need to take any other form of organic iron; but most people prefer to eat a smaller quantity of iron-containing vegetables and take organic iron, like Nuxated Iron, with them. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. To prove to yourself what Nuxated Iron can do for you, get your doctor to take a specimen of your blood and make a "blood count" of your red blood corpuscles; then take Nuxated Iron for a month and have a new "blood count" made and see how your red blood corpuscles have increased and how much stronger and better you feel; see how the color has come back to your cheeks, how steady and strong your nerves have become. At all druggists.

NUXATED IRON ENRICHES THE BLOOD—GIVES NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY

WHITE CROSS COUNCIL OFFICERS ARE INSTALLED

The newly elected board of officers of White Cross council, No. 12, Knights of Columbus, was regularly installed, and took over the duties of their offices at a large attended meeting held Tuesday evening at the K. of C. home on Broadway.

The impressive installation ceremonies were conducted by District Deputy John F. Hennon of Jewett City, assisted by P. Joseph Desmond of this city. The following were the officers installed:

G. K., Francis T. Diggins; D. G. K., M. Frank Leonard; chan., Thomas F. Shea; rec. sec'y M. J. Kirby; fin. sec'y, Joseph E. Burns; treas., Frank A. Powers; warden, Richard Marks; advocate, M. J. Cosgoran; I. G., Henry Gorman; L. G., Bernard W. Ryan; lecturer, John J. O'Rourke; chaplain, Rev. W. A. Keefe.

Following the installation ceremonies, Grand Knight Diggins announced the membership of the various standing committees for the year and stated that plans were under consideration for a season of active work along lines that would engage the interest of the entire membership.

As a first undertaking he referred to the bazaar to be held by the council in November, plans for which had been perfected under the direction of the retiring board of officers, and urged the cooperation of all the members in making the affair a big success.

District Deputy Hennon then made a stirring address to the members, emphasizing the great opportunity that they had for furthering the interests of Columbianism, if they only lived up to their obligations to the council and to the order. Thanks were extended to Past Grand Knight M. J. Curran and the other officers associated with him, in the management of the affairs of the council during the past year, for the success of their administration. At the conclusion of the business session the members had a social hour which was thoroughly enjoyed by those present.

Jared Hall of Sterling has been spending a few days with Mr and Mrs. Albert Pike.

Mrs. A. E. Hall and Mrs. P. H. Coffey were entertained at dinner Wednesday by Mrs. William Dean of Central Village in celebration of Mrs. Dean's birthday.

Alcott Sayles of East Killingly was in this section recently enumerating school children.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Leonard and daughters, Lyra and Helen, of Valley Falls, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Barlow.

Francis and Beatrice Coffey were members of the graduating class at the Westfield church school Sunday.

There was a large attendance at the special service Sunday evening. Rev. Harry S. McCready of Willimantic and Rev. W. S. Beard of New York were the speakers. During the service Mrs. Alton Frost sang a solo and Mrs. Minnie Vaughn and Earl Winslow sang a duet. The special music was much appreciated. Both addresses were helpful and left in the minds of the hearers the thought of going forward.

Ernest Drew and family, Arthur Drew and family and Mrs. Herbert Drew, all of Providence, were here Sunday and attended the evening service.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

In a Big Oak Tree.

The leaves are turning golden brown,
The smoke is rising from the town,
And through the vale a purple haze
Is drifting to woodland ways.
And in the wood the squirrels gray
Are gathering nuts to store away.
"Heigh-ho," said Little Jack Rabbit as he hopped along. "Autumn is here. Pretty soon it will be Lady Love's Birthday. I wonder what she is doing!"

"Oh, she's all right," cried a voice, all of a sudden, just like that and out popped a little dwarf, dressed in green with a blue cap on his head.

"Who are you?" asked the bunny boy, startled at the sight of this funny little man of the forest.

"I'm Blue Cap and this big forest belongs to me," answered the little man, pulling a little silver box out of his pocket and taking a pinch of snuff.

"Will you have some?" he asked politely.

"No, thanks," replied the little rabbit, "it would make me sneeze."

"Ha, ha, laughed the little man, "that wouldn't hurt you," and slipping the little box in his waistcoat pocket, commenced to sing:

"'Twas just a night or two ago
I saw five rabbits in a row,
And one of them cried out to me.
I hear from Master Bumble Bee,
That Uncle Lucky's feeling fine
And goes to bed at half past nine!"

"Goodness!" said the little bunny. "He must be feeling very young and frisky. I'm glad to hear that."

"You needn't worry about him," said the little man of the forest. "Come with me. I have a nice house in a big oak tree not far from here."

So they started off and after a while, by and by and maybe a mile they came to a great big tremendous tree. Close to the ground was a tiny door with an acorn knob which the little men turned and then, of course, the door flew open. Inside was a nice moss rug on the floor and a little bed with a white cover and over on the mantel place, a cuckoo clock.

"Come in," said Blue Cap. "Make yourself comfortable while I go into the kitchen to see what there is for supper."

While he was gone, a little gray squirrel peeped into the room and seeing the bunny boy, hopped over to a corner and sat up on his hind legs, with his long bushy tail curled over his back. Then, with a wink of his little bright eyes, he said:

"Why, here is a rabbit with high top boots,
And a cap with a long gray feather.
Now, what does he do to keep it dry
When it's stormy rainy weather?"

And in the next story you hall hear what happened after that.

BODY OF HARRY OLSON FOUND OFF CHAPPELL WHARF, NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin.)

New London, Oct. 3.—Levi Kenyon has been in the habit of leaving automobiles of various sorts in Franklin and Home streets when he was not using them. He has also allowed cars that he was to wreck, for that is his business, to remain in the streets. His action annoyed his neighbors because they were not accustomed to that sort of thing in a section that had always been a residential portion of the city till Mr. Kenyon established his wrecking business in the rear of his house. Lycurgus M. Sistare, a broker, complained to the prosecutor and explained conditions there so the prosecutor issued a warrant for the arrest of Kenyon as he seemed not to be disposed to abate what the neighbors declare a nuisance. Mr. Sistare told the court this morning that Kenyon had kept a truck in the street opposite his place and in front of the Sistare house for three weeks at a time and last winter the truck had frozen into the gutter so that it could not be gotten out. He declared that children played in the truck and on top of it and that once they succeeded in starting the engine. Mr. Kenyon did not deny that what the complainant said was true, but he seemed to think that keeping his automobiles in the street was "parking" them in the meaning of a city ordinance, and to believe that under that ordinance he had a right to keep the cars there an indefinite period. The court, however, did not take the same view of parking that Mr. Kenyon took and fined him $25, suspending the execution of the judgment indefinitely. Even that did not satisfy Mr. Kenyon and he appealed from the decision to the common pleas court and gave a bond of $100 for appearance for trial.

The funeral of Walter A. Goodwin was held this morning at 11 o'clock at his home, 105 School street. The services were conducted by Rev. Herbert Starr, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, Waterford. The bearers were Mr. Goodwin's three sons-in-law, J. Randall Smith, Willard D. Harris and Charles F. Potter, with William E. Kenyon. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

James A. Duffy, 55, formerly a resident of New London and at one time a member of firm of Duffy & George, architects, died yesterday at a New York hospital, where he had been under treatment for some time. Mr. Duffy is survived by his wife. He was a member of New London lodge, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. Mr. and Mrs. Duffy moved from New London to Brooklyn several years ago. Mr. Duffy had been in failing health a long time.

The funeral services for Mrs. Nancy E. Tiffany, widow of William H. Tiffany, held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of her son, Allen F. Tiffany, on Thames street, Groton, were conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church. The bearers were J. E. Crouch, Frank W. Allen, Irving H. Poppe, and Charles H. Willard. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Domenico Pietrzak, wife of Louis Pietrzak, died last night at her home, 34 Cedar street, after a lingering illness.

Charles Syphers of Hempstead street, William Spicer, Waller court, William Holden, Westerly, Mrs. George Augusta, Springfield, Mass., Mrs. Emeline Thompson, Vauxhall street, Dorothy Losacano, Connecticut avenue, Mrs. Camile Tudisco, Woodbridge street and James Serra of Westerly, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Horace Patch of Rosemary street, is recovering from severe burns sustained recently when a receptacle on a kitchen range which contained hot grease overturned. Mrs. Patch was badly burned about the right hand and forearm.

Rawdon Cook of Franklin street, Mrs. Guido Juliani and infant, of Hempstead street, Mrs. Uhland Culpepper and infant of Groton, and Francis Puradis of Groton, were patients discharged today at Home Memorial hospital.

Mrs. Helen Kenney Floyd, wife of J. James Floyd, secretary to former City Manager James E. Barlow and more recently secretary to former Mayors Bryan F. Mahan, Ernest E. Rogers and E. Frank Morgan.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wilbur have returned to their home in Fair Harbour place, having spent a fortnight on an automobile trip, to the White Mountains.

The body of Harry Olsen, about 28, fireman on the fishing steamer Herbert N. Edwards of this port, who was drowned in the Thames river early in the morning of Sept. 27th, was found floating off the wharf of the F. H. & A. H. Chappell company this morning, at a point close to where Olsen fell into the river during a drunken brawl aboard the fishing craft. The body was in an advanced stage of decomposition and identification was partially established because of the deep wound Olsen is alleged to have sustained when he fell on the deck of the boat while scrapping with Emil Strom, another fireman aboard the Edwards. Complete identification, however, was established by marks on Olsen's clothing.

The body was discovered by Charles Randall, of 175 Howard street and Edward A. Swan of 50 Blinman street, when the young men observed it in the river as they were on their way to work. Medical Examiner Harold H. Heyer, after an examination, ordered the body removed to an undertaking establishment.

Coroner J. J. Desmond of Norwich came to New London this afternoon and interrogated witnesses, after which he pronounced death being due to accidental cause.

Edward Helstrom, a third fireman on the Edwards, who was arrested at the time of the drowning, has been released from custody as the authorities are satisfied that Helstrom was in no way responsible for Olsen's death. Strom is under treatment at Lawrence hospital from a fractured leg, sustained when he jumped into the hold of the Edwards when arrested, the night of the fatality.

The engagement is announced of Ralph W. Matteson of New London, to Miss Marion Ryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Ryan of Hazardville. Mr. Matteson is employed as clerk at the Savings Bank of New London.

Edward McCarthy, son of Mrs. Sarah McCarthy, of Bridgeport, and Miss Helen McGuire, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McGuire of New Britain, will be married in that city next Wednesday. Mr. McCarthy and Miss McGuire formerly resided in New London.

Miss Mary Feeney of New Britain has concluded a visit with her sister, Mrs. Wesley N. Fay.

Thomas Bransfield, of 17 Harrison street, night watchman at the plant of Palmer Brothers, who suffered a shock recently, is much improved and it is believed that Mr. Bransfield will be able to resume his duties within a short time.

Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Brooks have returned, after a two weeks' automobile trip in New York state, Canada, Maine and the White Mountains.

Miss Minnie Avery is spending a few days with Boston friends.

Miss Francis O. Jones, a summer resident at the Pequot, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Waldo Johnstone, in Cooperstown, N. Y.

Mrs. F. Valentine Chappell, Mrs. W. Ellery Allyn and Miss Edna L. Tyler have returned, after a motor trip to the White Mountains in Mrs. Allyn's car.

Sergeant Samuel Hick today filed another bill of expense with City Manager William A. Holt and desires the payment of the bill, which amounts to about $130. The bill is for the use of the sergeant's automobile during September and represents the purchase of gasoline and oil and wear and tear upon the machine. The bill, however, was not paid, for it did not bear the O. K. of Captain of Police Charles A. Finney and because City Manager Holt intends to give the bill consideration before he orders it paid. City Manager Holt desires to confer with former City Manager Barlow, and Sergeant Hick before he authorizes the payment of the bill, which is about what Sergeant Hick was paid by the city for the use of the officer's Durant car during August. At the rate of the bills being presented by the sergeant, together with the salaries of the two officers, Hicks and Philopena, the city is expending about $5,500 a year for these two officers to chase illegal rum runners. It is understood that at the regular meeting of the city council next Monday night some members of the council will oppose the officers being paid any amount other than what their salary calls for as police officers, inasmuch as the two officers are doing only such duty as they are bound under oath to do, when working under Captain Finney and not out of the state's attorney's office.

Clarence C. Martin, night driver of the Thomas Hose company, son of Deputy Sheriff Manuel J. Martin, has been appointed a member of the state police department. Mr. Martin received notification of his appointment today. Mr. Martin is the last New Londoner to be a member of the department since Roy James resigned from the police force to take an appointment several years ago. Mr. James resigned after a few weeks.

The New London postoffice quarterly report shows that the business conducted there for the three months ending Sept. 30th was considerably in excess of that of the same period a year ago, for the business this year was $1,104.28 more than that of the quarter ending Sept. 30th, 1922.

White & Alexander, conducting an audit of the Groton ferry accounts, will probably complete the task the latter part of this week, and it is possible that a report will be made at the next regular meeting of the council Monday night.

Philip DeWolf of Bristol, R. I., district sales manager of The Mathieson Alkali Works, Inc., with offices in the Hospital Trust building, Providence, is a guest at the Hotel Mohican, to which place he went following his arrival in New London this afternoon in search of his two daughters, Phyllis, aged 13, and Isabella, 11, who, Mr. DeWolf alleges, were kidnapped today by his divorced wife's brother, James Wood, a resident of Pennsylvania. Mr. DeWolf informed the police, of whom he requested aid in intercepting Wood, who, it is known, is endeavoring to drive his automobile containing the children to Wood's home in Pennsylvania, that they were headed for Connecticut this morning, and it was believed that the machine, which bears Pennsylvania registration, would pass through New London.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Linlone and Mrs. A. H. Eshenfelder have returned, having motored to Cape Cod, where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Little.

Thomas F. Robertson, a patient at Lawrence hospital, having been admitted there two months ago, is considerably worse the past two or three days.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Freeman of the Hotel Inn are spending a few days with relatives at Brockton, Mass., and will attend Brockton fair. Mr. and Mrs. Freeman are making the trip by automobile.

Two delegates, one representing national headquarters of the musicians' union and the other the national headquarters of the stage hands' union, arrived in New London this forenoon and in a short time conferred with Manager Walter T. Murphy of the Lyceum, Capitol and Crown theatres relative to an adjustment of a wage and working schedule for the two organizations. It was stated that no announcement would be made of what went on until the matters at issue had been settled. The two unions recently made a demand for a substantial increase in wages and a shorter working day. Manager Murphy desired that action by the two unions in seeking new schedules be deferred until March 1st but the request was denied. Mr. Murphy then sought a conference with representatives of the two bodies governing the affected unions.

Thomas C. Gannon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Gannon, was recently elected president of the sophomore class of Clark university, Worcester. Last year Mr. Gannon was awarded the Prentis Hoyt memorial prize for the best poem written by a student of the university.

"Time Means Life!" Is Slogan of Evangeline Booth In Rallying The Salvation Army for Japanese Relief

BY F. S. CLARKE.

Commander Evangeline Booth has mobilized the vast resources of the Salvation Army throughout the United States for two simultaneous campaigns in the interest of Japanese relief work.

The first is for at least $1,000,000 in cash to be transmitted with as little delay as possible to the relief stations established by the Salvation Army and the Japanese Government in Tokio and Yokohama.

The second is an appeal to the American people for discarded clothing to be sorted, fumigated and packed by the Salvation Army for immediate shipment to Japan. Commander Booth has received direct word from the stricken area to the effect that men's clothing of all kinds, women's clothing of simple design and remnants of practically all materials will be useful to the homeless Japanese during the coming cold season.

To meet the Japanese emergency adequately, and to make both campaigns successful, Commander Booth has summoned to her headquarters at New York the officers who aided her in making such a conspicuous success of Salvation Army service to the doughboys in France. Practically the entire war service machine of the organization has again been put into motion.

"In common with the people of the earthquake zone our workers have suffered and died," said Commander Booth in announcing the campaigns, "but, notwithstanding this great loss the Salvation Army in Japan is still functioning in an efficient and heroic manner.

"Among the bereaved and stripped and wounded who suffer indescribably, these workers minister unceasingly, and General Booth, my brother, has issued an urgent call to the entire world, asking for at least ten million dollars to carry on the work of succor that must be done by The Salvation Army forces in Tokio and adjacent cities.

"As the leader of this work in this great land I feel we must contribute worthily toward the relief of all this sorrow and tragedy. We must send at the very least one million dollars, and I am quite sure that the American people, having given such unmistakable evidence of their appreciation of the spirit and object of this Movement, will join in making the result of our appeal typical of the large and generous heart of the United States.

"Time means life—therefore I am trusting that the American people will respond as promptly as possible both in money and in contributions of useful clothing.

"The people may be assured that our relief measures will be carried out with simplicity and diligence and in such a way as to be a blessing to countless thousands of suffering and bewildered men, women and children."

Commander Booth explained that contributions for this purpose should be marked "Japanese Relief Fund" and sent either to her at National Headquarters, 122 West 14th Street, New York City, or to one of the three territorial commissioners who are cooperating vigorously in the campaign. They are Commissioner Thomas Estill, 122 West 14th Street, New York City, for the Eastern Territory; Commissioner Wm. Peart, 118 North State Street, Chicago, Ill., for the Central Territory; and Lieut.-Commissioner Adam Gifford, 86 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, Cal., for the Western Territory.

Bundles of clothing should be sent to the nearest Salvation Army Industrial Home or other Institution.

Losses sustained by the Salvation Army both in lives and property in Japan have not in the least incapacitated the organization for active relief work. Although the National Headquarters building, in Tokio, a modern structure of western design, has been destroyed, temporary headquarters have been set up and the officers in charge, through the assistance of government officials, have commandeered several fleets of automobile trucks which enable them to transport feed and other supplies without delay.

Prominent Japanese in the United States have written Commander Booth expressing their appreciation of the work being done among their stricken countrymen by the Salvation Army. These men know that the Salvation Army, has become, perhaps as strongly entrenched in Japan as in any other missionary country. Under the leadership of Commissioner William Eadie, a European Officer, and Col. Gunpei Yamamuro, a distinguished native, 300 commissioned officers and about 1000 members of the various Japanese corps have been organized for relief work.

"This is how the children of the Tokio slums look in normal times—how most they look now!" The question is asked by Commander Evangeline Booth, who is directing the Campaign of the Salvation Army for immediate aid in stricken Japan. A native Salvation Army lassie is shown examining the eyes of an old man at the left of the group.

Inset.—Commander Evangeline Booth, head of The Salvation Army in the United States, who has rallied her vast organization in two simultaneous campaigns in the interest of Japanese relief.

MARKET WAS ACTIVE.

New York, Oct. 3.—Heavy buying for the short account, which apparently was becoming over-crowded, brought about a vigorous up-turn in prices in today's stock market, the first million share day since Sept. 13. The rally, which was generally construed as a correction of a weakened technical condition, was conducted without relation to news developments. Several of the large commission houses reported that the buying came largely from professionaly sources, so-cavlled public participation being of a negligible character.

The upward movement started in the railroad shares, buying of which was influenced by the August earnings statements now being published. Particular attention was paid to "Big Four" which added 3 1-2 points to its 6 1-2 point gain yesterday, touching 104, a new high for the year, on reports of its purchase of New York Central interests.

Baltimore & Ohio and Chesapeake & Ohio, which are reported to be earning about $20 a share, each were run up another point or so, as were Wabash preferred A, New York Central, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, Lackawanna, Lehigh Valley, Erie first preferred and several others. Reading was pushed up 3 5-8.

Baldwin, in which the short interest is supposed to be unusually large, made the best showing among the so-called pivotal stocks, closing 5 points higher at 120 after having sold slightly above that figure. Studebaker, which with other motors has been under pressure recently in speculative expectation of more interest competition and price cutting in the automotive industry next year, was not far behind, climbing 4 3-8 points to 99 1-2. United States Steel crossed 89 for a net gain of nearly 2 points and American Can closed 3 points higher at 93 3-4.

The weekly Steel Trade Reviews report a further slight contraction in output of both big iron and steel. Since March there has been a shrinkage of 1,988,699 tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation. Septtember operations of the corporation are reported to be at 87 per cent. of steel making capacity and if the 31,000 ton daily bookings reported in the first three weeks were continued through the month, the reduction in unfilled orders is expected to be considerably below the 496,000 ton decrease of August.

Today's market was not without its weak spots. Jones Bros. Tea broke below 30 to a new low for the year on unofficial reports that the year's earnings will be considerably below the $10 or $12 a share reported a few weeks ago. National Enameling also had a temporary sinking spell, dropping to 45 1-2 but it rallied later to 47 3-4, up 3-4 on the day. The only other conspicuous weak spots were J. I. Case and Van Raalte Silk, off 3 1-2 and 4 3-4 points, respectively, the turn-over in each case being small.

Money rates were somewhat easier. Funds on call opened at 5 per cent., decreased to 4 1-2 and thence to 4. Some 30 and 60 day time money was quoted as low as 5 1-4 per cent. but the bulk of time funds moved at 5 1-2. The commercial paper market was steady.

Demand sterling held steady around $4.54 3-8 but, the continental rates were reactionary. French francs dropped 12 points to 5.87 cents and German marks sank to a new low of 1-5 of a cent a million.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Prospects of government help for wheat growers led to active buying of wheat today and to decidedly higher prices, for all grain. Wheat closed firm, 1 1-2 to 2@2 1-2c up. Corn scored 1 3-4c to 1 3-4c net advance, and oats 1-4c to 1-2c advance. In provisions, the outcome varied from 10c decline to a rise of 5c.

With news at hand that President Coolidge had today directed the war finance corporation representatives to leave Washington at once to discuss with wheat growers of the central northwest more extensive use of government funds under the rural credits act, the wheat market went rapidly upward almost as soon as trading began. On the ascent of prices, heavy profit-taking sales brought about moderate temporary stabacks, but the offerings were readily absorbed, and new upturns ensued. Bearishly inclined traders seemed to lack courage for agressive action in the face of continued talk of government measures for farm relief and in view of diminishing receipts at primary terminals.

In some quarters, the absence of any definite moves toward an increase of wheat tariff or toward a reduction of freight rates on wheat was commented on as significant, but such comment appeared to have no bearish effect on the market. Little attention, either, was apparently given to assertions that bolstering of prices in this country would drive export business to Canada and to other cheaper markets and would increase the domestic seeding of wheat this fall.

In sympathy with wheat and as a result of scarcity of offerings, all deliveries of corn rose to a new high price record for the season, and so, too, did May Oats. No. 2 yellow corn brought as high as $1.07 1-2 a bushel, the first time since October, 1920, that the price has reached $1.00 or above.

Provisions were firm with grain and hogs.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Oct. 3.—While United States government issues, with the exception of the tax empt 3 1-2s, which improved, continued to be offered freely, bond traders noted a slightly better demand for the general run of railroad mortgages and industrial liens in today's trading on the New York Stock Exchange. Outside dealers reported also a fair gale of over-the-counter bonds.

Some impetus was given the market by the announcement of J. P. Morgan & Co., of public offering tomorrow of an issue of $17,000,000 5 per cent. 20-30-year equipment trust certificates of the New York Central lines at prices to yield from 5.20 to 5.45 per cent.

Moderate gains resulted from the increased demand for railroad mortgages and a number of sugar and oil company liens moved upward. Utility Company liens and the bonds of a number of industrial specialties, however, were reactionary.

Continued uncertainty over the European situation was reflected in the relative heaviness of foreign issues, most of the French municipals falling off fractionally.

Public offering will be made tomorrow of $1,800,000 Territory of Hawaii 4 1-2 per cent 20-year public improvement bonds on a 4.40 per cent. basis and there are reports of an early offering of $50,000,000 federal land bank bonds.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Oct. 3.—Heavy buying of the Standard Oil issues brought about a comprehensive advance in today's curb market, one of the strongest and most active in weeks.

Forty thousand shares of Standard Oil of Indiana changed hands, the closing price of 57 1-2 representing a net gain of 2 1-8 points. Much of the buying in this group came from short interests. Gains of 2 to 4 points were recorded by such issues as the Standard Oils of Kansas, Kentucky and New York, Prairie Oil & Gas, Imperial of Canada and Continental.

Strength of the oils brought about sympathetic advances in the industrials, International Concrete Industries, American Stores and McCrory Stores selling at their highest prices of the year. Reading Coal rights climbed 2 points in sympathy with a sharp advance in the stock on the "Big Board." Gillette Safety Razor continued its recovery and is now about 30 points above the low of the year. Durant showed a fractional gain but other motors were neglected.

Mining shares were traded in on a reduced scale with price changes unimportant.

MYSTIC

The activities committee of the Community house met Tuesday evening to plan the work for the month. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. George Waseman, Mrs. O. A. Wilcox, Mrs. L. J. Hermes, Nathan Brown, Miss Mildred Cooper, Miss Marion Allen, Miss Minnie Flynn, Lloyd Moore and Mr. Willett.

Miss Marguerite M. Foley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Foley, was united in marriage with Sebastian Shea of Westerly at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning at St. Patrick's church by Rev. William J. Fitzgerald. The bride wore a white romain crepe dress with pearl trimmings and carried bridal roses and swansonia. The bridesmaid, Miss Elizabeth Foley, sister of the bride, wore a peach georgette gown with cream lace and carried a bouquet of old fashioned flowers. The best man was Gerald F. Brassill of Norwich. The ushers were Leroy Shea of Mystic and Henry Sullivan of Waterbury. The sanctuary was decorated with asters and palms.

Later a reception was held at the home of the bride on Haley street. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Shea will reside in Westerly where Mr. Shea is employed. Mrs. Shea has been employed at the West Mystic office of the Sea Sled company.

had found in Mrs. Webb's organs was sufficient to have caused death, made known the results of his examination in these words:

"I have found mercury in the viscera of Mrs. Webb. I have examined some tablets taken from the sick room and said, to be the only antiseptic tablets found there and I found them perfectly harmless. I have had no statement from anyone, nor have I heard of any statement showing that Mrs. Webb used bichloride of mercury."

Mrs Johnstone and Mrs. Webb lived in her arms that Mrs. Webb died.

Mrs. Johnstone was accompanied to the grand jury room by her husband and his law partner, Stanley Richter. Approached by reporters, she said:

"My husband will talk for me."

It is said Mr. Rowland yesterday that Mrs. Johnstone would voluntarily appear before him at any time and tell whatever she knew," said Mr. Johnstone. "She was prepared to make a statement to him before going before the grand jury but he said he did not want her statement yesterday. Our only interest in the matter is to uphold the truth and justice."

Mrs. Johnstone remained in the grand jury room just five minutes.

"Did Mrs. Johnstone leave her diary with the grand jury?" her husband who had waited outside for her, was asked.

"She hasn't it with her," he replied. "You can draw your own conclusions."

District Attorney Rowland said he had issued subpoenas for Mr. and Mrs. William Hunter of Devon, Pa., uncle and aunt of the dead woman but that process servers had been unable to locate them. Subpoenas are also out for Dr. Francis Irwin and Dr. A. B. Edgar, both of New York, who were called into conference by Dr. Meyer shortly before Mrs. Webb died.

Dr. Davenport West, who attended Mrs. Webb at the Roosevelt hospital before she went to the club, will probably appear before the grand jury.

Dr. Meyer, who said he had told the grand jury he wished the privilege of returning as a witness that he might retail further circumstances which did not occur to him when he testified yesterday, declared in his formal statement that he had requested Mr. Rowland to call him again Monday.

Dr. Meyer took exception to the attitude of the district attorney yesterday in telling reporters that he had not got a statement from the physician before calling him before the grand jury.

"This is not true," declared Dr. Meyer.

"When I did appear before the grand jury I as asked to sign a waiver of immunity. Mr. Rowland said I was exposing myself as well as others to indictment if the grand jury saw fit."

"I signed the waiver, but took deep personal umbrage at the insinuation that my professional and conscientious efforts as a physician to further the ends of justice should in any way be questioned. The inference was distinctly given to the grand jury before any questions were asked of me that I, as the attending physician, was not beyond suspicion, all of which I deeply resent.

"I was more than a willing witness. It was not necessary to drag me into the grand jury room because it was I who insisted on an autopsy and investigation.

"It was on advice of counsel who were dissatisfied with the attitude of the district attorney and the coroner that I appeared before the district attorney and insisted my story be told directly to the grand jury and be made a matter of record."

Turning his attention to Mr. Webb the physician said:

"Mr. Webb mistakes the fact when he stated that I refused a consultation. Mr. Webb paid no little attention to his wife's condition that he failed to make any suggestions. But I resorted to consultations with very reputable physicians and experts long before Mrs. Webb died. On the day of Mrs. Webb's death, when Mr. Webb appeared in the corridor outside the sickroom in company with an attorney and a doctor I did then refuse the offer of consultation because Mrs. Webb was then unconscious and dying."

First Memorial To Warren G. Harding

Ohio children will start the first memorial to Warren G. Harding. It will be a Road of Remembrance starting at Lima, Allen County, and the road will be planted through to Marion, Ohio. Mrs. Harding has been invited to plant the first tree and Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree Association at Washington, D. C, will give certificates of membership in the tree planting army to each tree planter. Lynn B. Timmerman, of Lima, will provide six thousand trees for the Harding Highway, a distance of twenty-six miles. According to present plans Van Wert County and Hardin County will continue the highway planting. Allen County's six thousand school children will do the planting under the direction of the Lima Automobile Club and thus join the American Tree Association. A suggestion has been made that the Cannonball Trail out of Chicago be renamed the Harding Memorial Highway and Mr. Pack urges that highway be planted with memorial trees. It is expected the work started in Lima, will be continued beyond the Indiana Line and then hook up with the Cannonball Trail. Plans are now underway for memorial tree planting from Marion to Canton, Ohio, and the tomb of William McKinley. Thousands are planting trees this Fall and registering them with the American Tree Association. Mr. Pack has just been informed by the French Embassy that the French Minister of Agriculture, has awarded him the title of "Commander du Merite Agricole" in recognition of his sending millions of tree seeds to reforest the battle areas.

MRS. EARLS TELLS WOMEN

How Backache and Periodic Pains Yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Olean, N. Y.—"Every month my blood would go to my head and I would have such a headache, nosebleed, backache and pains that I could not do my work. At night I could not get my rest and nothing seemed to do me any good. I read some of your testimonials about what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others, so I decided to try it. I had only taken two bottles when I began to be better, and my back did not hurt me nor my head ache. I felt like a new woman. The Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine and I will always recommend it."—Mrs. A. D. EARLS, 530 N. 5th St., Olean, N. Y.

Mrs. Kelsey Adds Her Testimony

Copenhagen, N. Y.—"I read your advertisement in the papers and my husband induced me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to get relief from pains and weakness. I was so weak that I could not walk at times. Now I can do my housework and help my husband out doors, too. I am willing for you to publish this letter."—Mrs. HERBERT KELSEY, R.F.D., Copenhagen, N. # MATRON DOWD TELLS ROTARIANS

GREAT NEEDS OF BACKUS HOSPITAL

An earnest talk by Miss Kathleen Dowd, matron of the Backus hospital and superintendent of the nurses' home, made a strong impression at the weekly meeting of the Rotary club at the Wauregan house Wednesday noon when she spoke with emphasis of the great needs of the hospital in order that it may render the service to the community that is expected. Miss Dowd, Miss Florence Wakefield, who is in charge of the operating room, and Miss Ruth Cooper, who is assistant superintendent of nurses, were guests of the Rotarians and at the luncheon, having seats at the officers' table with President Charles A Saxton.

In introducing Miss Dowd, President Saxton spoke in warm appreciation of the work of the hospital, and the nurses, of which he had knowledge from personal experience, and stressed the importance of supporting the coming campaign for the $250,000 fund for which he said everybody must work and induce others to work.

Miss Dowd, in beginning, expressed appreciation of the Rotary club's work and thanks for the gift of the ambulance and oxygen machine secured largely through its efforts. We all know, she said, the advantages of a hospital and the trained nurse, and she urged needed help for the institution. During the past year the Backus hospital has done a great service in the treatment of 1,467 patients. What would Norwich do without it? The hospital is there and the ambulance is ready in every emergency, while the nurses meet the incoming patient at the door and devotedly minister to his or her needs. There is a shortage of nurses all over the country and more must be trained. The Backus hospital at the present time cannot properly house its nurses and those who seek its training. Its nurses' home is overcrowded, as anybody can see who accepts the invitation to visit the worthy institution. After a hard and trying day's work the nurse needs rest and quiet to prepare for the work of tomorrow, and it is the object of the coming campaign to provide suitable accommodations for this. Our interest must be centered in our own hospital in our own home town. The advantages of training for nurses to meet emergencies were forcibly described and Miss Dowd told of the strenuous service required of them, the doors of the hospital being open 24 hours a day. At the present time four nurses in training have to be housed downtown for lack of room at the institution. This cannot go on, and help must come to overcome this deficiency. The need of a training school for nurses is obvious; nowhere else can they get the special education demanded. There is need of its discipline, with its rules and regulations. Nurses need a different environment from others; there must be the training school and a good home for the nurses, with a pleasant reception room and ample rest rooms after their trying work. The poor and lowly are as tenderly cared for by the nurses as patients of better circumstances, and there is readiness at all times to meet emergencies. Public interest is much needed in the effort to take the nurses through their three years of sacrifice. Miss Dowd told of her own experiences, saying she learned everything at the Backus hospital. The nurse comes out from there a better woman, competent to make a better wife and mother and able to meet any emergency. If we are going to have nurses, said the speaker, we must care for them, and she urged upon all present their help in enabling the Backus hospital to provide the best home possible for its nurses.

President Saxton thanked the members for the remarkable support they had given to the coming concert by Loretta Higgins of the Opera Comique, Paris, for the benefit of the club's boys' fund, and he appointed William G. Park, Willis Austin and E. A. Harris as committee of the golf tournament.

Eben Learned, song leader for the day, conducted a spirited program. Among the groups he called on for songs were the three nurses and all those connected with the hospital or the coming drive. Another group that gave a vocal selection was Casper K. Bailey, the retiring first selectman, with the three present selectmen—W. S. Murray, C. P. Bushnell and P. T. Connell—who were his guests, and Mayor M. R. Waters.

The club's monthly publication, Wildflower, was distributed and enjoyed by the members, to many of whom its quips and jokes were especially significant. The singing of America, as usual, opened the meeting and The Star Spangled Banner closed it.

COLCHESTER CHAUFFEUR SOON RELEASED AFTER ARREST

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Oct. 3.—Carl Webster, chauffeur for Thomas F. Kinney of Colchester, had an unpleasant experience in New London this evening, when Webster was arrested at the request of his employer. It then developed that Kinney is not entirely responsible for his conduct and Webster was released after the automobile he had charge of had been seized by the police and put in storage.

According to the New London police Kinney had an appointment with Attorney Arthur M. Brown of Norwich this forenoon and after keeping the engagement Webster was instructed to drive Mr. Brown to the New London courthouse so that the attorney could attend to some legal business. After the chauffeur had started for New London Kinney telephoned the New London police, stating that Webster had disappeared with the automobile and that should the chauffeur appear in New London to take him into custody. The police were given the registration of the supposed missing automobile and a short time after the machine reached New London and Attorney Brown was delivered at the courthouse the police found the car parked on Huntington street and it was taken possession of and placed in the police station garage. No trace of Webster was found until this evening when the chauffeur went to the courthouse for the purpose of driving Mr. Brown back to Norwich. The car was then found to be missing and a telephone message to the police station made by Deputy Sheriff J. H. Tubbs to inform the police of the supposed auto theft resulted in the patrol being sent to the courthouse and Webster being placed under arrest as his employer had requested. Webster, however, did not remain in custody long, for Attorney Brown and Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin of the New London police court, who was aware of the eccentricities of Kinney, caused Webster's release. The automobile also turned over to Webster and about 7 o'clock he started for Colchester.

POETRY

MISS OCTOBER.

And this is Miss October,
This lady of the gown
In folds of liquid amber
In trig of rusty brown—
The loveliness of summer,
The mystery of spring—
And yet so sad a laughter,
No bluebirds now to sing!
No roses but of memory,
And violets, where are they
But yonder in the phantom fields
Where ghosts of April stray!

The mood of moons is on her,
The spell of mist and dew,
Thy sky a starry helmet,
The sea a mirrored blue.
I think she dreams of fairies,
As fairies dream of her,
Far dancing down the stilly dusk
To sound of dulcimer.
For this is Miss October,
And now along the hills
The mmusic of the hunter's horn
Its fine tantiv, thrills!

Yes, this is Miss October,
Gray-eyed, with lips of rose;
Along the leafy woodland path
With bright brown cheek she goes—
And elfin feet before her
Fly young and far to make
A castle of the crimson oak
For this sweet lady's sake:
For her sake, who comes dreaming
Down moon roads of the night
Of far-off May times gleaming
In mists of faery night!
—Folger McKinsey, in Baltimore Sun.

TODAY AND TOMORROW.

Today the sky is blue—the wind blows fresh and cool,
Today the bird sings sweetly by the quiet pool.
Today the world is happy and all our lives are bright,
We work and play most joyously from morning until night.

Tomorrow's sky is cloudy—tomorrow's wind is cold,
The bird that sings tomorrow will say the year is old.
Tomorrow we are sad—life seems all wrong—
Tomorrow naught but sorrow's in our song.

What care we for tomorrow when we have today?
Let us have beauty, song and happiness while we may,
And soon tomorrow with its mournful way
Will turn into another glorious oaday.
—Janet R. Oppenheimer.

BARRICADED CONVICTS ARE STILL WITHSTANDING SIEGE

Acetylene Torches Are Burning Gaping Holes in the Mess Hall of the Penitentiary at Eddyville, Ky., Which Three Desperadoes Are Using as a Fortress—Bullets From Rifles of Guardsmen and Two Machine Guns Have Cut Into the Walls—Fire Has Been Suspended Until Daylight—Shift of Wind Prevented Successful Use of Tear Bombs—Belief Prevails That the Convicts Are Either Dead or Seriously Wounded—Three Prison Guards Are Dead.

Eddyville, Ky., Oct. 4.—(By the A. P.)—The second night of the "siege of Eddyville" found prison authorities and National Guard officers directing an active campaign against the barricaded mess hall in the center of the Western Kentucky state penitentiary area here which was expected to bring to an end the grim game of hide-and-seek with death between armed forces of the state and three convict gunmen who are making a last stand in the building.

Steel jacketed bullets from National Guardsmens' service rifles and two machine guns have been smashing into the thick brick walls of the mess hall in intermittent barrages throughout the afternoon. Before night it was apparent to besiegers that the walls of the improvised fortress would crumble in event the withering volleys were sustained for a sufficient period.

Twenty five thousand rounds of machine gun ammunition from Camp Henry Knox, together with a supply of rifle grenades, were received late today and tonight the crash of rifle fire mingled with the rat-tat-ta of machine guns.

Two prison guards died of wounds today, bringing to three the number slain by the desperadoes in their dash for freedom early Wednesday. Failing to win clear of the prison grounds the desperate trio, Monte Walters, Lawrence Griffith and Harry Ferland, took cover in the mess hall and since have held at bay prison guards, members of Troop C, National Guard machine gun company from Hopkinsville and citizen marksmen who volunteered their aid to the authorities.

State and prison officials had indicated that the major offensive launched this afternoon would be sustained until the barricaded convicts were dead or captive.

A terse message from Governor Edwin P. Morrow to Warden John Chilton late today directed that the desperadoes be routed "If it takes every man in the state and every dollar in the treasury."

"We are going to get them if we have to raze the building to do it," was Warden Chilton's comment of the governor's message.

Death in the prison hospital here of V. B. Mattingly and in a Paducah hospital, of W. P. Gilbert, brought the number of prison guard victims of the convict gunmen's pistols to three. Guard Hodge Cunningham was shot dead when the trio initiated their dash for freedom.

Two National Guardsmen, under protection of improvised metal shields, were able to enter the ground floor of the two story mess hall today and release tear gas bombs. A shift of wind drove the gas back upon the attackers and the two men, affected by the gas, were forced to abandon the attempt to dislodge the convicts.

A ring of acetylene torches again was placed about the mess hall tonight and by the flickering light could be seen gaping holes in the foot thick brick walls on the north and west side of the building. These breaches in the improvised fortress of the besieged convicts, Monte Walters, Lawrence Griffith and Harry Ferland, sledgers already of three prison guards in their attempt to escape, were made by high power rifle and machine gun bullets fired in today's barrage.

Amazement was expressed by some observers that the defenders could have escaped death from the rain of steel jacketed bullets sent smashing into the building today, but prison officials were said to have considered it possible that the trio found safety by taking refuge in the heavy brick and iron ovens of the prison kitchen, located on the ground floor of the mess hall.

Just before the general barrage against the convicts was halted late tonight, the attackers were successful in lobbing several tear gas bombs through the windows of the lower floor.

A supply of dynamite has been obtained and it was indicated tonight that, other efforts to dislodge defenders failing, an attempt might be made to sap and mine the building.

Difficulty experienced in providing food for the six hundred or more prisoners in the penitentiary, resulting from the fact that all food supplies were stored in the building held by the desperadoes, was lessened somewhat today with the arrival of additional emergency rations from outside points. As the prison kitchen is located on the ground floor of the building held by the convict gunmen, the prison menu has been limited to foods which did not require cooking. Warden Chilton is preparing to establish an emergency kitchen in another part of the prison.

FIRE ON THE MESS HALL SUSPENDED TILL DAYLIGHT

Eddyville, Ky., Oct. 4 (By the A. P.)—Rifles and machine guns which had been pouring a hail of bullets into the mess hall of the state penitentiary here, where three convicts have been barricaded since a dash for liberty Wednesday morning in which three guards were killed, were silenced soon after dark tonight when besiegers who ventured from cover were not fired upon by the tenants of the improvised fortress.

Opinion was that the desperadoes were dead or desperately wounded. In the city, however, of the possibility that the convicts withheld their fire to conserve a small stock of ammunition for a last desperate stand when the attackers should enter the building, it practically had been determined to maintain a guard about the place tonight and await daylight for further action.

That one at least of the barricaded buildings defenders was alive was proved soon after firing ceased when a man attempted to leave by the main doorway. Guards opened fire and the man disappeared back into the darkened building.

FOR UNIFICATION OF NEW ENGLAND RAILROADS

Boston, Oct. 4.—Unification of New England railroads, even at additional expense to shippers, was urged today by William F. Libbey, representing the Plymouth Cordage company, at a hearing on railroad consolidation before the interstate commerce commission here. Libbey stated that his company was willing to bear higher freight rates if necessary to the end that a New England system be formed.

Charles M. Cox of Melrose, who has large grain interests in Boston and Vermont, joined with Libbey in backing the report of the joint New England railroad committee report which urged financial rehabilitation of the New England systems as a step toward ultimate consolidation. They urged such a unification of existing roads as the only hope for New England industry.

The committee report was roundly attacked by Nathan L. Amster, chairman of the executive committee of the Rock Island railroad, who announced that he appeared as a disinterested spectator to plead for the country at large. He attacked the joint committee report as "provincial and narrow-gauge" and said that the railroads were not receiving a fair deal at the hands of the government or of public opinion. Amster said that the hearing had developed into a hearing of arguments in the interests of shippers who thought that the welfare of the United States depended on their prosperity.

HANGED HIMSELF IN CELL AT WETHERSFIELD PRISON

Hartford, Oct. 2.—Charles W. Anderson, alias Henry Moss, alias Charles Davis, committed suicide in his cell at the state prison at Wethersfield shortly before 6:30 this morning. He was 51 years old and was sent to the prison from New Haven county on February 6, 1918 to serve a sentence of from 4 to 30 years. He was convicted on two counts of soliciting in order to commit burglary.

Anderson hanged himself with a piece of rope from the top of his cell door. When discovered at 6:30 by a prison attendant who was letting the prisoners out for breakfast, his body was still warm, indicating that he had been hanging only a short time. Medical Examiner Fox was summoned and pronounced death due to suicide. Prison attendants do not know how he obtained the rope. Anderson had a long prison record. He had served time at Sing Sing and at Elmira reformatory and state prison at Baltimore. He had no known relatives.

HAD SERVED TIME IN HARTFORD COUNTY JAIL

Hartford, Oct. 4.—Gabriel Mourey, alleged murderer, fugitive from a French penal colony, notorious New York jewelry thief, who was shot down early this morning by Parisian police approaching his villa at Chelles, when he opened fire on the officers, was arrested in Hartford in September, 1921, by Detective Sergeant Nicholas Gallicchio and he served three months in the local county jail for having burglars' tools in his possession. This was about six months before the Shattuck jewelry robbery in New York, one of the most sensational crimes in the annals of the Metropolis, which was engineered by Mourey. His record was not known when he was captured and tried here under the name of Maurice Ducair.

SEVEN INDICTMENTS FOR GAMBLING IN NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., Oct. 4.—The drive of the attorney general's department against gambling in Rhode Island resulted today in the grand jury here reporting seven indictments as follows:

James J. Connell, Newport, common gambler and nuisance; Leo Luce, Newport, common gambler; Chester A. Kane, Newport, common gambler; Edward Richards, Newport, common gambler; John A. (Copey) Congdon, Newport, common gambler and nuisance.

Assistant Attorney General George Hurley asked that capiases be issued and that bail be fixed for Congdon and Connell at $5,000 on each charge. He asked $2,000 bail for the other defendants.

Judge Greene ordered capiases to issue against the five men, returnable next Monday.

SENT OBSCENE LETTERS THROUGH THE MAILS

New York, Oct. 4.—Albert Bailin was found guilty by a federal jury today on a charge of sending obscene letters through the mails, but was acquitted of a second indictment charging use of the mails to defraud the government. Judge Knox fixed Monday for imposing sentence, and continued Bailin's bail of $1,500.

The jury was out only 35 minutes after Benjamin P. DeWitt, defense counsel, had charged officers of the Burns and Theil detective agencies with directing the writing of the letters. He also stated Bailin was the victim of operatives of the Federal Department of Justice, adding that some of the letters were beyond the ability of his client to write.

Assistant District Attorney Mattuck, in summing up the prosecution's case, called Bailin a dangerous radical.

Airship Z R-1 to Fly Over New England

To Leave Lakehurst Early Saturday and Cross the Sound at New London.

Washington, Oct. 4.—A tour of New England is the next flight on the program of the navy airship ZR-1. She will leave Lakehurst early Saturday morning, if weather conditions are favorable, and will conduct radio compass tests off the New Jersey coast en route northward.

Long Island will be traversed in the neighborhood of Southampton and the Sound will be crossed at New London. The general course then will be over Providence, Brockton, Boston, Worcester, Springfield, Hartford, New Haven and Bridgeport.

The New England trip probably will be the last to be made from Lakehurst for some time unless the department approves the proposal that a short trip be made down the Shenandoah Valley, from which the ship is to take her official name. Extended flights already made have been part of the regular scheduled trial which officials said may now be considered completed. Tests of a scientific nature and training of personnel will monopolize the attention of the Lakehurst station for several weeks to come.

WILL PASS OVER DOZEN NEW ENGLAND CITIES

Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 4.—Weather permitting, the giant United States naval dirigible ZR-1 will visit the Brockton fair at Brockton, Mass., Saturday morning, passing over a dozen New England cities and giving that section of the eastern seacoast its first glimpse of the huge ship.

Acting on orders from Washington at noon today, officers at the naval air station here made preparations to take the ship on the voyage which will cover approximately six hundred miles.

"We will probably leave about seven o'clock Saturday morning," said Commander R. D. Weyerbacker, in charge of the construction of the ZR-1, "depending on weather conditions and will probably return in the afternoon. The time we get back will depend on the wind."

According to the itinerary which has been planned, the ZR-1, will head directly toward the Atlantic ocean after leaving Lakehurst and will fly along the coast until she reaches New London, Conn. It is not expected that she will fly over New York enroute. On reaching New London, the ZR-1, will be headed toward Newport over which she will fly heading then for Providence and thence to Brockton.

The dirigible will circle over the fair grounds possibly for half an hour before leaving for Boston. At Boston she will turn and fly west to Springfield when she will turn south to New London. Flying along the Connecticut coast the airship will visit New Haven and thence will return to Lakehurst.

Commander McCrary will be in charge of the flight. The regular crew of 32 men will make the trip as well as four or five officers for instruction purposes.

STORMS DRIVING WRECKAGE ON THE COAST OF FRANCE

Paris, Oct. 4.—(By The A. P.)—North to northwesterly gales, at times developing into a hurricane, have been raging during the past thirty-six hours, causing the loss of many lives and strewing the French shores on the English Channel and Atlantic seaboard with wreckage. The storm shows signs of abating tonight.

The steamships Majestic, Minnedosa and Empress of Britain were hove to outside the Cherbourg Roads for twenty to twenty-four hours, but succeeded in entering port late this afternoon, and cleared before evening.

The steamer Pacifico, from Hamburg for Panama, is ashore two miles south of Cherbourg; the crew was saved. Two fishing smacks foundered and four men were drowned. Tramways and telephone and telegraph services are badly interrupted. The channel service to Dover, Calais, Folkestone and Boulogne was at a standstill throughout the day.

Premier Bruce, of Australia, and his party were held up at Boulogne on the way to London.

The English steamer Enrico, coal-laden, is aground off Naples, and the fate of the crew of twenty-two is not yet known. An English freighter is a total loss two miles north of Dunkirk and Gravalines and four of the crew are missing. The Belgian steamer City of Ghent was rammed by a dredger in the port of Dunkirk and seriously damaged.

The wireless installation at Lorient was smashed to the ground, and four fishing smacks went down with all on board between Ushant Light and Brest.

SAYS OYSTERS FREQUENTLY CHANGE THEIR SEX

Hamburg, Oct. 4.—Oysters change their sex three or four times a year, and frequently oftener, according to investigations which the Danish scientist, Suarck, made at the Limfjord experimental station. The Danish investigator believes that the phenomenon is brought about by changes in the temperature of the water in which the bivalves live. His conclusions are said to have been corroborated in the main by experiments made at Plymouth by Orton, an English scientist.

MRS. STOKES TRACED HER LIFE TO GRAND JURY

Chicago, Oct. 4.—Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes traced her life to the grand jury today in connection with the investigation of her charges that agents of her husband, W. E. D. Stokes, wealthy New York clubman, attempted to obtain perjured evidence that she was an inmate of a notorious club here twelve years ago.

At the conclusion of her testimony and that of one other witness, the grand jury was reported to have voted true bills against two negroes said to have been active in trying to secure affidavits linking Mrs. Stokes with the Everleigh club.

Decision to take Mrs. Stokes before the grand jury was reached by the state's attorney's office so that she might return to New York to appear next week in connection with her husband's divorce action to aid which she claims a conspiracy to injure her reputation was formed. Other witnesses may appear before the grand jury next week, it was indicated.

Mrs. Stokes today is reported to have accused her husband of financing a plan to injure her reputation in order to divert her children's birthrights to W. E. D. Stokes, Jr., Stokes' son by an earlier marriage. Byron Firse, the other witness, is reported to have charged that the two men against whom true bills were reported voted, offered him $1,500 for a false affidavit.

INTERNATIONAL AIR RACES AT ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 4.—The international air races got under way here today with three races over the new flying field that had been presented to the army, navy and pot office department. No records were broken but the speed was about equal to that made in the races at Detroit last year.

With an exploding aerial bomb, the signal, the first race, the St. Louis flying club trophy, began when the planes flew past the starting post on their 353 kilometre (93.21 miles) race of three laps around the fifty kilometre (37.07 miles) course.

It was won by Walter Lees, Philadelphia, in a Hartsell FC-1 plane with a 90 horsepower motor. His average speed was 89.31 miles per hour.

The Mitchell trophy race, the second event, was won by Captain Bert L. Skeel, Cleveland, flying a Thomas-Morse pursuit plane, 146.45 miles an hour. His elapsed time for the route was 50 minutes, 54:55 seconds.

The length of this race was 200 kilometres (124.28 miles) for four times around the course.

The third race was for the Liberty Engine Builders' trophy. This event was taken by Lieutenant C. McMullen of Brooks field, Texas, flying 300 kilometres (186.42 miles) or six times around the fifty kilometer course at an average speed of 139.03 miles per hour. He flew a Fokker CO-4, with a 400-horsepower Liberty motor. The elapsed time was 80 minutes, 26:23 seconds.

Four accidents marred the race but all the pilots escaped injury.

LITTLE EVIDENCE NOW OF MARTIAL LAW IN OKLAHOMA

Oklahoma City Okla., Oct. 4.—(By The A. P.)—With the court battle between Governor J. C. Walton and members of the Oklahoma house of representatives halted until next Tuesday, citizens whose attention has been fastened on the spectacular contest between the executive and legislative branches of the state government, tonight turned to matters that had been forced into the background. Martial law under which they have lived for nearly three weeks, has become military rule virtually in name only.

In Oklahoma City the military court that was convened to investigate alleged lawlessness of the Ku Klux Klan, has been disbanded and military force has been removed. Military headquarters has been abandoned and persons appearing on the streets after midnight no longer need passes. There are no patrols to challenge the late wayfarers.

Likewise in Tulsa, the sole remaining activity of the military is the court of inquiry. This still is in session but guards nowhere else are to be seen. In authoritative quarters, it was declared that less than a dozen troopers now are on duty in Tulsa.

14TH BODY RECOVERED FROM COLE CREEK

The body of the fourteenth victim of the wreck was dug out of the smoking car this afternoon.

CONSTITUTIONAL DICTATOR IS PROBABLE FOR GERMANY

Experts Believe President Ebert Will Have Recourse to Prerogative Allowed by Constitution—Such Action Would Relieve Chancellor Stresemann From the Shifting Approval or Hostility of the Reichstag—Dr. Stresemann Announced He Proposes to Form a Restricted Cabinet of Men Chosen Outside of Politics.

Berlin, Oct. 4 (By the A. P.)—Experts in constitutional law who ventured to discuss the parliamentary situation growing out of the retirement of Chancellor Stresemann's coalition cabinet, because of the socialists' refusal to approve the "authorization law," believe the only alternative left to President Ebert is recourse to the prerogative allowed him by paragraph 48 of the constitution. By the terms of that paragraph, as interpreted by Dr. Hugo Preuss, who drafted the constitution, President Ebert—if the chancellor's cabinet represents a minority government—must dictate such laws and relief measures as are demanded by the economic, financial and social situation.

A constitutional dictatorship, it is believed, is the sole alternative left to the president and the former chancellor, in view of Stresemann's inability to command a two-third majority support in the reichstag, which is necessary to legalize his authorization law.

The parliamentary situation today gave no indication that Dr. Stresemann would be able to count on a dependable working support, even if he were assured of the votes of the Ferman nationalists. In order to relieve him of any apprehensions or feelings of insecurity, so far as accounting for his stewardship to the reichstag is concerned, it will become necessary for President Ebert to decree an extraordinary dictatorship protest, as provided by paragraph 48, which would permanently relieve Dr. Stresemann from the shifting approval or permanent hostility of the reichstag.

That the chancellor has probably been given a tacit promise in this direction is taken for granted, in view of his announcement that he proposed to surround himself with a restricted cabinet of mne chosen from outside the pale of party politics.

While he has not yet given the slightest indication of his plans in this direction, the political leaders are looking for a general shuffle in a dozen or more ministries, each of which has heretofore been represented by an individual member of the cabinet. The ministries of finance, economics, food and labor may be placed under one minister. The ministries of defence and interior are slated for amalgamation, while purely technical governmental departments, as posts, telegraphs and railways will continue under the supervision of their technical departmental heads.

Deeper interest is being manifested in the identity of the men whom Dr. Stresemann proposes to summon as his aides, especially as he has broadly proclaimed his intention to disregard partisan considerations in forming his cabinet. The casual presence in Berlin of Dr. Wiedfeldt, the ambassador to the United States, is stimulating the rumor that he will be selected by the chancellor because of his ability as an economic expert. Dr. Wiedfeldt gained fame as the man who converted the Krupp arsenal into a giant plant devoted to the production of commodities not related to the arts of war, and among the industrialists he is universally acknowledged as Germany's most prolific reconstruction authority.

THREE PERSONS KILLED IN CONFLICT WITH POLICE

PHILADELPHIA SALOON MEN ARE DEFYING GOV. PINCHOT

Philadelphia, Oct. 4.—Department of justice agents and state police, having completed the serving of notices on the 1300 or more saloons and cafes in Philadelphia, to close their doors and cease business, today began a check-up to learn whether their warning had been heeded. In most places they found it had not been. They also learned that the majority of the proprietors had no intention of closing without a legal battle.

Meanwhile, Governor Pinchot, who, with the federal department of justice, was responsible for the closing order and who last night by personal visits to a number of saloons observed its open defiance, held extended conferences with Major William G. Murdock, federal prohibition director of Pennsylvania and other leaders in the "dry" campaign, the governor declined to announce his plans, but intimated that legal representatives of the state and federal government would seek injunctions against the saloonmen under the "padlock" provision of the prohibition law to force them to lock up their establishments and dismantle their bars.

"The injunctions granted against recalcitrant law-breakers in the hard coal region yesterday," said Governor Pinchot, "is the best answer it is possible to make to those who doubt the ultimate victory of law in this battle. I said yesterday we mean business. They will find that we do."

The state executive had reference to six temporary injunctions granted by Federal Judge Wither at Scranton closing saloons. Whether these places are to be permanently closed will be decided at hearings on Oct. 18.

PREDICT ARREST IN THE WEBB CASE IMMINENT

White Plains, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Friends of Mrs. Gertrude Gorman Webb, who is alleged to have died under mysterious circumstances, in the fashionable Westchester-Biltmore country club at Rye, N. Y., a week ago Tuesday, today predicted that an arrest in the case was imminent, but no action had been taken this evening, and it was indicated that no more developments were expected before the grand jury goes into session again Monday.

Relatives of the dead woman, who have several times expressed their disapproval of the way county authorities were handling the case, hired a private detective firm today to carry on a separate investigation. It was said plans to ask Governor Smith to order a separate investigation had been abandoned.

A report on the chemical analysis of Mrs. Webb's kidneys, which is being conducted by Dr. A. O. Goetzler, of Bellevue hospital, New York, may not be received by the coroner for several days. Reports were current that a poisonous corrosive sublimate had been found by the toxicologist, but these were not confirmed. The final report will be presented to the grand jury when that body meets Monday.

Dr. William J. Meyer, who attended Mrs. Webb during her last illness, and was the first to make statements which led to an investigation, declared today that Mr. Webb's attorney had been the first to mention the possibility of poison.

AMATEUR RADIO BEAT SUN ACROSS THE CONTINENT

Hartford, Oct. 4.—Amateur radio operators virtually beat the sun across the continent during the recent daylight test when a message starting promptly at dawn on the east coast reached Los Angeles, before the sun appeared above the Pacific horizon. Striking the dark belt near the middle of the country, favorable conditions were met which made the transcontinental trip possible in one hour and twenty-five minutes with but two intermediate station relays.

An early start with the rising sun clinched the laurels for D. Mcc. Parsley, operator of amateur station 4-PT at Wilmington, N. C., according to advices received by the American Radio Relay League from California today. The average daylight range for amateur transmitting stations is once hundred miles and had it not been for the fact that the message unexpectedly passed through the dark belt, it would have required relaying thirty times.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY OF CALVIN AND MRS. COOLIDGE

Washington, Oct. 4.—President and Mrs. Coolidge today observed their first wedding anniversary in the White House, but it was as simple and quiet as any of the 17 anniversaries that had preceded.

When they were married 18 years ago, Mr. Coolidge was a struggling lawyer in Northampton, Mass., while Mrs. Coolidge was Miss Grace Goodhue, had just given up teaching in the public schools of that community.

Their friends explained today that it was the custom in the family to observe all anniversaries and holidays very quietly and generally without the entertainment of any guests.

A crippled horse wandered into the yard at the home of Mayor Charles A. Gates, on Pleasant street, Thursday forenoon and was so delighted with the quality of the grass that he refused to be driven away. Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton, special agent for the state humane society, was called by telephone and made arrangements to have the animal placed in local public stables. The horse was in a poor condition and it is believed that he is owned by a resident of Jordan road, although the real identity of the owner has not yet been established. Up to late in the afternoon no one had registered a complaint for a missing horse.

Attorney Harry S. Gaucher spoke on The Foundation of Our Laws, at a meeting of the Men's Club of the Methodist church and guests, with members of the Brotherhood clubs of the Congregational, Baptist and Episcopal churches, held in the Methodist vestry Wednesday evening.

Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead, pastor of the Methodist church, presided at the meeting. Other pastors present were Rev. Harry S. McCready of the Congregational church, Rev. F. P. Pomfay of the Baptist church and Rev. F. C. Williams of St. Paul's Episcopal church. Solos were sung by Edwin F. Cross.

Attorney Gaucher said that the old English law was the real law of the people in the weighing out of justice to one and all. He gave a summary of the formation of law as it was handed down from the Roman days, when only one law existed, that handed out by the rulers of the land. He followed the evolution of law, when divisional bodies were given power to dispense justice for crimes such as our own town, city, superior and supreme courts. The speaker gave a brief definition of the laws and said that although several were considered as being inconsistent, yet, we as American citizens, should obey them and they should be enforced by the officials. The attorney concluded by saying that there should be more spirit of sacrifice throughout the land in many instances and that greed and avarice were responsible for much wrong doing. When asked about the Ku Klux Klan in Oklahoma and Governor Walton's right to take the stand against the calling of a special session, Attorney Gaucher said that in his opinion the governor was right, as only he has the right to call a special session and then it must be for a vital purpose. The speaker said that the K. K. K. were guilty of a misdemeanor when they failed to file copies of their by-laws and a list of their members with the secretary of state.

An oyster supper was served after the address.

George H. Shafer was re-elected as president of the Community Entertainment association at its annual meeting held in the chamber of commerce rooms. Mrs. Alford read a review of the work done in the past year. The treasurer's report showed the balance on hand $129.96.

Louis Edward Medbery, five weeks' old son of Mr. and Mrs. Byron E. Medbery, 21 Ash street, died Thursday morning at 10.30 o'clock from infantile trouble. The parents have two other children, Byron Howard and Robert Edwin Medbery. Burial was in the Willimantic cemetery. The J. C. Lincoln company was in charge of the arrangements.

JEWETT CITY

The newly elected school board held its first meeting Wednesday evening and organized, with E. E. Gilbert as chairman, James H. Shea, secretary, William Bitgood.

Charles Anderson, Morris Anderson and S. R. Truesdell were at Danielson Wednesday, for the past masters' celebration at Morial lodge, No. 13, F. & A. M.

People from Jewett City were in New London Tuesday to be present at the session of the superior court. Among them were not only those anxious to be able to secure their naturalization papers, but a considerable number of witnesses. There were some local people successful while others failed. In all, 105 applied, only 88 were sworn in. Since returning there has been no little interest expressed in the whole proceding in general, and the questionnaire in particular. Local scholars are taking account of their educational stock, and comparing it with the knowledge that the alien must possess to become naturalized. One question that the home people all passed up, and most of the others has been pretty well settled here now. It is that the three bodies of the government are executive, judicial and legislative.

Local automobile drivers who were out after 5 p. m., Wednesday, told stories Thursday morning of the dense fog that settled down over this section, not disappearing until sunrise Thursday. Parties coming up from Norwich, who think nothing of coming up from Franklin square to Jewett City, consumed an hour in making the trip. Two automobile parties leaving Danielson at a few minutes after eleven were an hour and a half making this borough. They report the few machines they met as running in low, and just crawling through the fog.

All deposits made on or before Oct. 5 at the Jewett City Savings Bank will draw interest from Oct. 1st.—adv.

A man, alone in an automobile, drove up the state road, Thursday forenoon, with a newspaper spread out on his steering wheel, unconcernedly reading. He would have roundly berated a man that ran into him.

A few duck hunters have visited Tadpole pond this week, in hopes of getting a shot at a black duck. One hunter, recalling the evenings twenty-five years ago when the black ducks used to come into Tadpole pond for the night says, "Them days is gone forever."

Sunday, each class is to provide a number for the Rally Day programme, and every class member was asked to bring someone who is not an attendant regularly.

Mrs. Arthur B. Strickland of Philadelphia is to speak on Italiana Redeemed at the Baptist church this (Friday) evening. This is a public meeting and an opportunity to hear a fluent speaker who will give worth hearing by all an interesting talk on Americanization.

Every Potato Means
Additional Profit

When the price per bushel you receive for your potatoes is low, good profits can still be made by saving time and labor and by getting every potato in the field. It costs you no more to harvest completely and you get the extra dollars for your increased crop, if you use a

HOOVER
POTATO DIGGER

The Hoover Potato Digger digs up all the potatoes in the field and piles them in neat rows where they can be handled with minimum labor. This digger has proved to be an especially good investment to all potato-growers who have used it.

The shovel is of best quality high-carbon crucible steel and shaped so as to gather the potatoes with the least possible loss. No danger of cutting the potatoes to the extent that a plow or hoe does. Stone guards can be used in stony ground. You can raise and lower the shovel while the machine is in motion. All adjustments are made from the seat by convenient levers.

The vine-separating rear rack has a backward and forward motion that sifts out all dirt and deposits the potatoes in a compact row on clean ground directly at the rear of the machine, while the vines and trash are deposited at one side.

Six roller bearings and wide tires on the wheels assure light draft.

Patented Double-Action Front Truck permits the digger to be turned in a very short space.

Solid steel frame, strong main sides of Bessemer steel, beams of best quality charcoal malleable castings, and steel chains and hardened steel sprockets that greatly resist wear.

Don't fail to see the Hoover Potato Digger before you harvest your potato crop; its use means greater profits. Also ask us about Hoover Engine Drive Potato Diggers—two-horse machines under all conditions, and any other potato tools you require.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Delegations from many churches in Windham county came here Thursday for the annual convention of the Windham County Sunday School association at the Westfield Congregational church. Following was the program:

Honline; demonstrations—(a) Children's Division, Miss Frances W. Danielson; (b) Young People's Division, Mrs. Harold Holehouse; 12.30, recess for luncheon; 2.30, reports, appointment of committees, new business; address, The Place of Religion in Education, Prof. Honline; 3.45, offering service; 4, church school dramatics—(a) Children's Week, Miss Frances W. Danielson; (b) A Bible Story, Rev. Walter B. Williams; 5, Fellowship Period; 6, supper, followed by Table Talks.

Evening Session: 7, Service of Song; 7.15, address, The Bible: The Drama of Salvation, Rev. H. S. McCready; 7.45, business (a) reports of committees; (b) new business; 8, Young People's chorus; 8.15, offering service; 8.30, address, The Place of Religion in Education, Prof. Honline; 9, hymn and benediction.

Professor Honline was superintendent of teacher training in Ohio State association, student at Columbia university and Union Theological seminary and holds the degree of Lit. D. He was professor of religious education at Otterbein university and superintendent of the department of education in the international association. He is a skilful teacher, noted author and lecturer.

It was stated that this section of the state may receive a visit from the flying squadron of the state police department which has been operating in New Haven and Fairfield counties, giving special attention to checking up violations of the traffic rules. The squadron was organized as the number of motor vehicle accident in the state continued to increase. Special attention is being given to speeders.

There may be temptation for some this week end to go hunting just ahead of the opening of the season on Monday next, and game officials being aware of this will keep as close a lookout as possible in an effort to apprehend anyone inclined to break the law. There is good hunting in prospect for next week and officials will endeavor to see that all get an equal start.

In carrying out a plan that, it is said, contemplates building an all-cement highway between Putnam and Danielson, the old stretch of macadam highway between the northerly line of the borough at Morin avenue and Elmville will be replaced, probably next year. This stretch of macadam is the oldest in this immediate vicinity and has been in use more than 25 years. At the present time the first stretch of the new cement highway is being built a distance of about three miles from Putnam over the line into Killingly a distance above Attawaugan.

Settlement of the coal strike seems to have lessened the apprehension of those who feared that there would be another real shortage of hard coal in this territory during the fall and winter periods. Buyers are now waiting with more complacency, for the time when their orders will be filled or until snappy weather sends them in quest of fuel.

Roland Bamford of Danielson has been elected president of the senior class of Connecticut Agricultural college. Throughout his college course he has been very active in the scholastic affairs of the college. He is a member of the Gamma Chi Epsilon chapter. Mr. Bamford is a graduate of Killingly High school.

Attorney Arthur M. Brown of Norwich, grand master of the state, Attorney E. L. Darbie, junior grand steward, and Rev. Walter B. Williams, associate grand chaplain, were present at a special session of Moriah lodge Wednesday afternoon, when a degree was conferred upon candidates of Moriah lodge, A. F. and A. M., and at a regular session of the lodge in the evening, when a degree was conferred.

It was hinted Thursday that George A. Williams is likely to succeed to the postmastership at Dayville. The office is now held by a democrat, Patrick Riley, and a change is impending. Mr. Williams has been tax collector of the town for a number of years up to the election of last Monday and is a representative from Killingly to the general assembly.

Russell Andersen of Providence was arrested Thursday by Chief John McFarland as a junk dealer operating here without having a license to do so. He was apprehended in the Riverview section. At a session of the town court Judge W. F. Woodward imposed a fine of $1 and actual costs, a total of $3.64. Chief McFarland said that Anderson's arrest may be taken as a warning by all peddlers who operate here without having the necessary license.

Isaiah McNally was elected president of the Telephone Employes' association of the Danielson, Putnam and Moosup divisions at the annual election of officers held in connection with the monthly meeting in Pellett's hall Wednesday evening. Mrs. Howard Steere was named as vice president and Miss Florence Smith as secretary. Mr. McNally is the test man at the Danielson central office and Mrs. Steere and Miss Smith are at the Putnam exchange.

Nominations were made at the meeting for traffic representatives, but these will not be voted upon until a later date.

In connection with the meeting there was a musical program and a social hour. There were vocal solos by Miss Katherine T. Thayer of Danielson, by Mrs. Jacob Alpert, Putnam, a guest at the meeting, and by Thomas Howarth, Putnam, also a guest. A group of violin selections were played by Miss Florence Smith of Putnam. Later sandwiches, cake and coffee were served and there was a period for dancing.

Announcement was made Thursday of the engagement of Miss Emma Maine, daughter of Mrs. Mary Maine of Main street, to Donald Stone of Providence, son of Mrs. George Stone of Academy street.

Mrs. Sidney H. Perry and Henry Flagg, both of Danielson, are members of the Providence Orchestral association.

A new motor truck for the use of the plant department crew covering telephone divisions in this corner of the state arrived here Thursday. The truck is hooped over after the style of a prairie schooner and can be covered with a tarpaulin if desired. It is well equipped with hooks and devices that will be of advantage to the men who will use the truck.

The Treble Clef club is rehearsing for a concert planned for early December. The director, Henry Flagg, has already interviewed soloists who are to assist at the concert.

There is human interest in the story of a horse that was disposed of a few weeks ago by Nelson Gauthier of Broad street to a party near East Killingly. The horse had outlived its usefulness for farm work and was sent away. On an evening this week the horse returned to his home here, having somehow escaped from the farm in the eastern part of the town.

The town report includes an inventory of town property, the value of which is fixed at $209,692. The schools of the town are valued at $160,000 and the town hall building at $25,500, although the latter structure could not be duplicated today, it is estimated, for less than $150,000. The town farm appears in the list at $18,000. So Killingly has much to set against its indebtedness, which is now down to $164,807.27, the lowest point in 15 years.

Work pertaining to the rebuilding of the dam across the Quinebaug river at Goodyear is completed. This work was in the interest of the Goodyear mills and had been under way during the summer.

Tomorrow evening's dance at Wildwood park will bring to a close the season at that popular resort, where hundreds gathered on dance nights all through the summer season. Manager F. J. Sheridan contemplates replacing the pavilion with a new one before the opening of the 1924 season.

Smart men can learn many things from fools.

The theory that the Wheaton barn on Oak hill may have been set afire has challenged the attention of the police and Captain William Jarvis and some of his office have been investigating, in an effort to determine whether there is any foundation for the incendiary belief and, if possible, to fix the responsibility. Small boys that had been playing near the barn a short time before the fire was discovered were at first believed to have set the barn afire accidentally, but now there is an opinion that someone boy may have deliberately fired the building. The barn was burned early this week.

Miss Nellie G. Stone, for the past 30 years teacher at the Kelley grammar school in Newburyport, Mass., has been retired and pensioned by that city and has returned to her home in this city on Sunnyside. A Newburyport paper states that Miss Stone has been a very faithful and efficient instructor, teaching the eighth grade on the staff of Principal Irving S. Johnson. She now retires because of physical disability and because she is needed at home.

Miss Stone went to Newburyport in September 1893. She is a graduate of Putnam High school, studied one year in college; four months at Greenwich commercial college and four months in England in preparation for her profession.

She retires from school work with the highest regard from the school committee in Newburyport, her associates in that city and the best wishes of many friends and former pupils there for her future happiness and success.

Those who had not previously done so are providing themselves with hunting licenses if their intentions are to go afield during the season that is to open next Monday. Among other things that officials desire that hunters' attention be called to is that hen pheasants may not be legally shot or taken during the coming hunt season. Arrest is certain to follow the finding of a hen pheasant in the possession of anyone. Hunting of quail also is forbidden during the open season of 1923. Duck hunting has been engaging the attention of hunters in this territory during the present week.

Relative to the farm of Henry T. Child, in Woodstock, the following recently has been written: The farm is located on the old Connecticut Path, which ran from the Atlantic ocean to the Connecticut river. At the time of the settlement of Woodstock, in 1686, it was an Indian trail. The land was part of a grant of 600 acres from the Indians. The house on the farm was built in 1822.

Secretary John H. Corbett, of the Windham County Y. M. C. A. is making arrangements for the 24th Connecticut Older Boys' conference scheduled to be held at New London October 26-28. Due to the fact that this conference is to be held in an eastern city of the state there will be a larger attendance in all probability from towns in Windham county than otherwise would be the case.

Putnam churches were represented Thursday at the Windham County Sunday school convention at the Westfield Congregational church, in Danielson.

Thursday brought the first half-holiday under the all-year schedule for the workers in many of Putnam's stores.

There will be a session of the superior court here this (Friday) morning. In addition to the short calendar matters cases will be assigned for the coming week.

Next Sunday will be Rally day at the Baptist church here. A special program has been arranged.

Roy Ellis, of the bureau of domestic animals enforcement organization, has been engaged with work in this town.

Radio enthusiasts are all ready to take wireless returns from the world's series baseball games to be played in New York.

At the annual meeting of the Putnam Heights Cemetery association Luther M. Keith was elected president, W. E. Shippee vice president, Arthur Tourtellotte, secretary-treasurer and Frank Whipple, sexton.

Mary Helene Bernier has filed suit for divorce from Frank Bernier, now said to be resident in Fitchburg.

Revival of interest in the Grand Trunk extension from Palmer to Providence is of general interest here, as the route for this line cuts across the New Haven's right of way just over the Massachusetts line from the town of Thompson, only a few miles from Putnam.

Members of Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R., will leave here Saturday morning on an early fall pilgrimage to Hampton.

Park street, now carrying heavy traffic because much travel is diverted that way on account of the construction work in Killingly avenue, is being given a coating of gravel by the street department employes.

Edward Randall of East Putnam is in the Memorial hospital at Worcester, suffering from injuries he received when he fell three stories from a staging while painting.

PLAINFIELD

At Plainfield Grange, Tuesday evening, there was the largest attendance on record, the hall being crowded with members and visitors. The program of the evening was given by Pachaug and Preston City granges, consisting of the following: Whistling solo, Miss Kanahan, recitation, Frank Mell; vocal duet, Misses Mabel and Esther Frink, of Pachaug grange; vocal solo by Miss Edith Pierce and a farce, Fudge and a Burglar, by six young women, address on grange essentials, by N. ## THE VETO AMENDMENT.

From such figures as have been noted concerning the vote on the amendment to the state constitution giving the governor authority to veto items of an appropriation bill without vetoing the entire measure, there is no question but what it has received an overwhelming majority in those towns where the expression of the voters has been obtained. The opposition was scant and there seems to be no good reason why there should be any different attitude toward it in the cities than that displayed in the towns. There is a benefit to the entire state that it is desirable to obtain.

A surprising fact in connection with the proposed amendment is that there were so few of the voters who took the trouble to vote upon it. In Norwich there were less than 500 out of a total of 6350 voting who seemed to be interested enough to turn up the little button that was necessary to vote on that question. It is true that it wasn't a vital matter but it was in the interest of better state government which should have concerned a greater number.

That the favorable majority of those voting represents the attitude of the entire electorate is not too much to presume. It should be realized, however, that the small number voting makes it possible for any one of the larger cities to completely upset the expression of the towns if there should be such a desire. Even though that doesn't appear likely in any way it is one of the things that the small towns can guard against by manifesting the proper interest at such a time as a matter of that kind is before them.

No evidence whatever has come from the cities which have not voted upon the change to indicate but what they are in sympathy with it. The towns that have voted reflect public opinion and there is no reason to suppose that there will be any reversal of their verdict. Certainly there should not be in the interest of good government.

THE CITY OF TORRINGTON.

Torrington is the latest of the communities of the state which feels that it has grown to the size where it should change its form of government, and which also evidently feels that through the change it will experience benefits that it was not obtaining during past years. Torrington has yielded to its growing pains and it is to be congratulated as it is welcomed into the circle of Connecticut cities.

Probably the people of Torrington fully realized that the success of any form of government depends to a great degree upon the men who are put into office and the kind of public support that is given to it. Certainly the first city fathers have been chosen with a sufficient margin to indicate where the confidence of the citizens rests.

Torrington has been stepping along at a healthy pace. It has pushed forward as one of the growing communities and if there is any virtue in city government, a stimulation of civic pride and an opportunity opened to obtain what has been lacking in the past this enterprising community in the western part of the state bids fair to be heard from not simply while the newness of the change prevails but on through the years.

Torrington with its more than 22,000 population might well have taken the step some time ago if population had been allowed to determine the matter. Rather has it waited until public sentiment called for it and now that it has graduated it will have the chance to give points to some of the older ones in the way of wise conduct of city affairs. May it come up to all expectations.

THE OKLAHOMA ELECTION.

By the expression of the people of Oklahoma there has been administered to Governor Walton of that state a rebuke that tells its own story. While the governor was taking the position that he was insisting upon law and order in the state against the machinations of those who were pictured as aiding and abetting lawlessness in general, he had laid himself open to serious attack.

Whatever have been the representations of the governor it is indicated by the vote, the presumption being that it was an honest election, that public opinion differs from him decidedly, and the most significant fact seems to be that opponents of the very things that he has said to be opposed to have devoted their efforts to bring about the repudiation of his conduct. In other words it shows that the people of Oklahoma are decidedly opposed to the manner in which he has been exercising his authority as governor, against his acts while governor and against the recently assumed dictatorship. It likewise reveals the approval of the opposition that has been raised against him.

In connection with the situation in Oklahoma it has been evident that if conditions which the governor alleged to exist were so it was time to get rid of them by means of a house-cleaning. Apparently the people of that state do not see through the governor's eyes. In connection with the entire affair it is also brought to light that the governor has a record, established since he took office, which has unfavorably impressed the state. That the governor raised the Klan plea to cover himself is to be inferred from the fact that opponents of the Klan have devoted their efforts to getting rid of the governor and his methods of conducting the affairs of the state.

The election indicates that it has been the governor rather than the Klan which has been the real problem in Oklahoma and that the people have seized upon the opportunity to hasten his elimination. It has been a fight that has awakened much attention and means that eyes will be centered upon that commonwealth for a considerable period.

NEW JERSEY TROLLEYS.

With trolley fares going to a nickel in New Jersey cities it means getting back to normalcy with a vengeance in view of the experience of trolley companies, and particularly municipally operated lines in other and larger cities.

The trolley franchises in New Jersey are nearly all held by one company. It has not been doing business under a five-cent fare and it is not believed that it can do so successfully unless the cutting of the fare limits provides the necessary relief. But this change comes about as the result of the strike of its employes for higher wages, the compromising of the company with its men and the subsequent legal action to force the company into a receiver's hands unless operations were resumed. It had been the agreement of the company that the accepted raise would be granted provided jitney competition was eliminated.

That effort failed but the putting down of the trolley fare to the price that has been charged by the jitneys indicates an effort to convince the traveling public and the utilities commission that service in keeping with requirements can be provided, and that being the case the unfair competition of jitneys should be eliminated or the chance of acquiring such lines be given the electric lines. This refers particularly to those electric car routes where jitney service has also been permitted.

The demand of the people of New Jersey for the return of the trolleys was convincing evidence that substitute service was not satisfactory. They have resumed service with the intention of winning the field and the elimination of that unjust competition which has been deemed advisable in other cities and states.

Trolley lines in New Jersey haven't made any money for four years and it isn't likely that they will from the test which is now underway. Disposing of unwarranted competition is the vital question.

ADVISING WOULD-BE EMIGRANTS.

In connection with the statement of Secretary Davis that foreign governments could do much to avoid the complained of conditions encountered by their subjects as they come to this country as immigrants, the assertion is made that we cannot expect foreign governments to enforce our laws.

Secretary Davis isn't endeavoring to have foreign governments enforce our laws. He is nevertheless fully cognizant of the fact that they are concerned about their people and must of necessity dislike the expense and bother which they are put to in needlessly crossing the ocean twice when it is known before they leave their home shore that they cannot obtain admittance to this country. It is the chance which the foreign countries have to render a service to their own subjects that the secretary refers to.

Other countries know what the requirements of admission are to this country and that their people are being turned back because they cannot meet them, or because they are endeavoring to get here in excess of the quota. We are not to blame if they cannot comply with the law. The foreign countries may not be actually to blame, but they are in a position to prevent many from experiencing the complained of hardships. That is what Secretary Davis refers to when he advises foreign countries to interest themselves in behalf of their own people, not after they have been to Ellis Island but before they leave for that point where the laws of this country are expected to be enforced.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The ZR-1 is going to Brockton and Boston this week. Heads up!

Look about and it is difficult to find much if anything, except the leaves, that is coming down.

The man on the corner says: Are you at work on your own dope for the world's series?

Regardless of the drop in the price of gasoline the weatherman is making plans to curtail consumption.

Oklahoma has been doing some skidding and now it remains to be seen whether the brakes are going to hold.

The dryness that is being experienced at this time cannot be attributed to the way the Volstead act is being enforced.

It is no use to expect that ships bringing immigrants will hasten to cross the line even one second before the first of October.

It is possible to see it displayed in glass jugs along the highways, and quite true to color, but it's not nut brown October ale.

"Hard coal prices likely to jump," says a headline. And from experience for several years it is thoroughly understood that they never jump backward.

Someone remarks that the weather man has allowed plenty of time to get the bins filled with coal this fall. That's so, but he wasn't able to get the price inducement into effective operation.

When the claim is made that public servants cost each individual in the country $34 a year does that mean the additional income tax that has to be paid because those public servants are exempt?

CHANGE OF HEART

"Well, I declare!" cried the young woman who kept house for her fascinating bachelor brother, arising from her porch hammock as a visitor ascended the steps. "Why, Lobelia! I thought you had gone with your family for the summer to the lake and that the apartment was closed! What are you doing back in town?"

"I just had to come back," confided the pretty little creature in the apricot green attire with a pathetic glance from her large blue eyes. "You can't imagine, Corinne! Everything at the lake seemed so futile and the amusements so childish. If one really has any—er—depth to her mind those things do pall."

"Do—do they?" asked the young woman who kept house for her brother, rather vaguely, not being entirely awake from her hammock nap. "I thought you were crazy about dancing and swimming and such things, Lobelia. And there was to be such a fine crowd there this summer. Don't you remember the night you were here and were telling Richard and myself what a marvelous place it was and trying to get us to go up there also?"

"Oh, I remember saying something about Pineapple lake, but I am certain I wasn't asking Rich—asking you to go there, Corinne. I guess the folks there are all right but I must be turning serious and broadening out, you know. I told mother I should stifle unless I could come back to town for a time where there were things worth while. I feel so much better since I got here last night, even though I am staying alone in the flat. And I wanted to get those books on Bulgaria that Richard said I might have and which I forgot that night I was here."

"Oh, you mean the books about Spanish chateaus," corrected the capable sister. "Why, I could have mailed them to you if you had written. They're right inside and I'll get them."

"Oh, don't bother," the pretty little creature said hastily, putting out a fragile white hand interposingly. "Let Richard bring them over to me. I am so tired of novels and am crazy for some solid reading."

"I had no idea you were interested in serious things," murmured the capable sister in great surprise. "Still, it seems odd to abandon a lovely summer where it is cool to come back to town! I guess you had left before Rich——"

"I was just restless at the lake," confided the pretty little creature appealingly. "You have no idea how different I feel in this atmosphere! I have got beyond the flapper stage where I must have excitement and jazz every minute and I am just revelling in this opportunity for quiet thought and reading and—and everything!

"I was just bored to death with those college boys at the lake! They seemed so undeveloped mentally, you know. I find them almost childish! After Richard brings me those books and I have finished them I am going to have him map out a course of real reading."

"You had left for the lake before Richard's firm sent him to France for the summer, I think," the capable sister said casually. "He will be gone all next winter and I am going over in the fall to join him after he has cleared up the heaviest part of his business. I'll have him send you a list."

"Oh, don't bother!" the pretty little creature said with a gasp. "Why, how perfectly terrible! I mean, isn't that lovely for you! Why, I never heard of such a thing! Don't you think the sun is getting awfully hot here on the porch? I am afraid I'll have to go before my head begins aching! That's one trouble with being in Chicago—my head aches so much and I suppose I ought to take care of myself and stay in the country where it is quiet. It doesn't seem quite right to leave mother alone either, so no doubt I shall go back to the lake in a couple of days when I have finished my shopping! Oh, no, thanks—there's no use in my taking those books on Bulgaria—or was it China? You see, I have so much to do in the stores buying the things I came back for that I won't have a minute to look at them! I've got to get some more evening dresses for the dances next month."—Exchange.

Terrible for the Teacher.

Some of the teachers have explained to the children that they must be on their good behavior when the supervisor comes. One primary teacher had, but she had not reckoned on the six-year-old pupils making mention of the fact to the supervisor himself, nor had she thought any of them could get the term so mixed as one little tot did.

She was horrified when the supervisor entered, and the little treble voice piped out, "Oh, teacher, that ain't the stupefier that you said would come today."

Did It on Purpose.

A new lodger had arrived at this establishment where the landlady "took in and did for" a few single and select gentlemen.

Bill was employed in an adjacent town and therefore had to be astir early in the morning. On his second morning in the house he stumbled over a tin bath which had been left at the top of the stairs, and with a crash and a great shock to his constitution, he went head over heels to the bottom.

As the lodger picked himself up he heard a sleepy "Right ho!" from one of the bedrooms above and was surprised when he complained to the landlady to see that good lady chuckle.

"That was Mr. Brown," she explained genially. "'E's such a 'eavy sleeper that only the clatter of someone fallin' down the stairs with a bath can wake 'im. 'E calls it 'is alarm clock!"

AMBASSADORS HARVEY AND CHILD HAVE RESIGNED

Washington, Oct. 4.—The resignations of Ambassadors Harvey at London and Child, at Rome, submitted for private reasons, and under agreements reached with the Harding administration, have been accepted, marking the first big change in the American diplomatic service since President Coolidge took office.

Ambassador Harvey will quit his post about the first of the year. Ambassador Child, who has either left or is about to leave Rome for the United States, will not go back. None of the other American ambassadors or ministers, the state department said in making the announcement, has any similar agreement limiting his term of service to far as known.

The only explanation of the two resignations given in official quarters was that in both cases the ambassadors had a few months ago reached agreements with President Harding as to the length of time they could continue at their posts.

When Ambassador Harvey was last in the United States on a somewhat prolonged leave, it was reported that he would resign and take active part in the coming presidential campaign. However, state department officials today limited their announcement to the statement that Mr. Harvey was about to retire.

There was no official word available tonight as to successors President Coolidge might send to fill the posts. At the state department it was not admitted that any steps had yet been taken to sound out the two governments as to suitability of possible appointees.

Women who tell everything they hear manage to hear a lot.

Prevention Better Than Cure

'Twas a dangerous cliff, as they freely confessed,
Though to walk near its crest was most pleasant;
But over its terrible edge there had slipped
A duke, and full many a peasant.
So the people said something would have to be done,
But their projects did not at all tally;
Some said, "Put a fence 'round the edge of the cliff"—
Some, "An ambulance down in the valley."

But the cry for the ambulance carried the day,
For it spread through the neighboring city.
A fence may be useful or not, it is true,
But each heart became brimful of pity
For those who slipped over that dangerous cliff;
And the dwellers in highways and alley
Gave pounds or gave pence, not to put up a fence,
But an ambulance down in the valley.

"For the cliff is all right if you're careful," they said,
And if folks even slip and are dropping,
It isn't the slipping that hurts them so much
As the shock down below—when they're stopping!
So day after day, as these mishaps occurred,
Quick forth would these rescuers sally
To pick up the victims who fell off the cliff
With their ambulance down in the valley.

Better guide well the young than reclaim them when old—
So the voice of true wisdom is calling:
"To rescue the fallen is good, but it's best
To prevent other people from falling."
Better close up the source of temptation and crime
Than deliver from dungeon and galley;
Better a fence 'round the top of the cliff
Than an ambulance down in the valley.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Thirty years ago today Rev. Dr. William Lawrence, then dean of the Cambridge Episcopal Theological School was consecrated the seventh Bishop of the diocese of Massachusetts. The anniversary is to be celebrated today with a special service in St. Paul's Cathedral in Boston. A native Bostonian, with eminent ancestors, among whom were some of the leaders in the industrial development of New England in the 19th century, the Bishop has shown unusual ability as an administrator, conservator of the property of the churches, and censor of methods of finance. It was under his direction leadership that a $5,000,000 pension fund was raised some years ago for the clergy of the Protestant Episcopal Church. Prior to following Phillips Brooks in the episcopate, Bishop Lawrence was connected with the theological seminary in Cambridge. He is a trustee of Wellesley College and a fellow of the corporation of Harvard University.

Cuneo Says Wincarnis Did It

"When I was able to walk around, the doctor said it would be a month or more before I would get back strength. I had pains on both of my sides and around my heart. One evening my brother saw an advertisement of Wincarnis and my mother got me a large bottle.

"By the time I had finished the bottle the pains on my right side were gone. I continued to take Wincarnis and soon the pain on my left side and around my heart disappeared and I quickly became well and strong and was feeling fine long before the time the doctor had said it would take me to get well. All my friends asked me what it was that I was taking that made me look well so quickly."

SEEK STOCK VALUE IN COTTRELL ESTATE

A motion for disclosure was argued before Judge Isaac Wolfe in the superior court in New London Thursday morning in the case of Mrs. Louise Baire Cottrell, widow of Edgar H. Cottrell, New York and Westerly millionaire, against Charles P. Cottrell and Arthur M. Cottrell of Westerly, brothers of the testator and executors of the will. An estate of over a million dollars is involved, Mr. Cottrell being head of the firm of C. B. Cottrell & Sons Co. of Westerly, printing press manufacturers.

The motion in the case, which is an appeal from probate, was made by the plaintiff for the disclosure of a contract and appraisal of stock referred to in Mr. Cottrell's will. Charles B. Cottrell was the only witness on the stand, called by the plaintiff, and he was asked about books showing the value of the stock.

The motion was argued by Attorney Frank L. McGuire, of Hull, McGuire & Hull, counsel for the plaintiff, and Attorney Herbert W. Rathbun of Westerly, counsel for the executors. Judge Wolfe took the papers.

YANTIC GIRL, HIT BY WILLIMANTIC AUTOMOBILE, DIES IN HOSPITAL HERE

The village of Yantic recorded two automobile accidents Thursday afternoon, one of them fatal. Ten year old Anna Tiesrajer, whose parents own and reside in the Byrnes house, received a fractured skull when struck by an automobile driven by John M. Gilman of 284 Prospect street, Willimantic. The accident happened about 3.45 o'clock and she died at the Backus hospital at 5.30 in the evening.

Robert Landrigan, a weaver, was struck by the automobile of Charles H. Barber of 13 Huntington avenue, Norwich Town. He was also taken to the hospital, but his injuries are of a minor character, cuts and bruises on hand.

According to the report Mr. Gilman made at police headquarters, he was on his way home and as he reached the Yantic corner some girls were playing in the street near the scales. Suddenly a girl ran out from behind a lumber wagon directly in front of his machine and was struck in the head by the headlight. The blow fractured her skull and caused extensive laceration of the scalp. She was rushed to the hospital, where but little hope for her recovery was held out.

After he had been notified of the child's death, Mr. Gilman came to police headquarters here Thursday night and gave bonds for $2,500, pending the coroner's investigation.

Landrigan was one of several men who were sitting on the benches at the Yantic corner when Mr. Barber drove his machine along. The wheels of his car caught in the trolley tracks, swinging the automobile around and shooting it towards the benches, where it struck Landrigan and two other men who failed to get out of the way when the group scattered.

Residents of Yantic called attention to the fact that this is the second child that has been killed near this corner within a short time and declared that the town ought to see to it that some caution sign is put up there to warn motorists as the corner is a blind one, whichever way a machine is driving. This is particularly so with machines coming from Norwich and making the turn into the road to Willimantic as the boarding house at the corner shuts out the view completely of what may be ahead.

Another Yantic resident declared that there ought to be some sign near the corner pointing out the Colchester-Hartford road as there is more travel than ever since the improvement of the road and strange drivers have to stop at the corner to inquire about directions, which adds to the risk of accidents at this point.

TWO QUAINT FIGURES AT HOME OF RAYMOND B. CASE

Now that Raymond B. Case, of Norwich Free Academy faculty, is settled in his new home on Broad street, passersby show great interest in the two quaint statues standing in the grounds. There is a popular impression that these are Adam and Eve images which once were conspicuous on the terrace at the former David A. Wells residence, now the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard O. Smith on Washington street; but those statues are at present in the garden at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Palmer, at the Pequot, New London. They were of lead, were brought to Norwich before the Revolution, and during that period were buried, that the British might not get them to convert them into bullets. It is regretted that they have been taken from Norwich, so long their habitat.

Mr. Case's two figures, however, were originally located in the grounds of the Newton Perkins place, now the residence of Mrs. Charles W. Gale and are fully 120 years old. They came to Mr. Case through Miss Addie Hill, who inherited them from Mr. Case's great-uncle, Theophilus Y. Winship. The school children, who find them a never-ending source of interest, refer to them as "Mr. and Mrs. Adam," but they are male figures,—as Mr. Case believes, those of King George and the Duke of Wellington.

OLD NATIONAL HOUSE BURNED AT NIANTIC

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Niantic, Oct. 4.—This village had its first fire of a serious nature for a long time this morning, when at 5.45 o'clock the property on Main street, in which was located the Sanitary Cash Grocery and meat market and owned and operated by Joseph Stadnick, was discovered on fire. Stadnick purchased the property about three months ago from one Dembrosky. The building was formerly owned by John Corowly and for a long time was known as the National house.

The origin of the fire is a mystery. The flames were in the attic when the fire was discovered and were making good headway. That fact was a surprise to everyone, for it was now known that there was nothing in that part of the building that would occasion fire.

Help was asked from the New London fire department, the Niagara Engine company and the Ockford apparatus responding. The chemical apparatus recently purchased by the town of Waterford also responded. With the arrival of the New London companies, the firemen of the Niagara pumper stretched a line of hose to the Niantic river and within a few minutes the fire was under control, but not before the structure had been entirely demolished. The other companies directed their attention to nearby buildings that were endangered, streams of chemicals being played upon the residence of Frank Tice and other homes where flying sparks threatened to ignite the buildings.

WOMEN'S TEAM PREPARES FOR HOSPITAL CAMPAIGN

Miss Clara Gordon, captain of one of the teams for the Backus hospital financial drive, called a meeting of her team workers Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Samuel Taylor, 219 Broadway. Treadwell Cleveland, campaign organizer, and Mrs. Allyn L. Brown, chairman of the women's division, who are in charge of the campaign, addressed the meeting, explaining the plans for the drive. Miss Gordon, the team captain, was in charge of the meeting and was assisted by her lieutenant, Mrs. A. Levine.

Others present were Misses Anna Sadinsky, Mrs. J. Slosberg, Mrs. I. Beckenstein, Mrs. S. Solomon, Mrs. J. Lahn, Mrs. R. Alexander, Mrs. H. E. Higgins, Mrs. J. N. Rosenberg, Mrs. S. Rosana, Mrs. George Kaplan and Mrs. Samuel Taylor, the hostess.

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S CLUB HOLDS OPENING MEETING

Following the business meeting, tea and wafers were served by Mrs. John W. Bowne, Mrs. Alfred Fournier and Mrs. Maurice F. Kelly.

Continuance Before Franklin Justice

Henry A. Daniels of Baltic road, Franklin, was brought before Justice of the Peace Charles E. Davis of Franklin Thursday for a hearing on the charge of manslaughter in causing the death of John Willard Frink of Franklin last Sunday night, when the latter was struck by a machine driven by Daniels.

Change in Runs of N. Y. Boats.

They have been replaced by the freight boats Pequonnock and New Haven.

BAPTISTS WILL CELEBRATE CENTENNIAL OF CONVENTION

The Connecticut Baptist convention, which directs and stimulates the work of the 152 Baptist churches in this state, will celebrate its 100th anniversary at sessions to be held in Hartford, October 16-17. Affiliated organizations, including the ministers' conference, the Connecticut Baptist Education Society, and branches of the Women's and laymen's work, will hold annual sessions during these days. Among the speakers will be Dr. Edgar Y. Mullins of Louisville, who was elected president of the Baptist World Alliance at Stockholm, Sweden, the past summer, Rev. Cornelius Woelfkin of New York, Rev. Charles N. Arbuckle of Newton Centre, Mass., Rev. John Y. Aitchison of New York, President Clarence A. Barbour of Rochester, Prof. William Lyon Phelps of Yale, Rev. James H. Franklin of New York, William Travers Jerome, Jr., of New York, and Mrs. Andrew MacLeish of Chicago.

Baptist beginnings in Connecticut date to 1705, when Rev. Valentine Wightman, descendant of a Baptist martyr who was burned at the stake in England in 1611, established at Groton the first Baptist church in this state. Among the first children of this church was the First Baptist church of Suffield. John Bolles, then a resident of Hartford, was accustomed to walk from Hartford each Sunday to attend worship at this church in Suffield—a distance of 18 miles—and back home in the evening. In 1799, John Bolles was instrumental in organizing the First Baptist church of Hartford. In 1823, the Connecticut Baptist convention was organized in this church, and the centennial meetings will be held in the church which has succeeded this early organization. Relics and articles of historic value will be on display during the centennial.

A centennial thank-offering of one dollar a member is being planned by the denomination. This will be added to the funds which the denomination raises each year for missionary and educational work and to aid the struggling country churches in Connecticut. Baptists in this state have increased their offerings so generously the past four years that members of the Northern Baptist convention, with which the Connecticut work is affiliated, are now giving to missions and benevolences more than $10 per capita annually, a record which surpasses the other large denominations in this country.

GROTON HOUSING PROJECT AUCTIONS FOR $165,000

The biggest real estate auction known in eastern Connecticut was conducted Thursday afternoon at Groton for the United States shipping board by Joseph P. Day, Inc., famous New York auctioneers, when they cleaned up the entire parcel of frame residences and building lots in Groton Park, the war housing project that was promoted for the Groton Iron works, one of the shipbuilding concerns that was headed by Charles W. Morse.

Ninety-eight houses, which with land, streets, sewers and other improvements were said to have represented an outlay of over one million dollars, went under the hammer for $165,000, according to a statement from the auctioneers Thursday evening. Of this amount, about $18,000 was for building lots and tracts.

Frank Kenna, a New Haven real estate operator, was the largest individual purchaser. He bid in $128,000 of the property in separate lots after first having put in a bid of $10,000 for the property entire. The bidding was largely by real estate operators from New Haven, Bridgeport and New York. But few tenants bought anything in the tract.

Auctioneer Murphy of the Day Co. conducted the sale, assisted by a large corps of clerks and assistants, while a committee representing the shipping board was present. The auction was conducted in the large office building, where about 200 people were gathered when the auction opened at 2 o'clock. The bids came fast when they once got under way and the officials of the Day Co. declared the sale has been a great success. They stated that an average of about $2,800 had been received for the houses, which were mostly of the semi-detached type, each house of each pair containing five or six rooms.

A large tract of land of about five acres on Shennecosset road at the southerly end of the plot sold for $3,500, a tract of about 3 3-4 acres for $850, a plot of 2 1-10 acres for $400, five 100 foot lots on Shennecosset road sold for $575 apiece, and a corner lot, 200x308, on Brandegee avenue and Shennecosset road, for $525. Another 200 foot lot on Shennecosset road, 350 feet deep, sold for $600. All of these were lots without houses. The highest priced lot sold was for $1,650, having 143 feet frontage on Morse avenue and depth of 110 feet. Another lot across the street from this one and on a corner sold for $1,450.

W. C. T. U. RE-ELECTS ITS OFFICERS FOR THE YEAR

The local W. C. T. U. held their first meeting of the season Wednesday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. The president, Mrs. Harriet G. Cross, presided and opened the meeting with scripture reading and prayer.

The secretary, Mrs. Maud Busce, read the minutes of the last meeting and the treasurer's report which were accepted.

Miss Cross read "America's Creed" and urge all to do likewise. Flower mad urge all to do likewise. Flower missionary work was discussed, and it was decided to make special efforts in that department. The anti-cigarette and the L. T. L. department are to be taken up also.

It was voted to send one year's subscription of The Union Signal, the national W. C. T. U. paper to the pastors in the town.

Miss Cross requested Mrs. J. J. Fields to preside during the election of officers. All the officer were reelected. President, Miss Harriet G. Cross; secretary, Mrs. Maude Bunce; treasurer, Mrs. Minnie Robinson.

The president requested each one to bring some interesting item to be read at the November meeting, and Mrs. A. F. Wyman is to arrange the program.

Mrs. Bunce and Mrs. Fields were appointed delegates to attend the state convention at Danbury, Oct. 17-19.

Mrs. Wyman read an item on "bootleggers' insurance," which was the main discussion at the meeting of the Springfield, Mass., Ministers association. They commended judges for a growing tendency to impose jail sentences.

Mrs. Bunce gave a very interesting report on Mrs. Wilson's address at the recent county convention. Mrs. Wilson reported some of the actual occurrences at the recent national convention at Columbus, Ohio.

The most impressive of all was the street pageant where the governor of Ohio, mayor of the city, the city council and all the heads of the many leading organizations rode in automobiles ahead of five thousand women and children on foot, in pure white and one sixteen elaborately decorated floats, and in the last section were nearly all of the school children carrying banners appropriately decorated with many mottoes. Connecticut added 626 new members to the many thousands gained during the past year. Uncasville gained a new union of 22 active and 2 honorary members. Miss Potters address was on Americanization and was very interesting and right to the point, making a great impression, as she seemed heart and soul in her work.

Mrs. Wyman told of the illustrated anti-cigarette talk by Miss Starr of Uncasville.

All were very much pleased with the services, and received inspiration to endeavor to do more effective work.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

FORMER COLCHESTER MAN SUICIDE IN SPRINGFIELD

Frederick Tracy Brand, 47, a resident of this city and Colchester when a young man, committed suicide last Monday by shooting in the basement of the Springfield (Mass.) Institution for Savings, where he had been clerk and teller for the last 30 years. His lifeless body was found at 9.30 in the lavatory by his brother, John W. P. Brand, treasurer of the bank, with the right hand still clutching the .32-caliber revolver from which was fired the bullet that pierced his heart. Upon viewing the body, Medical Examiner Frederick D. Jones declared that death must have been instantaneous.

The theory of despondency, due to continued ill health, says the Springfield Republican, supplies the only rational motive for Mr. Brand's act. His home life was ideal, his affections being lavished upon his wife and two boys, the oldest of whom observed his 15th birthday on Sunday. His books at the bank, as always, were found accurate to a penny. His many friends believe that the heart malady, angina pectoris, from which he had suffered acutely of late, had thrown him off his balance and that he was not altogether his own genial self when he resolved to end his troubles. Mr. Brand left a farewell note for his wife in which he intimated his purpose. When he went to the bank in the morning his goodbye to his wife and his boys was even more tender than usual, and it is believed that he had then decided on his course.

Though a sufferer for 15 years from heart trouble, and knowing that death might overtake him at any moment, Mr. Brand always wore a smiling face. His cheerful personality and his qualities of heart and mind endeared him to a wide circle. He enjoyed his home and garden and his neighbors and friends. He enjoyed his vacations too. Only a few weeks ago he returned from his outing spent at his camp in East Otis, where he appeared in the best of spirits.

Mr. Brand was born in Chicago, Ill., March 18, 1876, the son of Christopher A. and Elisabeth (Bulkeley) Brand. When a young boy he moved with his parents to their old home town, Norwich, Conn. In the public schools there and in the academy at Colchester, Conn., he received his education. Some 30 years ago Mr. Brand came to Springfield to become a junior clerk at the Institution for Savings, where his elder brother, John W. P. Brand, now treasurer, was already employed. Tracy Brand, as he came to be known, was rapidly advanced to the position of teller and for several years past has been the head receiving teller of the institution. He was personally known to and always had a smile for the thousands of depositors at the institution.

Mr. Brand in 1907 married Miss Clara MacDonald, formerly of Bath, Me., who was then a teacher in the State street grammar school. They have had two children, Thomas Tracy Brand, 15, and Alexander MacDonald Brand, 13. Mr. Brand was a communicant for years at Christ Episcopal church, later becoming a member of St. Peter's church, where he served for some time as a lay reader. Since taking up his residence at 26 Woodlawn place, Longmeadow, he had attended the Congregational church in that town, pending the completion of the Episcopal chapel there.

YANKS LOSE WALLY PIPP; GIANTS LOSE RALPH SKINNERS FOR WORLD'S SERIES

New York, Oct. 4.—Miller Huggins, manager of the New York Yankees, announced tonight that there was small hope of Wally Pipp being able to take his regular stand at first base during the world's series with the Giants next week. Pipp's ankle, which was injured in Boston last week, is healing slowly, Huggins said. Babe Ruth probably will hold down the first bag.

Bob Meusel' ankle, which also was hurt, continues to pain the Yankee left fielder and he too faces the possibility of sitting on the bench while his team mates battle with their fellow townsmen.

"Pipp's ankle is in a harness," Huggins said and he is taking electrical treatments. The harness will be taken off on Monday when it will be decided definitely whether he can play in the series.

"All bad luck of the year seems to have descended upon us in Boston last week," said Huggins. "Mike McNally, infield utility man, is out with a sprained ankle and Ruth also has been favoring an ankle for several days. Ruth's ankle, however seems stronger today and I expect him to be in first class shape by next Wednesday."

Huggins said he probably would start either Jones or Pennock on the mound in the opening game of the series unless the skies were cloudy in which event Joe Bush, who pitched and lost the first game ow last year's series, would be chosen.

"I don't see why we're the favorites in the betting," said Huggins. "The series looks even to me. We have five good pitchers, but no great ones like Alexander, Johnson or Matthewson who can be depended upon to win two or three games."

YANKS LOSE THEIR CHANCE FOR 100 GAMES

New York, Oct. 4.—The New York Yankees lost whatever chance they had of attaining their goal of 100 victories this season by losing today's game with Philadelphia, 7 to 6. The American league champions have won 96 games and have but three left to play, all with the Athletics.

The Mackmen clinched the game in the fifth innings when they battered Carl Mays for four runs. Eddie Rommel checked the Yankees after Hasty was found for four runs in the first three innings.

Babe Ruth performed at first base in place of Wally Pipp and knocked out his 39th home run in the first inning with Dugan on base. Score:

SIKI TO ARRIVE HERE ON OCT. 19TH

New York, Oct. 4.—The first American appearance of Battling Siki, the Senegalese heavyweight who knocked out Georges Carpentier several months ago, has been postponed to Oct. 19, it was announced tonight by Promoter Tex Rickard.

The postponement of the bout in which Siki is to meet Kid Norfolk came in a general switching of Rickard's October program at Madison Square Garden. The promoter stated that the Jack Berman-Rocky Kansas junior lightweight title battle has been moved forward from Oct. 19 to Oct. 12; the Siki-Norfolk engagement moved from the 12th to the 19th, and the Joe Lynch-Joe Burman bantamweight title meeting from the 12th to the 26th of the month.

Rickard said Georges Carpentier was not expected here until next spring, and that Mike McTigue and Tom Gibbins were considered as probable future opponents of the French boxer.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—Chicago brought the American league season to a close here today by defeating Detroit, 2 to 6. Ted Blankenship had only two bad innings, and was backed up by great support, especially by McClellan and Barrett, who played at third, because Kamm was suffering from a cold. The score:

WESTERLY

Westerly people who are interested in the New England flight of the American built giant dirigable Z R-1 this week end await the report of Comdr. F. R. McReary, commander of the air ship on its return voyage from St. Louis to Lakehurst, N. J., which will be made to the navy department this (Friday) morning. Upon the nature of this report will depend the decision to send the giant aircraft this way at this week end or some future time. Also the supply of helium gas for the big balloon will have to be replenished and as this gas has to be shipped from Texas delay may be occasioned on this account. Inasmuch as assurances have been given the management of Brockton Fair and to the New London Chamber of Commerce that these two places will be given an opportunity to see the airship, Westerly being situated in a direct line between these points has a very good chance of catching sight of the big air visitor. The United States navy department several years ago gave local assurance that a dirigible visiting this vicinity would if possible, be routed this way. United States Senator LeBaron Colt at that time stated that he would do all that he could to influence the department to include Westerly among the places to be visited.

Interest is manifested by Westerly friends of Rev. Ira Cottrell, 77, in his unaccounted for disappearance early Tuesday morning from the home of his son, 209 Greene avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. Rev. Mr. Cottrell was pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church in Ashaway some years ago, his son being a teacher in Hopkinton public schools. Arriving Monday night at the home of his daughter-in-law, he retired to his room for the night, but was gone with his handbag when called for his breakfast Tuesday morning. He had not returned to his home in Alfred, N. Y., nor was his body located in any morgue.

The police discovered Rev. Mr. Cottrell at the railroad station, Jersey City, and they communicated with his son, Royal Cottrell in Brooklyn. Mr. Cottrell did not know how he got there and could make no explanation.

Robert M. Freestone, John Kitchen and George W. Saunders, members of Merrill post, No. 16, American Legion, were named a committee to have charge of the Armistice day celebration, at the October meeting of the post held in their rooms on Broad street Wednesday evening. An effort is being made by the Rhode Island department of the American legion to have action taken by the proper state authorities to declare Nov 12 a legal holiday this year for Armistice day, inasmuch as the 11th falls on Sunday.

This (Friday) afternoon at Westerly the High School football eleven meets the strong New Haven High School eleven in the second football game of the season. Coach D. Harold Rogers was greatly pleased at the showing made by the W. H. S. players last Friday when they held the strong Windham High School eleven, admittedly the best team placed on the field in the last six years by Willimantic to a 6 to 6 tie.

Thursday noon, before Clerk M. Walter Flynn, acting judge of the third district court, John Crotty, was was arrested in White Rock Wednesday, charged with intoxication, was found guilty and fined $2 and costs, which was paid.

Dr. John M. O'Connell, chairman of the Westerly Republican Town committee called a session of the committees from both the First and Second voting districts, in Westerly town hall, Thursday evening, at 7.30. Present office holders were given a chance to state whether or not they were candidates for re-election. Samuel M. Sharpe, a member of the Westerly Board of Tax Assessors for twenty years, informed Chairman O'Connell Thursday morning that he would not be a candidate for re-election.

The weekly session of the Third district court to be held this (Friday) morning in the court rooms on Union street will have besides the regular civil docket, several cases on the criminal docket which have been set down for trial on this date.

Charles F. Berry, Albert H. Langworthy and Dwight R. Stillman are members of an automobile party which left Westerly Thursday morning for a visit to Brockton fair.

Horace P. Dodge returned to the E. M. Dodge store Thursday morning, after two weeks' absence.

Councilmen Thomas Morrison, John Nichols, Louis Rossi, and George Kemp were of an automobile party leaving Westerly early Thursday morning for Brockton fair.

Ronald C. Dove of Westerly was in Providence Wednesday.

James Dowd, George Vardilios, Geo. Kenyon and Maurice Silverstein visited Brockton fair on an automobile trip Wednesday.

Two of the young women members of the Atwood hunting and fishing party at Kennebago Lake, Me., are reported to have been lost in the woods the past week and dwellers in the countryside were aroused to search for the missing members of the party before they were located.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Ward Alger and daughter, Betty, were automobile visitors at Brockton fair Thursday.

John W. Nield of Westerly was an early morning visitor in Boston on Thursday.

Walter N. Broadfoot left Westerly Wednesday for Boston, planning to stop at Brockton fair on his return to Westerly Thursday.

The supply train of the New Haven road made its three-monthly stop at the Westerly station the first of the week.

Samuel Moran has entered the employ of Henry A. Stable.

Transfers of real estate on record at the office of the Westerly town clerk for the last half of September are as follows:

Sept. 17—James Foley to Delia B. Foley, undivided one-half interes in land and buildings on east side of Granite street.

Thorp and Trainer to Samuel Hartridge et us, lot of land north side of Atlantic avenue, Pleasant View.

Sept. 25—Lillian Novogrod to Stanley E. Bradford of West Springfield, Mass., lot of land south of Atlantic avenue, Pleasant View.

Harrite A. V. Clapp to Joseph W. Gaffney, lot of land and buildings east side of Vose street.

Suffragan Bishop Samuel G. Babcock, of Massachusetts, a well known summer visitor at Watch Hill, will be one of the four bishops in attendance this (Friday) morning at St. Paul's Cathedral, Boston, when a special programme of music will feature the thirtieth anniversary of the consecration of Rt. Rev. William Lawrence to the bishopric of Massachusetts. Following the service there will be a luncheon in the cathedral rooms.

A telegram received from Lakehurst, N. J., dated at 3 p. m., Oct. 1, stated that the ZR-1 would fly over Westerly during the forenoon of Oct. 6, Saturday. The telegram was signed by commanding officer of the dirigible.

No doubt the man who divorces one wife and weds another thinks it's a fair exchange.

GREAT $50,000 PIANO AND PLAYER SALE

PRICES CUT Regardless of Profits—and Terms Never So Low—READ—READ

BY setting a quota to work on and making up our minds to do it by working night and day, we find we can sell on a much smaller margin of profit. For example, if the daily expense of a piano store was a certain amount a day, and only one instrument was sold, it's plain to be seen that this amount must be added to the wholesale price of each instrument before any profit could be made, but if a number of instruments were sold, the expense of selling each instrument, naturally, would be a great deal less on each one. So we have decided to set a quota of $50,000 in a short period of time at our Willimantic and Stafford Springs stores and our prices are marked accordingly. Call at our store, day or night, and our salesmen will take great pleasure demonstrating the instruments to you, whether you buy or not. This is the opportunity you have been waiting for. Don't put off buying, the prices and terms are all in your favor. Store open nights until 9 o'clock.

LLOYD GEORGE TO SAIL FOR AMERICA TODAY

New York, Oct. 4.—David Lloyd George, the last of the great war premiers to fall in the aftermath of peace, will set foot on American soil tomorrow for the first time.

Free from the burdens of carrying on the British government the former British prime minister comes to discover anew America and to impart his views from the platform to the American people. He is the second of the foreign member "Big Four" of Versailles — Wilson, Clemenceau and Orlando were the other three—to come to this country.

Mr. Lloyd George, his wife, and the ex-premier's inseparable companion, his daughter, Miss Megan, and half a dozen secretaries, are passengers aboard the Mauretania, due at Quarantine tomorrow morning.

Don't forget that you ought to be thankful for a great many things you haven't got.

THE "TROUBLES OF THE WESTERN FARMER

(Written Specially For The Bulletin.)

Being yourself fairly sharp of vision you have doubtless noticed that most of the rampaging being done just at present in the field of political farming is being done in the west. Especially and emphatically in the wheat country.

Elsewhere, even though farmers are having a hard time between the devil of "labor's" insatiable appetite for higher wages and profiteering's deep sea of unfillable demands, the farmers seem to be at least keeping their heads.

They are finding Jordan a hard road to travel. But they seem to retain enough common sense not to make it worse by driving into the ditches. It is only in the west that they have dismissed their common sense and are kissing the horsewhip with which their new masters of the so-called "labor" party are driving them.

In the west. And in the wheat country. Just why should this be so?

Well, there may be 'steen dozen reasons, for all I know. But there is one reason which is amply broad enough to explain most of the rampage, without taking trouble to examine all the other possible explanations.

It is this: The most of the farmers of the wheat region are not farmers at all; they are just wheat-wranglers.

They live on what are called farms, to be sure, and in what are called farmhouses. But they don't farm their holdings; they mine them.

Farming implies tillage and cultivation and fertilization and rotation of crops and various other elements. The wheat-wrangler neither tills nor cultivates nor fertilizes nor rotates—unless you call his angry spinning around his own political axis a rotation. He just plows up a few thousand acres with a tractor; sows a few thousand bushels of wheat with a power-drill; and then curls up in the shade on the north side of his dugout to wait for the harvest.

The idea of tending to his crops rarely enters his mind. Why should it? He is not a crop-grower, but, as has been said, just a wheat-wrangler. His idea is to let the dirt do his work and board itself while doing so. Nature has been storing up fertility in that dirt for a good many thousand years. He makes it his business to mine out that fertility just as fast as he can and with as little trouble as he may. Wheat happens to fit in best with this mining scheme.

You see, raising wheat on the virgin soils of the west calls for no farming skill; no agricultural wisdom; no large amount of labor. Any man who can steer a tractor can plow those level, stoneless lands. Wheat will grow, if the season serves, on any of them. Once sown, it needs no attention or labor until harvest.

Don't make the mistake of weeping too salt tears over the troubles of the wheat-wrangler. They undoubtedly are real troubles. They undoubtedly hurt him. He is undoubtedly sore over them. Very sore. And when he is sore he howls. Howls, not perhaps like any bull of Bashan, but very much like a lame coyote with a cactus thorn in its toe.

But his troubles are, largely, his own fault, due to his own sheer laziness. Nobody ever compelled him to abandon real farming for wheat-wrangling. He chose it of his own accord, and, chiefly, because it seemed an easy way to make a living.

A few weeks' work in the spring plowing and seeding; a few weeks in the fall harvesting and thrashing; both jobs done by machinery. For the rest of the year he could "loaf and invite his soul," as Walt Whitman described it.

It seemed an easy snap to him. Very little work; no great strain on either brains or muscles; a fairly certain crop; a world-wide demand for the grain. When the soil was worn out, when he had mined away its slowly gathered fertility with a few wheat crops, he could move on to some other new land and do it over again.

In other words, he took up wheat-growing mainly because he was too dum lazy to do real farming. And now that one thing or another has knocked the bottom out of the wheat market, and he can't sell his lazy man's crop for what it cost him to raise and harvest, he is mad all the way through. Madder'n a wet hen by several degrees. Mad enough to bite off his own nose to spite his face. Mad enough to bite off all the rest of our noses. Mad enough to make an egregious ass of himself. Mad enough to join hands with his most dangerous despoiler, and fling himself into the political bramble-bush in the vain hope that it will, somehow, scratch back into their orbits the eyes another bramble-bush has scratched out.

Why, only the other day, I read this sentence in an editorial printed in one of the most widely circulated newspapers of the wheat belt:

"The only drawback to mixed farming is that it chains the farmer to the farm summer and winter."

Think of it! The idea of a farmer being "chained to the farm" on a fine summer day when he'd a great deal rather go fishing down the branch! "Chained to the farm" in the late fall when the hickory nuts are ripe and he wants to go nutting! "Chained to the farm," the dairy stables, perhaps, in the winter time, when the sleighing is fine and he'd rather take a spin to town behind his fast steppers!

Can't you see how this prospect revolts the soul of the wheat-wrangler? Why, he might as well be a carpenter or a doctor or a plumber or a lawyer or a blacksmith or a banker, if he's got to be "chained to the farm" all the time and actually work the year round!

Seriously, why should we eastern farmers, who long ago discovered the difference between mining and farming, who are "chained to the farm" every day and all day by its imperative demands; who have to do 'mixed farming" or starve to death; who work 365 days every year and 366 on leap years—why should we waste tears over the plight into which the western wheat-wrangler has plunged himself?

Even that western paper from which I quoted above mildly opines that the wheat men may yet have to put on that "chain."

"It looks as though we should have to pay this price for success on the farm just as we do in other lines of business," says the editor. "Does a reader know of any other group of workers or business men who are getting along without working all the year round?"

There is an old saying in my part of the country that "a lazy man always takes the most pains." Anyway, the lazy man always makes the most fuss and snivels the loudest when his laziness works its perfect work. Instead of looking in his own mirror to find the cause of his troubles, he goes whimpering and whining up and down the highways of an otherwise busy world, just as if he really thought it was the place of other people to wipe his own nose for him.

Now, don't make any mistake: For the farmer who works hard, works intelligently, works persistently, and works every day—and yet seems to get nowhere, I have the deepest and sincerest sympathy. If there is anything in the conditions with which society or government surround him which is responsible for that failure, then society and government should amend those conditions. When a man does his level best to avoid the hole and still is pushed into it by others, then those others have some responsibility towards helping to pull him out. But when he deliberately walks into the hole because he's too lazy to go around it—that's different.

There's altogether too much stress laid on the wheat men's troubles of late. That they are real troubles and serious troubles no one can dispute. But they are almost the only troubles afflicting agriculture which can be ascribed and justly to the shortsightedness if not actual laziness of the victims themselves.

They wanted to get rich quick and get rich easy. Themselves digged the pit into which they have fallen.

Acres upon thousands of acres; square mile after square mile of wheat; fields running endlessly into what seem like infinite distances; all in wheat and all because it seemed the easiest crop to raise. No mixed farming for them; no submitting to any all year round work; no taking up of anything which should "chain" them to the farm. They were after the easy snap.

Well, they seem to have missed it. A few of them are scratching their own heads and beginning to wonder if they aren't themselves to blame, and if they wouldn't do better to take up real farming, even if it does involve harder work and require them to stay at home more of the time. But the majority seem to have gone on the rampage.

The airs from the west are strident with lamentations and gnashings of teeth and howlings as from the pit. We eastern farmers, whose noses are being held pretty firmly on the grindstone, can't help hearing the racket they are making. Our own position is uncomfortable enough, and our own outlook gloomy enough, heaven knows. But those fellows bawl as if they were the only sufferers. And they seem to think that we, too, should join them in a crazy Quixotic fighting of windmills with tin pan shields and mullein-stalk lances.

They seem to have fallen again into the absurd superstition that relief can be secured through politics.

We've all heard of the partners, one of whom put in the money while the other furnished the experience, and how, after a year, the one who put in the experience had the money and the one who supplied the money had the experience. That's about what happens in any partnership between business—any kind of business—and politics. It is often a fine thing for the politicians. But it rarely profitable to the business. Farming is no exception. In any combination between farming and politics there will, doubtless, be plenty of "give and take." But farming will do all the giving and politics all the taking. It always has been so. It always will be so.

One would think that even the western wheat growers would find out this primary truth, sooner or later. Until they do, there is no visible reason why we of the east who have found it out, should join them in any rampage.

The Man Who Talks for The Bulletin said a wise thing, the other day. "It is a big thing to know when and how to speak. It is just as big to know how and when to keep still."

It is sometimes useful if not necessary to punch another fellow's head. But it is usually more remunerative to keep on sawing wood than to go rampaging around with a club, hitting heads indiscriminately.

THE FARMER.

Mighty Healing Power of Peterson's Ointment

"I wish I could publish all the grateful letters I get every week," says Peterson. "I don't believe anyone on this earth has such a happy time at work as I have. All I do is make Peterson's Ointment and read letters like these that come right from the heart.

"I had an ulcer on my ankle—had it 30 years and could not get it healed. For the last six years I had several doctors. I got one box of your ointment and it almost healed it and it was entirely healed before I had used the second one. I don't think there is a better remedy on earth." Mrs. J. C. Henderson, 530 Sprague St., Winston-Salem, N. C.

Peterson's Ointment is just as good for ulcers as it is for old sores. It stops itching of eczema almost instantly. There isn't anything in the way of pimples or face blemishes that it won't chase away, and for sore feet, chafing, sunburn, colds, cuts and bruises there is nothing sure or speedy. 35 cents, 60c, $1, $2.50, $5.

Bruin at the Door.

Now, let me see where we left off in the last story. Maybe I'd better put on my thinking cap. Goodness gracious! Now I remember. The bunny boy was in the tree house of Blue Cap, the little man of the forest. Sure enough, that's just where we left the bunny boy, and the little gray squirrel had just asked him what he did to keep his feathered cap from getting wet when it rained.

[asked "Who Are You" Blue Cap.

"I take off my hat and put it in my pocket," said Little Jack Rabbit with a grin, "and when the sun comes out I stick it back again!"

"I wish I could do that with my tail," said the gray squirrel, "but you see I haven't a pocket large enough."

and he frisked across the room and through the front door. I guess he went back to Mrs. Squirrel and told her that he had met a rabbit with boots and maybe she told her little squirrels.

Pretty soon after that Blue Cap, the little man of the forest, came in from the kitchen and said:

"There's apple pie in the cupboard
And a piece of angel cake,
And a pitcher of milk and a lollypop—
Now which of all these will you take?"

"Goodness me!" laughed Little Jack Rabbit. "They all sound pretty good but maybe I'd better take the lollypop."

Then they both went into the kitchen and sat down at a little table made out of a nice smooth log turned up on end. And while they were eating a loud voice came through the tiny knothole window with cobweb curtains.

"Who are you?" asked Blue Cap, jumping up from the table.

"I'm Sir Bruin, the big black bear," answered the voice.

"Then you stay outside," answered Blue Cap. "I don't want a bear in my house. No, sir."

But the bear wouldn't go away. He pounded on the back door till the dishes in the cupboard rattled and the top of the teapot fell down on the shelf.

"Gracious me!" said Blue Cap. "Maybe if I give him the lollypop he'll go away."

"I'll give you a lollypop if you promise to leave."

"All right," answered the big black bear. "Toss it out." And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

SECURES MARGARET SLATTERY FOR NORWICH ADDRESS

The Norwich Young Men's Christian Association management has at last been fortunate in securing for two addresses on the coming Sunday, the nationally known worker and speaker for young people, Miss Margaret Slattery, and doubtless large audiences will listen with eagerness to her wonderful messages. Special arrangements have been made for Miss Slattery to speak at 4 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, to which the public is invited, though young men and ladies from fifteen years to twenty-three will be special guests, and the message will be to them, the subject being "The Fate of Dreamers," which is one of Miss Slattery's strongest messages, and one that will appeal in a very special way to those of the ages mentioned, and of course will be greatly enjoyed by others who may be fortunate to hear it. On account of the large number expected, it is urged that the age limit be observed, namely fifteen years and up, in other words only those fifteen and over are expected. Delegations from the churches of Norwich and from various parts of the county are expected. The music will be by Swahn's orchestra.

In the evening at 7.30 o'clock, at the Central Baptist church, all the local churches and the Y. M. C. A. will unite in a huge mass meeting at which Miss Slattery will deliver her masterpiece, "Can America Trust the People?" This will probably be one of the largest attended religious meetings held here in many years, and it is suggested that those who desire seats come early. The coming of Miss Slattery should be a real event in the religious life of Norwich, and doubtless the citizens will take advantage of the privilege offered of hearing this gifted woman.

Earthquake Films to be Shown at the Breed Today and Saturday.

There has been considerable speculation in the trade ever since it was known that Japan had suffered a doubtful disaster through earthquake, fire and flood, as to whether it had been possible to film anything at all, and if so who would be able to get it first.

Despatches from the coast tell the story of the success of the Pathe News in getting some first rate pictures. On Monday, Sept. 24, the Pathe News released to regular customers pictures of the disaster which are described by exhibitors as being really wonderful. These pictures are, Pathe says, the first to be shown in this country.

The story connected with these pictures is an interesting one. Ralph Earl, one of the first cameramen that the Pathe News had, who covered the coast territory in the old days when the News was known as the Pathe Weekly, was the man who turned the trick. He was traveling in Japan at the time of the disaster and by a stroke of luck was on the spot when the repeated shocks were levelling Tokio and Yokohama. Earl saw his opportunity and secured thousands of feet of sensational scenes. He took the first boat to the United States with his prize.

These pictures will be shown at the Breed theatre today and Saturday in addition to the regular program.

Breed Theatre.

A Metro picture, Rouged Lips, with Viola Dana its star, opened at the Breed theatre yesterday. It is a picturization of Rita Weiman's story called Upstage, which appeared formerly in The Saturday Evening Post. It is a disclosure of life behind the stage curtain, a story of stage people. It was directed by Harold Shaw from scenario by Thomas J. Hopkins and ably photographed by John Arnold.

Little Norah, one of the devil's chorus of "thirty under twenty," meets her Prince Charming, Jimmy, who wants to marry her. He tells his father, who scorns the idea of his son marrying a chorus girl and doesn't believe, as Jimmy says, that Norah is one among a million and has a heart of pure gold. Jimmy offers to show him by inviting Norah to the house that evening and proving that she is not only beautiful and good but a perfect lady and well suited to enter into the family.

Meanwhile Norah, heart-stricken because she has always appeared before Jimmy in shabby clothes, decides that for his sake she will spend some of her savings and dress herself up so that he will be proud of her.

When Jimmy appears that evening to take Norah to his home, jealous whispers cloud his mind and when Norah comes out all dressed in her newly bought finery he misunderstands and accuses her of being like all the rest—merely a chorus girl. He leaves Norah heart-broken but determined to show him that he is wrong.

Well, of course, it all ends—but this is giving away a delightful story. In the meantime Viola Dana gives a vivacious performance, sparkling and life-like. With Miss Dana, as Jimmy, is Tom Moore who also gives a very competent performance full of humor.

Rouged Lips will be the feature at the Breed again today and other pictures on the bill include the Japanese earthquake films, Ruth Roland in Haunted Valley and a Sunshine comedy.

Broadway Theatre.

For the opening vaudeville attraction at the Broadway theatre the last half of the week a very fine bill was presented.

Maxwell, Lee & Co. offered a very fine juggling and comedy act.

Nell McKinley in a comedy act proved a riot.

William O'Clare & Co., the Irish Warblers are certainly fine singers.

Strong, dramatic stories have especially characterized every picture in which eLah Baird has appeared under the Associated Exhibitors banner, and "Is Divorce a Failure?" shown at the Broadway theatre for the first time yesterday advances her standard.

Powerfully the story works up to the climax where the break comes. It is man against man—bare-fisted, hot-bloded, fighting for a woman! It is a storm of human emotions as violent and cataclysmic as the tempest that is shaking their frail hut—as dangerous and consuming as the eruption of the volcano that stands like a sentinel guarding the island.

Bradley Theatre, Putnam.

Flying this way—The Bat, greatest of all mystery plays and the one play that has made more theatrical history than any other five plays ever produced in the American theatre. Yes, and for that matter, in any theatre on the globe.

The Bat comes the closest to being a real international hit of any play ever produced. Stop for a moment to look at its record. It has swept the United States like a whirlwind. It has been the greatest American success ever shown in London. It has scored tremendous hits in Paris, in Australia, in India, in Norway and Sweden.

Even as the play is being presented here, it will be playing in at least six other countries of the globe. And the story has been and will be the same—absolute capacity in each and every theatre in which it is being shown.

The Bat is booked for the Bradley theatre, Putnam, on Thursday, Oct. 11th. There will be other announcements made from time to time in the natural course of events but past experience has proven beyond question that even though not one more word was said in advance of the coming of the play, the theatre would scarcely hold those who are waiting its coming.

Services at Spiritual Academy.

Sunday services will be resumed at the Spiritual Academy on Park st. next Sunday with the noted psychic, Mrs. Isabel C. Bradley of Boston, who will follow discourses given by the pastor, Rev. Albert P. Blinn, with psychic messages and ballot readings at 2.30 in the afternoon and 7.30 in the evening.

On the following Sunday Mrs. Amelia Adams will be the speaker and psychic and, she is expected to remain over and give a special message service on the following Monday evening.

Mrs. Annette Pettingill Comyers will serve the church on the 21st and Mrs. Jennie Southworth on the 28t of the month.

Arrangements have been made with Mrs. Bradley to be the psychic on the first Sunday of each month from now until June on which days the pastor will give the lectures and Mrs. Bradley the messages.

Booklets have been printed for general distribution giving the list of the various spiritualistic workers and mediums who have been engaged to occupy the platform at the Academy during the season.

Charles A. Dowsett has been retained as organist and musical director, this being his twenty-second year with the Union, and the pastor, Rev. Albert P. Blinn begins his twentieth year this month.

At the Strand Theatre.

An extra fine programme of B. F. Keith vaudeville was presented at the Strand theatre last night to a capacity audience.

The Roma Duo and Jacovf in their latest dance creation was the hit of the programme. Their ice skating number was great. Special scenic effects enhanced this act very much.

Zink and Fanna opened with a musical number consisting of violin playing and a string and wire instrument.

Waly James in Bon Mots and What Not proved to be a very good singing and comedy offering.

Joe Dunleavy and Irene Chesleigh in "After the Shower," is a humorous flirtation with song which consisted of very good comedy and singing.

"Fools and Riches" Herbert Rawlinson's latest Universal attraction which is now being shown at the Strand theatre, was written especially for the star by Frederick Jachson, a newspaper man and a great admirer of Rawlinson's work. The screen adaptation was done by Charles Kenyon and George C. Hull, two of the screen's most successful scenarists.

Kindergarten Primary Association.

The first meeting of the Eastern Connecticut Kindergarten Primary Association for the year 1923-1924, will be held Tuesday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, October 9th, at the United Congregational church vestry.

Mrs. Grace Drysdale of Cambridge Mass., is to be the speaker. Her subject "Holy Little Children Listen to Music."

Mrs. Drysdale is a graduate of the Curry School of Expression in Boston and has taught in the University of Vermont and the University of Chicago. "Appreciation of Music" is the life theme of Mrs. Drysdale, who has established what is probably the first "School Record Service" in the world.

This shows Nokol installed in a steam boiler. It can be installed in a coal heating plant of any type without alterations.

End the uncertainty, labor and dirt of coal heating this fall

Nokol burns oil instead of coal in your present home-heating furnace or boiler. By merely removing the grate bars it can be installed in a heating plant of any type—hot air, hot water, steam or vapor—without alterations.

In over 14,500 homes Nokol has ended both the dirt and labor of coal heating. Controlled by a thermostat in the living-room, Nokol is entirely automatic in operation. Without effort or attention on your part, it keeps your home at exactly the temperature you like at all times, no matter what the outside temperature may be. Nokol burns with a clean, sootless, odorless flame.

Nokol does away forever with worry about fuel, for the supply of Nokol fuel is inexhaustible, and has never been rendered uncertain by labor or transportation troubles. For more than five years Nokol has given its owners clean, even, automatic, reliable, healthful heat, at no more than the cost of coal.

Nokol can be installed in a few hours, without interrupting the heating of your home. Don't pledge yourself to another year of dirty, laborious coal heating. Install Nokol this fall.

Gentlemen:

I take pleasure in writing a recommendation of the Magee Gas Range which we have now used for nearly a month.

My wife is very much pleased with it. I seldom come home nights without hearing something new about the stove. Yesterday she said it supplied the brains which she lacked. The stove itself with its insulated oven saves a great deal of gas. My gas bill this month is just about half what it has previously been.

The thermostat arrangement is really the brains of the stove and it is this combined with the stove which makes it an ideal piece of kitchen equipment.

As an illustration of the above my wife told me an incident which happened the other day. She lighted the oven for cake and while mixing the cake a neighbor called. She left her work and talked with the neighbor for some time forgetting that her oven was going. When the neighbor left she rushed back to the stove thinking it was over-heated but found that the faithful pilot was on duty and the thermostat had entirely shut off the gas. The oven therefore was just right for the cake although it had been going some time. It is little things like this which make it a constant source of pleasure to her.

Yours very truly,

LBH:B

GREENEVILLE PASTOR SPOKE AT PRESTON CITY CHURCH CONFERENCE

Preston City Congregational church entertained the six church conference and celebrated its 225th anniversary on Wednesday. During the regular opening exercises Rev. W. D. Hetherington, pastor of the Preston City Baptist church, offered prayer, which was followed by a response by the choir. The responsive reading was led by Rev. Frank Robbins of Preston City, field missionary for the Stonington Union Baptist Association. A historical address was to have been given by Rev. Sherrod Soule, but he was unable to find the time to prepare it.

Rev. William Muttart, pastor of the church, spoke of its being one of the oldest in the state. Two hundred years ago there were three hundred churches and only thirty as old as this one. In 1686 the town applied for a charter. In 1687 it applied for a minister, and in 1693 moved to erect a church. In 1717 it was divided into the North and South parish. Twenty-five years ago the church celebrated its 200th anniversary.

Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth brought the greetings of the old First Congregational church in New London, speaking of that church which was fifty-six years old when the Preston church was founded, as the great aunt. He took for his text one that he said that was most often used at funerals, but with which he wished the congregation to become acquainted in another way. "In My Father's house are many mansions" was the text. Unity and Variety were the divisions of the subject he discussed. Heaven is a place where there is great unity and great variety. And he applied that to the churches of today. Real unity will be found in them—not by tearing down the churches to make one big church—but tear down the barriers between them. Have all regard for identity and personality. Faith, hope and love should pass from church to church. Real value and real goodness has just as much value here as in heaven. The service closed with a trio, God Be Merciful to Us, sung by J. Kellogg Hall, Mrs. Clifton Dawley and Sidney Hall.

Preceding Dr. Danforth's address, Rev. J. P. Richardson read an address of felicitation and good wishes from the daughter church at Pachaug.

The resolutions committee appointed were Rev. H. S. Stephenson, Rev. Roderick McLeod and Rev. J. P. Richardson.

The women of the church served a fine dinner at noon. The praise service in the afternoon was held by J. Kellogg Hall. After the offering was received Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, the scribe of the conference, read the record of the last conference, which was accepted. The roll was called, 17 responding from Pachaug, 17 from Jewett City, 9 from Lisbon, 5 from Plainfield, 17 from Hanover, 40 from Preston City and 38 visitors, a total of 136.

Rev. William Prentiss of Plainfield conducted the devotional exercises, reading the Scripture from John II. The principal theme of his talk was taking home something from the conferences to help in the individual church work. Especially by each person making it a point to do individual work among the people in which no interest seems to be taken.

Rev. C. H. Ricketts of Greeneville spoke on The Types of Evangelism. He told of the work of the early gospel in the teachings of Christ, who baptized the world with a new spirit. He never tried to frighten anyone into the Kingdom of God. He never became angry excepting with hypocrisy. Follow Me was said in love. His apostles dropped Caesar from their programme and went out with love in their hearts. In their work was the absence of the cold justice which lasted until about fifty years ago. If civilization is to be saved it is by Christ's way, not Caesar's. Night was Caesar's way—Love is Christ's way. He presented two pictures, one of the old time way of "getting up" revivals. And he said the other was the rebirth of the fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man, and the application of the Sermon on the Mount.

Rev. Roderick McLeod of Hanover sang O, Love Divine. Charles S. Bailey, county secretary of the Y. M. C. A., spoke on How the Y Can Cooperate With the Church and How the Church Can Cooperate With the Y. The Y work is four square, physically, spiritually, intellectually and socially. He described some of the plans which have worked out successfully. An announcement was made of the Older Boys' Conference in New London, and that Margaret Slattery is to speak there. She will speak in Norwich at the Y and Central Baptist church next Sunday.

The resolution committee, thanked the church for its hospitality and fine dinner and the splendid messages of the day. It was the wish of the committee that a spirit of cooperation be fostered by these meetings and infused into each person's work in their church.

The decorations of beautiful fall flowers of hydrangeas, asters, dahlias, salvia, gladioli, marigolds and roses, with palms, were a pleasure to the eye.

RULES FOR REFERENCES TO STATE REFEREES

Eastern Connecticut attorneys will be interested in the rules of practice which have been adopted as to references to state referees as follows:

1—The assignment committee of superior court judges in or before September of each year will ascertain what referees will entertain references, the periods of time they can give the dates they prefer and the counties in which it is convenient for them to act. A list of available referees will be prepared from the information so obtained, and sent to each clerk and judge.

2—Ordinarily, references will be made not to any particular referee, but simply to a state referee, and the clerk in each county will keep a list of such references.

3—Three regular sessions for hearings by referees will be held each court year at Hartford, New Haven, and Bridgeport, in or about November, February and May; two at Waterbury in or about October and April, one in Norwich in October. Assignments of referees for these hearings, subject to their approval, will be made by the assignment committee and copies given to the clerks and judges. Cases will be assigned for hearing at the short calendar session in the week preceding, if any, otherwise counsel in all cases must be ready to proceed at the opening of the session.

4—In other counties or in special cases, the clerk, or counsel interested in any case referred or to be referred may at any time call it to the attention of the presiding judge, and if in his judgment such action is justified, he may direct the clerk to secure the attendance of a referee, having regard to their convenience and desires as indicated in the list above referred to.

5—No divorce case will be referred within ninety days of the return day, except for some unusual and weighty reason. If in such a cast no contest is actually made, the referee will hear the case and report the facts with his recommendations, but in addition will report the failure of either party to contest it, with any circumstances connected therewith which he deems significant.

MAKES COMPENSATION AWARD ON HUMPHREY CLAIM

According to a finding filed Wednesday with the clerk of the superior court in this city by Compensation Commissioner James J. Donohue, Mrs. Mary Hogan Humphrey of 326 Prospect street, of this city, widow of John H. Humphrey, will receive compensation for $12 weeks at $18 a week, medical expenses and $100 towards the funeral expenses, as the result of the death of her husband Sept. 5, 1923. On Sept. 4 Mr. Humphrey was killed by an electric shock from a transformer at the Waterford substation. At the time of his death he was employed by the Eastern Connecticut Power company. Mrs. Humphrey was found to be the sole dependent of the deceased foreman.

DR. ELLEN POTTER IN PENNSYLVANIA WELFARE WORK

An article in August McClure's magazine contains a picture of Dr. Ellen C. Potter, formerly of New London, now a successful physician in Philadelphia. She has lately been chosen by Gov. Pinchot to fill a very important and responsible position, that of commissioner of the department of public welfare in which she supervises the expenditure of $16 000,000 yearly. Dr. Potter is the first woman ever selected for a cabinet position on a governor's staff and evidently the position sought her instead of the contrary. Dr. Potter is a sister of Mrs. J. A. Elder of Garfield avenue, New London and a cousin of Mrs. S. S. Thresher of this city.

Dr. Potter was formerly a student in the Norwich Art School.

Alice Street Dahlias.

Burns, Insulenda, Kittie Dunlop, Mariposa, Shudow's Lavender and others.

NEW HAVEN RAILROAD IN FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company is doing its part in the observance of Fire Prevention Week, October 7-13, by placing posters in conspicuous places and distributing circulars to the employes urging them to aid in preventing fire losses.

The posters show a picture of firemen directing streams of water on a burning building, and in large letters are the words, "You Can Fght Fire Too—Before it Occurs!" Underneath this are the admonitions: "Watch your lighted matches and smoking materials; clean up rubbish; remove electrical hazards, eliminate wooden shingles, repair defective chimneys and flues; be careful with gasoline and other dangerous liquids." And finally there appears the slogan, "Fire Loss Is Permanent Waste—Do Your Part to Prevent It."

The circulars to the employes contain instructions as to the proper inspection and use of equipment, the cleaning up of rubbish, and give as the principal causes of fire losses, careless smoking, sparks and coals from locomotives, electric short circuits, overheated stoves and lamps, lanterns and torches carelessly handled, and rubbish piles.

STATE HEALTH BOARD URGES DIPHTHERIA PROTECTION

Vaccination against small pox has saved thousands of children and adults in Connecticut from dying of smallpox during the past century, says a statement issued Tuesday by the state department of health. The statement continues: The deaths from diphtheria in Connecticut, as elsewhere, can be greatly diminished by use of diphthgria toxin-antoxin. Connecticut is one of the states where citizens are anxious to save their children from communicable diseases. No child or adult need suffer from diphtheria today.

Protection by this means saves doctors' bills, saves the schooling of the child and incidentally protects the community by having a population in it which is immune to diphtheria. All physicians in the state can obtain toxin-antoxin from their local health officers who are supplied direct by the state department of health with this prophylactic against diphtheria.

Well Baby Conferences.

The state department of health held a well baby conference at Wauregan. The increasing demand for these conferences which are held in the smaller communities of the state indicates that great interest communities have in the well being of their children.

As a result of the children already examined and who have been referred to their family physician [illegible] of physical defects have been successfully treated, giving the child a better fute in life by improving his physical condition.

The fall meeting of the Connecticut Organization for Public Health Nursing will be held this year in Branford, Thursday, October 25th.

Will Speak in Lebanon.

Dr. A. B. Coates, secretary of the American Baptist Convention, will preach Sunday morning at the Lebanon Baptist church and address the rally day exercises of the Sunday school.

MUSICIANS-STAGE HANDS' DEMAND IN NEW LONDON NOT ADJUSTED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Oct. 4.—William Keyes, stationed at the United States Coast Guard Academy, and Miss Katherine Sandille, 21 Denison avenue, were married this afternoon at 12.30 o'clock at the Lutheran church, Tilley street, by Rev. Mr. Reinke, pastor. Thomas Ryan, of the Coast Guard Academy, was best man and Miss Leonora Fenn was maid of honor. Miss Florence Whitehead was bridesmaid and Little Leonora Whitehead was flower girl. Allen Cook of New York was usher.

The funeral of Mrs. Domenica Pietrzak, wife of Louis Pietrzak of 34 Cedar street, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at the Church of Our Lady of Perpetual Help, a mass of requiem being celebrated by Rev. Joseph Ranaszewzaki, pastor. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

As a result of the adverse comment by members of the city council and taxpayers on Sergeant Hick being paid for the use of the officer's automobile in doing rum-running work for State's Attorney Hull, City Manager William A. Holt has caused Sergeant Hick to perform his rum-running activities afoot, in the future, at least temporarily, Sergeant Hick and Patrolman Frank Philopena, New London's vice squad, will perform their sleuthing duties other than in the sergeant's car. City Manager Holt, after having received a second bill yesterday amounting to about $130 from Sergeant Hick, decided that it was time for an investigation and he later instructed Hick to refrain from using the automobile unless he did so at his own expense. City Manager Holt will confer with former City Manager James E. Barlow when the latter returns from a vacation and obtain from Mr. Barlow, just what, if anything, was promised Sergeant Hick in the way of added compensation. Hick draws a salary as a sergeant of $1850 per year and Patrolman Philopena is paid $1560, but in performing the work from the office of the state's attorney Hick has been drawing down an added salary of about $2000 a year.

Jack Scarpa went into the police court this morning confident in the belief that he could convince the judge that he had not violated the Volstead act concerning the sale of liquor and the keeping of a place where it was kept for sale. Scarpa operates a pool room at 31 Shaw street, an Italian section, where his patronage comes largely from people of that nationality. He has a considerable patronage from sailors and soldiers, too, and it has been alleged that the latter patrons have obtained beverages at the Scarpa place that made them intoxicated. They have come from Shaw street with "loads" on; they have been watched by policemen, and by federal agents, but no one has been able to declare that the men got their liquor or whatever intoxicated them at the Scarpa place. Sergeant Hick, Patrolman Philopena and Federal Officers Fitzpatrick and Avery have eyes on the Scarpa place with a view to bringing action against it as a place where the liquor law was violated. They went there and found a five-gallon cask with raisin wine in it and they discovered that Scarpa was selling the beverage. They also found that he admitted the fact and that he claimed he had a perfect right so to do. When the officers went there on the 28th of September Mr. Scarpa told them to search the place from top to bottom and suggested that they should not overlook his tenement on the top floor. There he said he made the wine and sold it in the pool room. He said that was his way of getting a living for his wife and four children. He gave the officers samples of his wine and asked that they should analyze it. They took it and applied the hygrometer to it, but it failed to disclose any alcohol. But that did not satisfy the prosecutor. He believed that a beverage that would intoxicate so he sent the wine to Hartford and had it analyzed by the Newlands Laboratory. There it was found that by volume the wine contained 7.91 per cent of alcohol and by weight 6.35 per cent., or normally about 8 per cent of alcohol. However, Scarpa insisted that he had the right to sell that he made the wine from raisins and water without any sugar whatever and with no other contents. He said he paid 15 cents a pound for the raisins and that the other ingredient was water. He sold the wine for 50 cents a quart and thus made a profit of 500 per cent, regardless of any allowance for his time. Scarpa said he never had a man drunk in his place of business, that he never sold them liquor to make them intoxicated and that when any intoxicated individual showed up at his place he ordered him to get out. He had sent his young son after police officers when he was annoyed by drunken people.

Scarpa, on his own admissions, was found guilty and was fined $150 and ordered to pay the costs of trial, which amounted to more than $65 in addition. The court suspended the jail term of ten days, also imposed. Scarpa was an astonished man when he realized the penalty he was paying. He said he had not made as much money as his trial cost him and that he would abandon that way of getting a living hereafter.

The city of New London started to collect over a million dollars of back taxes today when suit was brought by the city, through Allan C. It is alleged that Mrs. Slade and Bernstein are indebted to the city over $200 and when collection of the levy failed, the attachment was ordered, being made by Deputy Sheriff M. J. Martin.

Some of the delinquent taxpayers have not paid on levies that date as far back as 1879.

George and Earl Potter of Colchester, father and son, respectively, were before Justice of the Peace J. James Floyd in Waterford late yesterday afternoon, charged with assault and breach of the peace in attacking Henry W. Gardner of Waterford Sept. 18th. The elder Potter was acquitted but the son was found guilty and a fine of $5 and costs was imposed. The accused gave notice of appeal and furnished a bond of $25 for his appearance before the next term of the court of common pleas.

Chief of Police Garrett Farrell of Hartford has communicated with the New London police requesting that the local department be on the lookout for Mrs. Mary Fabrizio, wife of Frank Fabrizio, and her 10 year old son, Pasquale, who left Hartford several days ago, and who, it is believed, might come to New London.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Stoeckel has caused the operators' licenses of Harry W. Dyer and J. E. Orr of the submarine base and Albano Peters of 91 Truman street to be suspended.

Mrs. Michael F. Dwyer of 16 Rogers street was committed to the Norwich state hospital this evening, being in such condition that her confinement was deemed advisable for her own safety as well as that of others. Motorcycle Officer John Cavanaugh and Selectman Lawrence S. M. Cook accompanied the woman to the institution. Mrs. Dwyer was located in a rooming house on Main street by Officer Cavanaugh, having left her home a short time before.

At the annual meeting of the Harbor club last evening William Z. White was elected president; William H. Nott, treasurer; Henry W. MacMahan, secretary; Perry B. Kenyon, trustee for three years. The club voted to hold an outing at Groton Long Point Sunday, the 21st inst., and will occupy the cottage of John B. Bailey, one of the club members.

In the superior court here this morning the suit of Ezekiel Spitz, proprietor of the City Coal company, against Harry M. Shalett of the Shalett Cleaning and Dyeing company was tried before Judge Isaac Wolfe, the action being a suit to recover $504, which amount the plaintiff alleged was due him for money loaned defendant and coal supplied Shalett. Judge Wolfe reserved decision. Shalett admitted the coal bill was a legitimate debt, but claimed that the loans of $150, $100 and $65 were made to the Shalett Cleaning and Dyeing company and were not a personal obligation of defendant.

Renewing Complexions at Home by Absorption

If your complexion is marred by sallowness, muddiness, or such blemishes as liver spots, moth patches, pimples, freckles, it is useless to putter with powders and paints, jellies, creams and things, if you really want to get rid of the condition.

The rational way is to take off the complexion itself, with all its offensive marks. Just get an ounce of pure mercolized wax at the druggist's and use at night same as cold cream. Remove next morning with water and soap. The mercolized wax actually absorbs the affected scarf skin, so gradually no one guesses you are treating your face—unless it be by the result, which is truly wonderful. There's nothing like it for restoring a natural, healthy and beautiful complexion.

PROFIT-TAKING IN MARKET

New York, Oct. 4.—Stock prices today lost part of the gains registered in yesterday's brisk rally. Intermittent profit-taking tended to nullify the effect of further short covering in the leading stocks but, with few exceptions, the net losses in active issues were held to fractions.

There was a fair accumulation of over-night buying orders, the execution of which gave the market a strong tone at the start. Speculators for the advance, however, showed little disposition to follow up their temporary advantage with the result that realizing sales came into the market in large volume and were augmented in some of the speculative industrials by the offerings of bear traders thereafter, the usual leaders bobbed up nnd down with good support shown just before the high figures of yesterday.

Oil shares held relatively firm by the announcement of a further reduction in Crude Oil production for the week ending Sept. 22. The Pan-American issues were bid up a point or so but they yielded with the rest of the list in later trading. Standard Oil issues derived some strength from the unconfirmed report that Standard Oil of New York would soon be transferred from the curb to the "Big Board."

Special strength cropped out in the Public Utilities, Brooklyn Union Gas closing 2 points higher; Brooklyn Edison, 1, and Consolidated Gas, Columbia Gas, People's Gas and Philadelphia Company improving fractionally.

There were several conspicuous strong spots in the industrial list, mostly among the ordinary inactive issues. Gains of 2 to 7 points were registered by Davison Chemical, National Lead, Bayuk Bros., Kress, Liggett-Myers, Mathieson Alkali, Reynolds Tobacco preferred, Sears Roebuck preferred and Simmons Company.

Rails offered better resistance to selling pressure than the industrials. Jersey Central, which jumped 10 points above its previous sale, was one of the features. New York Central crossed 102 but dropped back later to 101 1-8, off 1-4. Nickel Plate advanced 1 1-4 but Big Four forfeited 2 points of its 3 1-2 point gain yesterday on an official denial that the stock was being acquired by the New York Central Railroad.

U. S. Cast Iron Pipe touched a new high for the year at 36 3-4 on unofficial reports that current earnings were running at $14 a share and that full dividends would be resumed on the preferred this year.

Call money held at 4 1-2 per cent. all day. A good demand exists for time money at 5 1-4 per cent. and some 30 and 60 day maturities are being arranged at this figure, but the bankers are holding out for 5 1-2 per cent. for the longer dates. The commercial paper market was steady, the bulk of the prime names commanding 5 1-4 per cent.

Demand sterling advanced a cent to $4.65 1-2 but the remittances of the continental allies showed few important changes, French francs being quoted around 5.87 cents, Belgian francs around 4.94 cents and Italian lire 4.46 1-2 cents.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—Wheat underwent a material decline in price today owing largely to gossip that a reaction was due after the sharp advance of late. Closing quotations were weak, 5-8 to 1 3-8c net lower, with December, $1.07 3-4 to $1.07 7-8 and May $1.11 1-2 to $1.11 5-8. Corn finished at a range varying from 1c lower to a like advance, oats 3-8@1 1-2 to 5-8c down, and provisions showing 10c to 25c drop.

Lessened activity in the wheat market accompanied the downturn of values, and in particular there was a notable absence of sustained buying. Much talk was heard that the recent advance in prices had been too rapid, and although the market rallied at times the demand seemed to come chiefly from shorts and to be of a transient character. As a result, the close was at nearly the lowest figures of the day, with sentiment more bearish than has been the case for more than a week past, and decidedly less attention being given to talk of government aid to wheat growers. In this connection, the trade appeared to settle down to a belief that facilitating of credit through co-operative associations was the one plan favored.

Some of the weakness of wheat in the late dealings today was ascribed to selling here on the part of spreaders who were credited with simultaneous buying in the northwest. Besides, flour trade was reported as fair active, with the larger mills working at 55 per cent. of capacity compared with 74 per cent. a year ago.

Although old corn was again in demand with sales above $1 new crop deliveries failed to develop straight, and the market averaged lower with wheat. Profit taking sales depressed oats.

Provisions reflected the weakness of grain and of cottonseed.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Oct. 4.—Despite a slight decrease in the volume of transactions as compared with the previous day, bond traders professed to note a distinctly better demand in today's trading, particularly for railroad mortgages, both speculative and investment issues.

There was a notable increase in the new bond offerings, the largest being the New York Central Lines $15,350,000 equipment trust certificates, and all of the offerings met with a hearty response. Considerable interest was aroused by the speech of Count Apponyi, former prime minister of Hungary at the state chamber of commerce, pleading for American support to a Hungarian loan along the line of the recent Austrian loan.

Active United States government bonds continued in supply, with the exception of the tax exempt 3 1-2s which improved and the fourth Libertys which held steady. Two large blocks of treasury 4 1-4s were thrown on the market dragging that issue down more than 1-2 a point.

Foreign issues continued irregular as did also industrial liens. Net changes, however, in both groups were small.

Approximately 151 million dollars in interest will be payable by the U. S. government on the fourth Liberty 4 1-4s per cent. Bonds of 1933-38 and the treasury 4 1-4s of 1947-52, on October 15, acording to announcement today by the federal reserve bank of New York. Of this amount it is estimated that $47,000,000 will go to coupon holders in this district.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Oct. 4.—Trading in today's curb market was on a reduced scale with realizing sales bringing about a moderate reaction in a number of the active issues, particularly in the Standard Oil group. Independent strength was shown, however, by several stocks which failed to participate in yesterday's spirited rally.

Standard Oils of Indiana, and Kentucky, Prairie Oil & Gas and Indiana Pipe each dropped about a point, Salt Creek Producers lost 1 1-8 and Standard Oil of New York nearly 2. Standard Oil of Nebraska jumped 15 points and Solar Refining 12 on odd lot transactions. Humble Oil advanced 2 points and Gulf of Pennsylvania and Cities Services, 1 each, these issues were helped by the report of another reduction in Crude production.

Narrow and irregular changes took place in the industrial division with principal activity centering in Reading Coal rights and Radio Corporation common, both of which yielded slightly.

Mining stocks were virtually neglected.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why ointments do not give you quick and lasting relief?

Why cutting and operations fail? and danger of an operation.

Do you know the cause of piles is internal?

That there is a stagnation of blood in the lower bowel?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal tablet remedy discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEMROID, now sold by Lee & Osgood and druggists generally, that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the internal cause, by freeing blood circulation in the lower bowel. This simple home treatment has an almost unbelievable record for sure, safe and lasting relief to thousands of pile sick sufferers, and saves the needless pain and expense of an operation. There is no reason why it should not do the same for you.

A. E. Fisher Comes Out With More Evidence

"Yes, sir, you can take my statement and publish it broadcast, for I have never had anything to do me so much good and make me feel so entirely different as four bottles of Tanlac," is the high tribute paid the famous treatment by A. E. Fisher, 30 Morgan St., Springfield, Mass.

"Gastritis, weak stomach and poor digestion had been the bane of my existence for a year or more. Disordered kidneys, awful pains in the back, headache and dizziness together with loss of sleep, made my burden of misery hard to bear.

"It seemed almost no time after I began taking Tanlac until I was a well man and have been feeling fine ever since. And my stomach is giving me about the first real comfort of my life. Such wonderful help is certainly something to be thankful for and I just can't say enough for Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills are Nature's own remedy for constipation. For sale everywhere.

FARMERS SEE POTATOES DUG FROM LARGEST FIELD IN THE COUNTY

With 75 growers from different parts of the county, state, and also from Rhode Island, a potato demonstration was held Thursday afternoon, beginning at 1.30 o'clock, at the farm of Shedd & Dawley, Preston Plains, on the Norwich and Westerly highway. The demonstration, which was held under the auspices of the New London county farm bureau, was carried out to show what strains of certified potato seed will do as compared with uncertified or ordinary home grown seed.

The Shedd & Dawley potato field is the largest in the county, as they have about 30 acres of potatoes. Due to the unusually dry weather the past summer, the yield this fall is not as large as the yield of last year, which is also true of many other potato fields in this section.

The group of interested growers watched the power digger at work. The power digger is something of a novelty in this end of the state. The potatoes were then gathered up and taken from the field for grading on a power grader. The power digger handled 100 bushels of potatoes an hour and covered one acre in three and a half hours, the total yield for the acre being 325 bushels. Four men can handle 400 bushels a day, this including digging, picking up and grading.

The yield at Shedd & Dawley's field follows:

Green Mountain Potatoes.

| Seed. | Firsts Bushels Per Acre. | Seconds. Bushels Per Acre. |
|---|---|---|
| Corinna | 333 | 11 |
| Dimmock | 287 | 15 |
| Windsor County, Vt. | 308 | 11 |
| Reeves | 334 | 11 |
| P. H. Reed | 305 | 11 |

Spaulding Rose, P. H. Reed, Me.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Spaulding Rose | 302 | 16 |

The difference between certified, uncertified and ordinary home grown seed is shown as follows:

Certified northern seed, 325 bushels per acre.

Uncertified northern seed, 175 bushels per acre.

Ordinary home grown seed, 130 bushels per acre.

A number of those present at the demonstration also visited the potato field of E. G. Pendleton, across the road from the Shedd & Dawley field. Although Mr. Pendleton's field is not as large as the Shedd & Dawley field the yield is somewhat better, probably due to a more moist soil. The yield on Mr. Pendleton's farm follows:

Green Mountain Potatoes.

| Seed. | Bushels Per Acre |
|---|---|
| Corinna | 434 |
| Dimmock | 379 |
| Corinna | 457 |

GIVES TESTIMONY TO ABILITY OF BRANDEGEE

The legal ability, industry and devotion to duty shown by Senator Frank B. Brandegee of New London are made the text of a special dispatch to the New York Morning Telegraph from E. B. Smith, a Washington correspondent. The dispatch follows:

"It has been the custom of the senate from time out of mind to fill committee vacancies by the rule of seniority, the members with the longest terms of service ascending in regular order. Under this rule Senator Brandegee of Connecticut, now serving his fourth term, would be made chairman of the powerful judiciary committee by reason of the fact that he stood third on the list and by the deaths of Senator Nelson of Minnesota, and Senator Dillingham of Vermont, after the adjournment of congress, he would automatically go to the head.

"Moreover, Mr. Brandegee, by reason of his legal ability, his industry and his devotion to duty, is fitted preeminently for the chairmanship. In fact he is regarded as a model senator and has the confidence of his colleagues to a marked degree. His influence on the judiciary committee has ever been exerted in behalf of sane legislation, and it seems that at this juncture, when men of his stamp are needed to help curb the rising tide of bolshevism, it would be the most fortunate thing for the nation that he should be given this high and important post which belongs to him as a matter of right.

"There does not seem any serious fear of his failure to succeed the lamented Nelson, but rumors are in the air that the radical contingent in the upper chamber may try to manuever him out of the honor by combining to overthrow the seniority rule in order to elevate some of their own. Conservative senators are advised of the scheme and will block it if they can."

Y. M. C. A. SEASON TO OPEN WITH RECEPTION

The Y. M. C. A. has sent out invitations for the opening reception of the season to be held next Monday evening at the Y. M. C. A. building from 8 to 10 o'clock. The programme arranged will include numbers by the Melody Land Trio, Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard, soprano soloist, Swahn's orchestra and there will be refreshments.

The committee in charge comprises Charles L. Stewart, Arthur F. Wyman and N. Eugene Smith.

The introduction of the gauntlet cuff for women has resulted in the sale of more made sets than bandings. The latter are still sold in quantity, however, as they are less expensive and more easily replaced. Another novelty of the season is the vogue for mocha-colored neckwear.

COLCHESTER MEN TRIED BERORE WATERFORD COURT

Charged with assault upon Henry W. Gardner of Waterford, and with breach of the peace on Sept. 18, Geo. Potter and Earl Potter, father and son of Colchester, were arraigned before Attorney J. Almes Lloyd, justice of the peace at Waterford, late Wednesday afternoon. At the conclusion of a hearing which lasted more than three hours, the court acquitted George Potter but Earl Potter was found guilty and a fine of $5 and costs was imposed. Justice Charles Brown of Colchester, who appeared as counsel for the defendants, entered an appeal and bonds were fixed at $25 for the appearance of Potter before the court of common pleas. Attorney Clayton B. Smith prosecuted.

Henry W. Gardner testified concerning the assault upon him, which was the outgrowth of his having induced Reuben Spencer to leave the Potter farm and go to work for him in Gilead. Spencer, who is a cousin of Mr. Gardner had been a town pauper of East Haddam but for the past 17 years has resided with the Potters. The latter had driven down to Waterford to re-claim Spencer and the evidence showed that Gardner had been punched and knocked to the ground during the transaction.

Attorney Smith put Gardner on the stand, who testified concerning the incidents leading up to and including the assault, and identified Earl Potter as the one who dropped him with a swing to the face. William Nichols of Waterford told the court that he was driving home from Gilead fair when he saw the rumpus in the road and observed Gardner fall when punched in the face. His son, William Carroll Nichols, testified to seeing Gardner fall, but couldn't tell who hit him.

Both defendants and James F. Spencer, their brother-in-law, who was with them, denied that there had been a fracas, or that Gardner had been knocked down. Several testified concerning incidents happening within that township. John Clark of Waterford furnished bonds for Potter, following entry of appeal.

CITY BIBLE CLASS EXPECTS MEN'S ATTENDANCE

The City Bible Class for Men which meets at noon each Sunday at the Central Baptist church is anticipating quite a general response to its general invitation to men of the city to join its sessions for a discussion which will be based upon study of a book entitled Christianity and Economic Problems. It is the idea in conducting this series of discussions for three months, beginning next Sunday, that the interchange of thoughts and opinions will be a step towards helping to make things better and easier for one's fellowmen, and the class has announced that it will welcome all who are interested to attend the sessions, whether church members or not.

RED CROSS GETS WORD OF JAPANESE RELIEF WORK

Norwich Red Cross headquarters, at 9 Washington street, of which Miss Edith Moran is secretary, received the following message from Washington Thursday, under date of Sept. 29th from Japan, interesting to all local contributors in the recent Red Cross drive:

Ambassador Wood, at Tokio today, notified the American Red Cross of the arrival at the seat of disaster of the first American Red Cross relief ships from this country, the cable stating that the cargoes reached Kobe just in time to be of great assistance in succoring refugees whose sufferings had been intensified by the typhoon reported by Mr. Wood yesterday.

The Tyndareus carried 200 tons of flour, 30 tons of condensed milk, 15 tons of canned salmon, 8 tons of hardtack, 5 tons of medicaments and one hundred tarpaulins.

The President Jackson's cargo consisted of 100 tons of flour, and 3,000 cases of evaporated milk. Mr. Wood also reported the arrival of S. S. Somme, with a cargo of U. S. Army and Navy medical supplies.

Greatly augmented cargoes of Red Cross supplies will begin shortly to arrive in Japan. Many vessels containing these cargoes are now at sea, converging on the principal ports in the disaster zone. One of the first of the big cargoes to arrive will be that carried on the Vega, due to reach a Japanese port tomorrow. The Vega carried 5,000 tons of American Red Cross supplies.

WOMEN SHOULD ACT QUICKLY

When a woman finds herself afflicted with backache, headaches, nervousness, dragging-down pains, pain in her side, irregularities and irritability, dark circles appear under her eyes and her complexion gets sallow, she may be sure the underlying cause is some ailment peculiar to her sex. Such women should act quickly and take the great American remedy for such conditions, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and they may be saved years of suffering. For generations this old-fashioned root and herb medicine has been restoring ailing women to health, and it may be relied upon with perfect confidence.

NEED TO RAISE $7,500 IN EASTERN DIVISION

With an attendance of 100 from the churches of New London and Windham counties, the semi-annual meeting of the Women's Congregational Home Missionary Union of Connecticut, Eastern Division, was held Wednesday at the Second church, New London, Mrs. Charles S. Thayer of Hartford, president, presiding at the opening session, held in the church auditorium at 10 a. m. Mrs. J. Beveridge Lee offered prayer, after which greetings to the visiting members were extended by Mrs. J. Romeyn Danforth, a vice president of the district union.

Mrs. Sylvia C. Norton of North Westchester, who is secretary of the Eastern district, told of the study books which were to be used this winter by the various missionary societies. Mrs. Fredus M. Case of Milford, chairman of the committee on methods, gave a most helpful and encouraging talk on the finance of the union. She suggested a great number of ways and means of raising monew during the coming year.

Mrs. William Karnock told what the home missionary unions had accomplished in the past six months and their plans for this coming year. She also outlined the present needs of each department. There are ten units in this district and she expressed the hope that there would be 20 by next fall.

Mrs. J. Fulton Ferguson, treasurer, reported that in the state drive for $82,600 for missionary work in this country, the goal in the eastern district had been placed at $10,000, of which $2,500 had already been contributed, leaving a quarter of a year in which to raise the alloted quota. This money is to be used in establishing and maintaining missionary stations and schools in the United States.

Others who addressed the meeting were Mrs. Jennie F. Pratt, the Congregational church missionary worker in the kindergarten department at Ellis Island, and Mrs. Eli Whitney of New Haven, who read a tribute to the late Mrs. Williston Walker of New Haven, whose death occurred about two weeks ago. Mrs. Walker served as president of the Eastern district of the Union for twelve years, resigning three or four years ago to accept the presidency of the National Federation.

Luncheon was served at 12.30 in the parish house of the church.

The afternoon session included an illustrated address by Rev. William D. Barnes upon The Hidden Arcadia of the West, an address upon The Significance of the Southwest by Dr. J. H. Heaid and an address by Dr. J. Romeyn Danforth upon The A. M. A. There was also a dramatization entitled At Ellis Island.

LIONS GIVE SHOWER TO FRANK RINELLA

The regular weekly meeting of the Lions Club was held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel with President George A. Finn presiding. The song leader was Lion J. H. Caron and the meeting opened with the singing of America. In honor of the return of Tailtwister Frank Rinella from his wedding trip the club gave him a tin shower. Lion John Barry made the presentation address as follows:

A short time ago our eminent tail twister strayed from his friendly jungle of friendly Lions and embarked like many another good man upon the sea of matrimony for a life's journey for better or worse. We certainly do not wish him the worst. Like the woman who after she marries the man stops looking wistfully at him and says just what she means we too look upon Frank and say just what we mean. We wished him good luck and Godspeed upon his journey. A journey started in a Velle, which showed that our Frank should be content to sell Velles and not to ride in them especially in starting out on the second greatest journey of his life. No doubt as some of you have remarked, he should have borrowed one of Bogue's Tin Lizzies, which they say can stand any amount of hardship and still be as good as new at the finish. As it was Frank started for the South and instead of returning at the stated time, strayed for two weeks in our southern jungles, beyond the kindly influence of this club and his many friends. We are his friends and do not criticise him but we do feel that he slighted us longer than a good Lion should. They used to say that they could not bury a man in Connecticut until some citizen spoke a good word for him. We have no trouble speaking good things about our friend Frank, we could speak good things concerning him for hours about his sterling qualities, but why give him a swell head and spoil him. We are like the eccentric old gentleman, who when he died left an inscription to be placed on his tombstone, which after it was cut on the marble read; "I expected this but not quite so soon." So we expected from Frank this step, but not quite so soon. They say a man is not married until his wife sends him out to match a piece of dress goods. I advise Frank in case of such difficulty to consult with the more experienced members of this club who no doubt will give him some valuable advice on such matters.

We feel that our friend Frank knew that we had a surprise for him upon his return and felt that he delayed his return to more fully enjoy the surprise. Behold upon yon table, Frank, the Lion's trioute, our welcome to you back to a friendly jungle as a brother among brothers, may your return bring you happiness and good will, and may the friendliness and cheer of your fellow lions, their good will and well wishes for your happiness and for your new home ring forever in your ears. My dear Frank, in behalf of the Lions club I present to you these gifts of the Lions, as their tokens of good will, friendship and long happiness and prosperity.

Tailtwister Rinella acknowledged the gifts with words of appreciation. A song number by the club quartette was followed by thte singing of the Star Spangled Banner, the meeting coming to a close with the salute to the flag. Louis Levy of New York city was a guest at the meeting.

Acid Stomach Is Dangerous

Sufferers From Indigestion or Stomach Trouble CUT THIS OUT

"Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food fermentation, etc., are caused nine times in ten by chronic acid stomach," says a well known authority.

Burning hydrochloric acid develops in the stomach at an alarming rate. The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis accompanied by dangerous stomach ulcers. Don't dose an acid stomach with pepsin or artificial digestents that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little hot water and Bisurated Magnesia and not only will the pain vanish but your meals will digest naturally. There is nothing better than Bisurated Magnesia to sweeten and settle an acid stomach. It soaks up the harmful excess acid much as a sponge or blotting paper might and your stomach acts and feels fine in just a few minutes. Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist in either powder or tablet form. It is safe, reliable, easy and pleasant to use, is not a laxative and is not at all expensive.

LLOYD GEORGE TALKS OF POST WAR CONDITIONS IN EUROPE

Declares That Europe is Now in a Desperate Condition, But That Europe Will Recover—Greatest Deterrent is That Now There is No Common Purpose and No Common Action Between the Powers of the World—Unity Ceased When War Ended—Was Guest of Honor of the United Press Associations at Luncheon in New York—Irish Sympathizers Created a Disturbance Outside Theatre.

New York, Oct. 5.—David Lloyd George, former prime minister of England, in an address today at a luncheon given in his honor by the United Press associations shortly after his arrival on American shores, said "I claim that the real foundation of the British empire today was George Washington." He taught us to become democratic."

"That lesson taught us in the eighteenth century," he added, "has been the salvation of the British empire." He said that Washington had taught the British government to be more lenient and he cited, as proof of this, the case of the Dominion of Canada.

He described in detail the situation in Europe when America entered the war, declaring the allies were fighting with greatest machines of all times, "then your boys came over" he said, "and we owe a debt of gratitude we never can repay." With your boys we worked together and saved the world."

Europe is now in a desperate condition, he said. Fifteen millions have been killed, twenty million maimed and injured and billions of dollars scattered. "But what would have ben the case if the allies had lost?" he asked. At least now there is hope, he said. A continent does not recover in a few days, but Europe will recover.

The only difference now and during the war, he said, is that we worked in unity then and we are not working in that fashion now.

"You are going your way," he said, "and we are going our way. Italy is going her way and France hers. It is not that you broke away, but that all of us broke away from each other. There is now no common purpose and no common action between the powers of the world. If we had the unity now like we did during the war, he said, "the terrible problems of the world would be solved in one-half or one-quarter of the time."

The former premier first saw American soil from the deck of the Mauretania early this morning. His passage from the great ocean liner in the police boat Macom to the Battery and thence by motor accompanied by a cavalcade was almost a triumphal procession, marred only by two minor street disturbances precipitated by Irish republican sympathizers.

To Canada and the United States, Mr. Lloyd George declared he brought as Britain's war-time premier a message of heartfelt thanks for their services in the great war.

He came, he said, with no political status, with no official credentials but as a private subject of the crown to express to Canada his personal thanks for the volunteer aid she unstintingly had offered the British empire in her time of need.

To the United States, he explained, he brought thanks for the army that had come like the sword of Excaliber in the Arthurian legend from out the waters of the Atlantic when the horizon of the allied powers was blackened with despair.

Mr. Lloyd George explained, however, that his visit to the United States—his first—was one of self instruction, that he wanted to say little and to study and learn much.

He will leave tomorrow morning for Montreal where he will begin a tour through he larger cities of Canada, terminating at Winnepeg where he will re-enter the United States in Minnesota, visiting afterward a number of middle western and eastern cities and ending his tour in New York in early November.

New York's welcome was slightly marred by two disorders, quickly controlled by specially assigned squads of police. Between the Batter and City Hall in lower Broadway in which scores of thousands of cheering admirers were massed, the police broke up a parade of middle aged Irishwomen carrying placards denouncing Great Britain and characterising Lloyd George as "murderer" of Irish women and children. A melee ensued in which banners were torn from the hands of the paraders and in which police and rioters exchanged fisticuffs. The Irishwomen were dispersed; one was arrested. Later, when the Lloyd George party was proceeding uptown through Lafayette street, another group of Irish sympathizers was dispersed.

Throughout the day, besieged again and again by newspapermen who asked his views on current European affairs, Mr. Lloyd George expressed his unwillingness to bring any message to America.

At a reception luncheon tendered him by the United Press which was attended by owners and representatives of many American and Canadian newspapers, he expressed the opinion that until the unity among nations, which prevailed during the great war, is regained, "the condition of the world will be a very troubled one."

The veteran statesman admitted that the situation in Europe was desperate but pointed out it would have been infinitely worse had the allies been defeated. H refused to admit that the treaty of Versailles was at the bottom of the economis and political difficulties of the world, adding that the "mischief" lay in the way the treaty was being carried out.

Mr. Lloyd George had dinner with a few friends in the hotel and then started for a theatre to see a popular musical "revue." As he left the dining room in the Waldorf Astoria crowds of men and women in evening dress congregated in "Peacock Alley," while sturdy bluecoats held them back as they attempted to press forward for a better look at the British statesman.

Another crowd had gathered in front of the hotel but the white haired former premier fooled them. He went out the rear entrance and motored up Broadway accompanied by a squad of motorcycle policemen. Here crowds along the way cheered as the car whirled along through the theatre crowds that packed the "Great White Way." Mr. Lloyd George received another ovation as he entered his box in the theatre.

During the intermission the audience by its continued applause forced the former prime minister to stand in his box, but he refused to say anything, on the ground that he "Didn't wish to compete with the actors."

He seemed to enjoy the performance immensely, laughing at all the jokes, in particular when one of the shortage of liquor in Montreal.

"Oh, that's all right," said the comedian, "they just shipped a carload from New York today."

Mr. Lloyd George half rose in his seat, turning to laugh with the rest of his party.

During the performance a disturbance arose outside the theatre when forty taxicabs loaded with Irish sympathizers drew up to the curb, their occupants, mostly women, shrieking at the police.

They threw to the street copies of a pamphlet entitled "Who is Lloyd George" and addressed to "Fellow Americans" in which the former premier was attacked as a "piratical propagandist."

GREAT BRITAIN TO AWAIT THE INITIATIVE OF FRANCE

London, Oct. 5.—(By the A. P.)—The Marquis of Curzon, British secretary for foreign affairs, in a long peech at the imperial conference today, revealed the British government's new policy growing out of Germany's abandonment of passive resistance.

This policy, briefly, is to await the initiative in France, who is now expected to make proposals for renewed allied cooperation. Lord Curzon assumed that the French government already had prepared in outline, if not in detail, for the anticipated surrender on the part of Germany.

Nothing was said by the foreign secretary about any reply to Germany's famous offer to submit to an international investigation commission the question of Germany's capacity to pay reparations, and apparently this part of the British policy, which Premier Baldwin in August told parliament could not wait indefinitely, is regarded as having been superceded by the situation in Germany.

Neither was any further light thrown on the now notorious communique which followed the meeting between Premier Baldwin and Premier Poincare. There also was no hint that the question of the legality of the occupation of the Ruhr now would be forced to the front. All Lord Curzon said on this subject was that British view of illegality was never concealed from the allies but "public use was not made of this view of our law officers until M. Poincare himself raised the legal issue by basing his case on the alleged illegality of the German action in resisting occupation."

Lord Curzon took a pessimistic view of future events in Germany and of the prospect of obtaining any substantial reparation from that country, but he insisted that Great Britain had not abandoned her just claims in this subject.

SISTERS CHARGED WITH IMPLICATION IN SMUGGLING

New York, Oct. 5—Two sisters were arrested in Brooklyn tonight in connection with the alleged smuggling of more than $60,000 in diamonds into the United States. The two, Miss Augusta Gross, 40, and Miss Anna Gross, 37, were indicted a few days ago on a charge of buying smuggled jewels from a steward and stewardess on the steamer George Washington. The sisters were released in $10,000 jbail each.

United States Attorney Oliver E. Nosser obtained a secret indictment of the women on October 1. Miss Anna Gross is said to be vice-president and general manager of the Stove Manufacturers' Repair Association and affiliated concerns having offices in New York. Nosser said the case might lead to 'exposure of one of the biggest diamond smuggling rings in the country."

BAY STATE PROVIDING FOR THE SUPPLY OF SOFT COAL

Boston, Oct. 5.—In order to protect the state against a possible shortage of bituminous coal next year the governor and council at a special meeting today voted to permit the state commission on administration and finance to exceed its appropriation by not more than $150,000 between now and December 1 for the purpose of extending the state's present coal contract to July 1 next. Homer Loring, head of the commission, told the council that a strike in the bituminous fields next April was likely.

LIQUOR SHIP WRECKED ON THE ISLAND OF MIQUELON

St. Pierre, Miquelon, Oct. 5.—The British schooner Nathalie Nelson, loaded with liquor and bound for Fayal, in the Azores, to St. Pierre for repairs, was wrecked early today off the south coast of this island in a thick fog. The crew were saved. The vessel and its cargo, valued at $80,000 and insured, were breaking up on shore, while a number of people aided in salvaging the cargo.

FORBIDDEN TO RAISE THE PRICE OF BEER IN BAVARIA

Munich, Bavaria, Oct. 5.—Dr. Von Kahr, the military dictator, has enjoined the Bavarian Brewers' Association from raising prices of beer. In a decree he prescribed severe punishments for brewers or innkeepers defying the Reichstag by confronting it with a restricted ministry of nonpartisan experts, which would have been invested with extraordinary authority by virtue of distatorial decree of President Ebert.

Predictions around the Reichstag accord the resurrected coalition a short parliamentary existence. It is declared the president makeshift solution will have inevitable sequel in the nature of a dictatorial regime, without which it is now commonly believed an effectual salvaging of Germany's chaotic economics is inconceivable.

While President Ebert acquiesced in today's patched-up truce, those who profess to know his views believe the head of the republic now is the only man qualified to assume a drastic initiative.

None of the industrial experts with whom Chancellor Stresemann conferred on the question of entering a restricted cabinet appeared attracted by the prospects of quarreling with the Reichstag and informed the chancellor that the elimination of parliament would be a pre-condition to any serious attempt at internal reconstruction.

STINNES IN CONFERENCE WITH GENERAL DEGOUTTE

Duesseldorf, Oct. 5.—(By the A. P.)—Hugo Stinnes, the German industrial magnate who arrived this morning, spent an hour at the jail this afternoon chatting with Baron Krupp Von Bohlen, head of the Krupp works, who is serving a sentence for obstructing the Franco-Belgian occupation authorities. Afterward in a French general staff car, he went to the French headquarters where he had a lengthy conference fith General DeGoutte.

Stinnes maintained his usual silence when asked about these meetings, and it was impossible to learn anything authoritative even from other sources as to what happened at either of the interviews.

Among those who were with Herr Stinnes at his conference with General DeGoutte were Peter Klookner, owner of the Victory Mine, which the French occupied and worked on their own account; Herr Voegler, Dortmund steel manufacturer; Herr Lubsen, a member of the Krupp firm, and Otto Von Felsen, in charge of the operation of the German state mines.

DEATH OF FORMER TURKISH GRAND VIZIER

Nice, France, Oct. 5.—(By the A. P.)—Damad Ferid Pasha, former Turkish grand vizier and foreign minister, is dead.

Damad Ferid Pasha resigned as grand vizier in October, 1920, after his regime had been attacked by Mustapha Kemal Pasha, nationalist leader, and his followers. Last year the nationalist government at Angora passed sentences of death upon the Turkish signatories of the Sevres treaty and the members of the cabinet of Damad Ferid, accusing them of being Anglophile.

COOLIDGE WOULD INCREASE PRESENT DUTY ON WHEAT

Washington, Oct. 5.—Instructions have been given the Federal Tariff commission by President Coolidge to consider the possibility of increasing the present duty on wheat above 30 cents as a means of relief for the western wheat growers. The chief executive, however, does not believe that any material benefit could thus be rendered to the farmers.

German Cabinet Crisis Dissolved

Chancellor Stresemann's Coalition Ministry Has Been Resuscitated.

Berlin, Oct. 5.—(By the A. P.)—A resuscitation of Chancellor Stresemann's defunct four party coalition tonight put an end to the parliamentry circles whose mysterious origin is only exceeded in novelty by its baffling solution, in that the four warring parties virtually agreed there had been no ground for disagreement three days ago and that a revamping of the coalition was the only way out of the dilemma.

Conservation of party prestige, emoluments of public office and concern over political patronage are declared to have played an unusual part in the inter-party truce, which was preceded by a day of bartering and jockeying for position, as the coalition leaders apparently preferred to risk their immediate political future by giving the four-party bloc another tryout to taking a chance of being eliminated from the nation's affairs through the advent of the dictatorship with which they were threatened.

Chancellor Stresemann succumbed to the partisan onslaught and completely jettisoned his earlier plan of

Coolidge Opposed to Cancelling Debts

But Feels That the United States Should Not Unduly Press Any of Its Debtors.

Washington, Oct. 5.—President Coolidge is unalterably opposed to the cancellation by the United States of the debt owed it by the European countries, it was said today at the White House.

The president feels that the United States should not unduly press any of its debts and should be liberal in the settlement it makes. An instance of the desire to be liberal is contained, in the president's opinion, in the settlement reached with Great Britain, which from a portion of its obligations. Debt questions are in the hands of the funding commission created by act of congress and the position of Mr. Coolidge is that the United States may only make settlement within the terms of that act.

The president's views on cancellation wer reiterated when his attention was called to reports of a statement that Walter W. Head, of Omaha, newly elected president of the American Bankers Association, had urged cancellation. Mr. Head later, however, denied the authenticity of the remarks attributed to him.

DON'T STUB YOUR TOE!

One dark night—so the story goes—a certain monarch placed a boulder in the center of the road. Thousands of his people, thereafter, severely stubbed their toes or troubled to walk around it. At length, one lusty youth, wiser than the rest, seized the stone and heaved it from his path. And where it had rested, he found a bag of gold.

Are you stubbing your toe? Are you overlooking any bag of gold? How about the advertising in The Bulletin? Do you read it consistently? It is a bag of gold to many.

In The Bulletin's columns you will find the advertisements of alert, progressive merchants and manufacturers who seek to tell you something they think you ought to know. The advertising is news about the very things that interest you most.

Thrifty men and women read advertising. To them it is a plain, every day business proposition. It tells them where they can buy exactly what they want at a price they can afford to pay.

Advertising pays them. They make it pay. It will pay you, too. Read it in The Bulletin.

Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 5.—Commander Weyerbacker, of the naval air station announced tonight that in all likelihood the proposed trip of the dirigible ZR-1 to the Brockton, Mass., fair tomorrow will not be made.

Strong westerly to northwesterly winds reaching a velocity up to 50 miles an hour at a height of 6,000 feet made it a three to one chance, the commander stated, that the flight would be postponed. In the event of a postponement he added, the New England trip would likely be abandoned.

CONVICTS STILL LODGED IN PENITENTIARY MESS HALL

A Council Has Been Held to Devise a More Effective Plan of Attack on the Desperadoes—Use of Dynamite Again Under Consideration—Besieging Forces Have Been Reinforced by Thirty Additional National Guardsmen—One Man Seen Moving About in the Building—A Censorship Has Been Established by the Penitentiary Authorities.

Eddyville, Ky., Oct. 5.—(By the A. P.)—Prison authorities, three members of the state board of charities and corrections and National Guard officer met early tonight for a council of war at which a more comprehensive campaign for dislodging three convict murderers from the bullet scarred mess hall of the Western Kentucky State Penitentiary, a mile from here was to be planned.

It was indicated late today that use of dynamite against the barricaded desperadoes, slayers of three prison guards, once considered and then abandoned, again was engaging the attention of those directing the attack.

Meanwhile Monte Walters, Lawrence Griffith and Harry Ferland, members of the gunman trio which has held the mess hall since early Wednesday morning, were hidden by the solid brick walls of their fortress. Rifles and machine guns again today sent a hail of steel-jacketed bullets ripping into the barricaded building, the third withering barrage directed against the gunmen's covert since the siege was begun.

Belief was held in some quarters that two of the gunmen have been killed or desperately wounded, but definite proof of this is lacking. No shots had been fired by the defenders since last night, but National Guard officers surveying the mess hall through field glasses today said they saw at least one man moving about in the building. What was believed to have been the recumbent forms of two other men were seen on the floor.

Thirty National Guardsmen arrived today as reinforcements.

CENSORSHIP ESTABLISHED BY PRISON AUTHORITIES

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 5.—A censorship has been established by authorities at the Western state penitentiary, one mile from Eddyville, where three convict murderers have been under siege for three days, according to a report received here tonight.

PENITENTIARY PLACED UNDER MILITARY RULE

Eddyville, Ky., Oct. 5.—(By the A. P.)—Military rule was established at the western state penitentiary early tonight, a few minutes after the arrival at the penitentiary of three members of the state board of charities and corrections, headed by E. S. Tachau, of Louisville, chairman.

The two other members of the board who accompanied chairman Tachau were Judge Alex. P. Humphrey of Louisville, and Henry P. Barret of Hegderson.

A small army of newspaper correspondents learned of the declaration of military rule from Sergeant Hawkins of the National Guard. Sergeant Hawkins strode into the various rooms of the administration building and asked that all employes of the penitentiary stand up. When employes who happened to be present had complied with the order, he said:

"All who are not employed leave the building immediately."

This meant it soon was learned, to leave the penitentiary as well, and within a few minutes every newspaper man was out. The correspondents retreated to a hotel here, where they immediately called an indignation meeting to protest against the ejection.

WEBB'S VERSION OF EVENTS PRECEDING WIFE'S DEATH

New York, Oct. 5.—Charles H. Webb today filled in a pause in the grand jury investigation of the alleged hysterious death of his wife, at the Westchester-Biltmore country club about 10 days ago.

With the grand jury not meeting again until Monday to determine whether the society woman was poisoned, Webb met reporters twice today and gave his version of events preceding her death.

Dr. William J. Meyer who attended her and refused to issue a death certificate, previously had painted a picture of Webb as a callous husband, unheeding of his wife's suffering and careless as the end approached.

Webb sketched a far different picture—of a husband so overcome at the sight of his wife the night before she died that he thought he could not bear to be at her side when the end came, and proposed instead going into an adjacent room to pray.

In his first interview, Webb denied that he had told his wife she had only 30 days to live and had better sign a will.

Referring to the fact that Dr. Meyer, describing yesterday Mrs. Webb's end, had referred to her as Gertie, Webb, who described himself as a veteran of the Spanish-American war, asserted the physician would not have dared address her so familiarly when she was alive.

Webb said he had met Meyer for the first time on a picnic about six months ago. Asked if he had a dispute with Meyer at that time, Webb replied:

"Why, we had bottles of wine together."

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 5.—(By the A. P.)—A call for a special session of both houses of the Oklahoma legislature October 17 to investigate "the commission of impeachable offenses by the officers of the state subject to impeachment" was issued here tonight by W. D. McBee, representative from Stephens county.

The call was made under the alleged authority of a constitutional amendment approved at the polls Tuesday. The summons sets out that it was issued upon "written request signed by a majority of the members of the house of representatives asking that the legislature be convened pursuant to the mandate of the people."

OBITUARY

Rev. Dr. Francis Goodwin.

Hartford, Oct. 5.—The Rev. Dr. Francis Goodwin, one of the most beloved and influential of the descendants of Hartford's earliest families and for a generation one of the first citizens of Hartford, died at an early hour this morning at his Woodland street home, only a few days after the observance of his 84th birthday. Dr. Goodwin was taken ill a few days ago with a cold which developed into bronchitis. Death came while he slept.

For the past three years he had been gradually withdrawing from many of the connections that took more of his time and energy than he could afford in his declining years, but he maintained his membership in the boards of trustees of Trinity College, the Berkeley School of Divinity at Middletown and Keney Park and in the directorate of the Aetna (Fire) Insurance Company. He devoted much valuable service to the work of the Hartford Park and Street Commissions, iw which until a few years ago he was a member. Dr. Goodwin was a cousin of J. P. Morgan.

John Knowles Hunt.

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 5.—John Knowle Hunt, president of the John K. Hunt Peper Box company, the N. B. Shant Button company and the Leach Shoe company and known as "the father of the paper box industry, died here today, aged 73 years.

FIVE MEN IN AUTO IN FUNERAL CORTEGE KILLED

Detroit, Oct. 5.—Five men were killed this afternoon when the last automobile in a funeral procession was struck by an interurban car on Gration Road, north of here. The funeral procession was crossing the tracks into the cemetery when the interurban crashed into the machine which had become detached from the other automobiles in the cortege.

The dead:

Aaron Shipman, 47, clothier; Rabol Blumenthal; Ben Levin, 34; Max Firsht, 42, and an unidentified man taken to morgue at Mount Clemens.

Shipman, who was driving the automobile, did not notice the rapid approach of the interurban car in his eagerness to catch up with the procession. The car struck the automobile squarely in the center, throwing all except the unidentified man from the machine. The quartet was ground under the wheels of the interurban.

PROCEEDING AGAINST PHILADELPHIA SALOONS

Philadelphia, Oct. 5.—At least one of the 1,300 or more saloons in Philadelphia has obeyed the order of Governor Pinchot and the federal department of justice to close their doors. The proprietor of this place arraigned today with seventeen others in federal court on charges of prohibition violations, told the court that he had complied with the closing order and was let off with a fine of $400. Fines of the others aggregated more than $6,00.

Most of the other places were open as usual and doing a rushing business.

LOST HIS LIFE IN VAIN EFFORT TO SAVE ANOTHER

Grove City, Pa., Oct. 5.—Paul McCrane, of Syracuse, N. Y., a member of a railroad repair crew, gave his life later today in a futile effort to drag Joe Vecosta, of Erie, a fellow workman, from the tracks of the Bessemer railroad, before a northbound passenger train sped by. McCrane had pushed Vecosta to the outer rail when both were caught by the engine and killed.

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office

The adjourned annual town meeting will be held this (Saturday) afternoon in the town hall. In past years only a handful of voters have attended the annual meeting and an effort is being made to bring out the voters in large numbers. Following are the appropriations which will be voted on: $949 for the Welfare Bureau, $950 for St. Joseph's hospital, $100 for Windham Center library, $5,000 for the purpose of obtaining a sufficient water supply, to complete the grading of the grounds and furnishings for the new grammar school at Windham Center; to determine whether the town will make an appropriation for the construction of state aid roads, in accordance with an act of the general assembly approved June 5, 1923 in order that the $2,000 allotment may be obtained for the next two-year period.

It would be a very desirable opportunity for the town to vote in favor of the state aid road proposition as the town only has to pay one-quarter of the expense and in that way would be benefited by a considerable return.

Another vote to be taken at the annual meeting is to determine whether or not the town will authorize the selectmen to sell the old school building and land at Windham Center, and to determine whether the town will sell a small tract of land on which the new school in Windham Center now stands for the purpose of straightening the boundary lines between the school property and that of abutting property owners.

The various town officers will present their annual reports at this meeting and a vote will be taken to authorize the selectmen and treasurer to borrow on specific accounts or otherwise from time to time, such amounts of money as may be necessary to meet the current expenses of the year. The budget for the year will be acted upon, which amounts to $274,600. Of this amount $155,000 or 56 per cent. of the total is asked for the support of the public schools.

Another bootleg case was tried in the police court Friday morning when Louis Spink and his wife, Caroline Spink, of 44 Ives street were presented. Spink was charged with keeping liquor with intent to sell and his wife was charged with actual sale. A half pint of whiskey purchased recently at the Spink home was used as an exhibit. The defendants' attorney entered a demurrer which was overruled by Judge Frank H. Foss. Prosecuting Attorney Harvey was of the opinion that the couple did not deserve a jail sentence as this was their first case for violation of the liquor law. It was shown that Mrs. Spink was willing to take the entire blame and that her husband was agreeable to this plan, but the court considered a very poor attitude for the husband to take, as he should be responsible for what occurs in his home. Mrs. Spink was fined $200 and costs amounting to $206.66 and Spink was given a ten day suspended jail sentence, with costs of $6.66.

What is thought to be a stolen car was partially destroyed by fire Friday forenoon, about 11 o'clock, in a lot off the North Windham road, near Campbell's Sunset Farm. The machine is a Buick roadster and was seen coming down the road with the top all ablaze. The driver stopped in the lot and got out and succeeded in extinguishing the fire. He then left the premises and the machine again started fire and was saved from being totally destroyed by men in the employ of the state highway. The car bore Connecticut registry numbers 139-946 registered under the name of Thomas Geilkowski of 47 Woodbridge street, Hartford. Rhode Island and Massachusetts registrations were also found in the machine. Captain Thomas Grady of the local police department called the Hartford authorities in the afternoon and asked them to locate the owner of the roadster.

"Try and get it," says Walter Snow, of Mansfield Depot, who attempted to collect damages in the Mansfield town court Thursday from James Miller, of the Miller Construction company, charging that the defendant had caused the tearing down of fences on his land during the past week, while construction work was being done on the state highway in Mansfield Depot. The blame could not be placed on Miller as the men responsible were four workers of the construction gang whose identity could not be learned. The plaintiff argued that Miller was in charge of the men, therefore responsible for their actions. The evidence was not strong enough to convince Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews and he acquitted Miller.

A. E. Welch, son of Josephine Welch, of Willimantic, and Miss Mildred Hanley of East Hartford, were married in St. Mary's church, East Hartford, Thursday morning at nine o'clock by Rev. D. F. Baker, the pastor. They were attended by Miss Catherine Cushman of Westerly and C. V. Shea of Willimantic.

Gustaf Alexapulcos of 84 Pleasant street, Thompsonville, agreed to pay five dollars for damage caused to a fence, when he cracked his Ford car into it Friday morning at 45 Main street this city. The Thompsonville man was driving down toward the new bridge which is in the course of construction over the Natchaug river on lower Main street and finding that the road was closed, he started to back around and in doing so struck the fence. The owner came rushing out and in the opinion of Alexapulcos, his claim for damages was exhorbitant. The matter was taken up with Captain Grady of the local police and after an investigation the dispute was settled with a five dollar bill.

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Huntington Hinckley were held Friday afternoon at two o'clock at the home of her sister, Mrs. Mary L. Turner, 175 North street. Rev. Harry S. McCready read the service. Burial was in Willimantic cemetery. The bearers were O. B. Robinson, Nelson A. Daniels, Thomas Little and Herbert T. Clark. Avery and Van Zandt were in charge of the arrangements.

Windham High's gridiron battlers will go to New London today (Saturday) under the leadership of Coach T. A. Callahan to engage in a tussle with the New London Vocational School boys. Windham's lineup will comprise Prater, Barten, Henberg, Simonds, Sawtell, Isreal and Storrs. T. Meikle, H. Heller and J. Nichol will play the back positions, with Wilkinson as fullback and "Dad" Burr will call the signals.

J. Menelli, of 371 Orchard street, New Haven, was found guilty on a charge of reckless driving and fined $25 and costs in the New Haven police court. Menelli gave notice of an appeal to the superior court. He was the driver of the automobile which ran down John Arnold of this city, fracturing the latter's leg, while Company S, 169th Infantry, Connecticut National Guard was in Camp at East Haven. Privates Benjamin Rosen, Homer Brindamour and Joan Arnold appeared as witnesses against the accused.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Smith and son, Mrs. E. P. Hewlett and daughter, Ada, and Frank Snow, motored to Manchester Friday to attend the centennial celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Mustard were among those visiting Manchester Friday.

The police were notified by telephone Friday forenoon to be on the lookout for a Ford automobile bearing Connecticut registry numbers 23-919 the property of Edward C. Smith of New London. The car was stolen from his garage Thursday night.

The regular meeting of Puritan Temple, No. 2, Pythian Sisters was held Friday evening. The first whist of the season was played, after the business session.

A party of loyal young men started out early in the evening recently to go to Hartford and attend a theatrical production. Just outside of the city line they had a blow-out. During the remainder of the trip six more punctures and blowouts followed. They arrived in Hartford at 1.30 o'clock just in time to watch the streets being washed. After enjoying hot coffee the party started the return trip and it was not long before they were patching up another tire. They got back in Willimantic at 4.30 o'clock, with the machine running on three flat tires.

A delegation from A. C. Tyler camp, No. 8, Spanish War Veterans, of Willimantic, John J. Hoey, Samuel Mullen, J. B. Gingrass and Arthur W. Sweet took part in the centennial parade in Manchester Friday afternoon. The local veterans were the guests of the department commander. Willimantic was well represented in Manchester and five local police officers, headed by Chief Allan MacArthur went to assist Chief Gordon and his men.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

A Duck as a Ferryboat.

Now, as soon as the big black bear had caught the lollypop which Blue Cap threw out of the window of his tree-house in the last story, he gave a nice sort of a growl and ran off through the forest singing:

"We're listening for a telegram."

"Oh, I've got a nice pink lollypop
To give to my little black cub.
Oh, won't he be glad when he sees his Dad
Rub a dub, dub, dub, dub!"

"Guess I'll be going," said Little Jack Rabbit. "Thank you very much, Mr. Blue Cap!"

"Oh, don't mention it," answered the little man of the forest, opening the door of his big tree house. "Stop in the next time you pass this way."

Well, after a mile and maybe a smile, the bunny boy came to a lake in which a green and black duck was searching for minnows. First she stood on her head and reached way down in the water and then she almost stood on her tail to let the little fish slide down her throat.

"Hello, Mrs. Duck," shouted Little Jack Rabbit, "Won't you give me a lift?"

And wasn't it very nice? Mrs. Duck was obliging and gave him two little silver fish.

"What shall I give you?" she asked for he didn't have anything with him except a bright, new carrot coat.

"That will be enough," said Mrs. Duck. "It's really just what I want, for my little duckling has a new savings bank."

"Get on my back and I'll take you across,
I'm as good as a ferryboat or a horse."

And in five hundred short seconds Little Jack Rabbit was on the other side of the lake and off once more upon his journey of adventure.

Pretty soon, not so very long, he saw three tiny sparrows on a telegraph pole.

"We're listening for a telegram
From Mr. Weather Man.
We wish to know how soon 'twill snow;
Please tell us if you can."

"Goodness me," said the bunny boy, "I'm sure I don't know. I never studied astronomy."

At this the little sparrows twittered for they thought the stars had nothing to do with the weather.

Just then, all of a sudden, the telegraph wires began to buzz.

"Here comes the telegram," cried one of the little sparrows. But, oh dear me! It wasn't from Mr. Weather Man at all. It was from the Queen of Hearts.

"The Queen of Hearts
Wants raspberry tarts;
Mr. Baker Man,
Send them fast as you can."

And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

FUNGI.

What fantasies first a roving glance in the woods
In fungi! Variety so different, standing out
Like notes or colors in a higher key
Of vashoo, fungo, pro mosso fond, on trunks
Of withered trees, chalk-white against the black—
Cool wonders what strange candles may be set
By what strange hands to burn there after dark
With slim phosphorescence. Then there are clumps
Of miniature green, yellow, purple, red,
Or brown pagodas clustered everywhere
About the mouldy roots, like pleasure parks
For Chinese fairies; and the waxen sheaves
Of Indian pipes, so delicately pale.
And yet they live on death. The whole wood lives
On death, but after death has been transformed
Through a wide kismet had been purged with fire,
Cleansed with cool rain and purified with wind,
Then stored in earth to mellow for new life;
While the fungi—but let them have their due—
Their haunting colors make the deep star-moss
Look tenderer still, and all the flowers more chaste.
What hints as well the wonder of the big Essential things, the primal forest art,
Too quiet else to charm a careless eye!
—Charles Wharton Stork, in Yale Review.

THREE GIRLS.

Three schoolgirls pass this way each day;
Two of them go in the flattery way
Of girls, with all that girlhood buys;
But one goes with a dream in her eyes.

Two of them have the eyes of girls
Whose hair is learning scorn of curls
But the eyes of one are like wide doors
Opening out on misted shores.

And they will go as they do today
On to the end of life's short way;
Two will have what living buys,
And one will have the dream in her eyes.

Two will die as many must,
And fifty dust will welcome dust;
But dust has nothing to do with one:
She dies as soon as her dream is done.
—Hazel Hall, in Century Magazine.

By agreement the bride and bridegroom separated after the ceremony, never to see each other again. The British home office says that several marriages of this kind have taken place.

Dummy donkeys with sticky legs are proposed for experiments in destroying large numbers of tsetse flies, which carry the germs of the African sleeping sickness, in a publication of the department of agriculture of South Africa. R. H. Harris found that these dangerous insects were attracted to the legs of his donkey. He built a dummy animal with wooden legs covered with old bags, but the flies apparently did not discriminate between the natural and artificial limbs. He suggests construction of many such dummies covered with sticky materials to destroy the insects by the wholesale.

DANIELSON

For the second time in their experience while residents on Wood's Hill farm in the town of Brooklyn across the river from Goodyear, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Kimball had guests drop in from the sky and spend a night with them. This time the visitors were Fred Smith, of Ipswich, Mass., and Roy Keeley, of Boston, and they arrived, unannounced, in their aeroplane, early Thursday evening when their supply of gasoline became so reduced that they did not dare proceed further. They remained at the Kimball home over night and after waiting for the high wind to abate somewhat, got away for Worcester about 10.30 Friday morning.

The Kimball farm is on high ground and some of its broad fields stretch over many acres and from the air present the prospect of a safe landing place for aviators. It caught the eye of Mr. Smith as he was guiding the plane as evening was coming on, Thursday, and he circled down gracefully to an easy landing after inspecting other prospective landing places near the Fayette Wright farm, in Pomfret, and nearer Goodyear and mentally rejecting them.

Mr. Smith is an official of the Ipswich mills, engaged in the manufacture of hosiery, and the emblem on the aeroplane was a stocking.

It was five years ago the coming Christmas day that an aeroplane first landed on the Kimball farm, and it happened that it alighted almost on the identical spot where the Smith machine landed, Thursday evening.

There was no joy for Eddie John of Willimantic in the sentence that Judge W. Fenner Woodward imposed upon him for violation of the motor vehicle laws, at a session of the town court Friday afternoon. John was sentenced, as a second time offender, to serve six months in jail for driving a motor car while under the influence of liquor; to pay a fine of $100 for operating a motor vehicle while his license to do so was suspended and to pay an additional fine of $50, and costs, for attempting to avoid responsibility, after his car had figured in an accident here. John was represented by Attorneys W. A. King and Harry S. Gaucher, both of Willimantic, and Attorney Arthur G. Bill prosecuted for the state. John's attorneys demurred to the complaint, but the demurrer was overruled and John, in due course, was found guilty. An appeal to the superior court was taken and John was released under bonds of $500.

John was driver of a machine that crashed with a car owned by Albert Lynch of Springfield at the junction of Broad and Reynolds streets, a week ago this forenoon. He abandoned his car and disappeared after the accident and was not located for nearly an hour afterwards. State Officer Merrill Keith finally placing him under arrest. Search of John's car immediately after the accident brought to light two bottles containing some sort of intoxicant. John's license was suspended some time ago after he had been convicted of driving while under the influence of liquor. Saturday's affair made the situation particularly difficult for him, as he had no right at all to be operating a car in Connecticut, not to mention his doing so while he was under the influence of liquor.

After a visit here with W. Clarence Bacon, Will Stone is en route to New Orleans to resume his duties as captain of the Janiew, a 10,000 ton vessel operated by the United States shipping board. Mr. Stone formerly was a resident of Danielson, on Academy street, but for years has followed the sea. His first marine experience was gained on tug boats in the coastwise service between Providence and southern states' ports. His advance was steady and eventually he obtained his master's license. During the war he was engaged in the perilous undertaking of guiding munition-laden vessels from American ports through the submarine infested area to French ports, and came through this hazardous duty without untoward incident.

He has made many long voyages since the war and is now commanding one of the best of the shipping board's freighters. This boat is carrying nitrates and other supplies from New Orleans to Germany, with stops at British ports. Mr. Stone said upon leaving here that he did not expect a chance to visit Danielson again for about two years.

It was stated Friday that Albert Cardinal, injured Friday evening of last week, in the collapse of bleachers in the town hall and for a few days a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, has a fractured thigh and that his hip and knee are dislocated. This announcement was made after Cardinal had been examined at his home here by a specialist called in from Pawtucket. It is expected that Cardinal will be confined to his home for several weeks. He was the worst hurt of all those who went down in the crash.

Charles S. Francis, Charles C. Rapp, C. A. Hamilton, Michael Head, Jr., W. Clarence Bacon, Carl Anderson and Frederick E. Kies were among the members of W. H. Hamilton Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, who motored to Manchester Friday to participate in the parade of Spanish War Veterans, one of the features of the 100th anniversary celebration there this week. Much planning and figuring of how to see the great Zeppelin Z-R 1 when she flies through southern New England today was being done here Friday, and the general conclusion arrived at is that the best chance of getting a glimpse of the monarch of the air lies in motoring down to the vicinity of Providence this morning and waiting there until the great silvered bird comes gliding out of the south. It was estimated that if the Z-R-1 leaves Lakehurst on schedule time at 7 a. m., this morning she should be over Providence some time between 10 o'clock and noon.

PUTNAM

Ernest Harper, 26, of Natick, R. I., died Friday morning at Day Kimball hospital as the result of injuries sustained last Sunday morning while riding a motorcycle at high speed along the state highway between Sterling and Moosup, the machine crashing head-on into an automobile driven by Bert Constantine of Moosup.

In an interview with Coroner Arthur G. Bill at the hospital during the present week Harper admitted that he was riding at high speed when the accident occurred. He was thrown nearly 20 feet in the air and came down on the top of the car, falling from there to the hood and from the hood to the ground.

The four-cylinder Ace that Harper was riding was practically brand new, he having only recently purchased it at a cost of about $500. It was demolished. Coroner Bill learned that Harper rounded the turn just before he struck the Constantine machine on the inside, and, for him, the wrong side of the highway. The radiator of the car was injured in the crash.

The infidelity of Ethel May Murdock and the depths to which she had fallen before her disappearance from this territory were revealed in the superior court here Friday morning during the course of the suit of her husband, John Murdock, of Pomfret, for divorce, which was granted on the ground of adultery with Walter E. Brown, who also disappeared and is now of parts unknown.

Testimony given by State Officer A. W. Williams of the Danielson barracks and State Officer Clifford Gorgas, commander of the Groton barracks, and formerly of Danielson, was that they had arrested the couple while they were asleep in a barn at the Brown place in Pomfret shortly after midnight of Sept. 15-16 last year. Mrs. Murdock and Brown were found lying on a blanket on the haymow, the woman almost entirely disrobed, the man partly so. Mrs. Murdock and Brown were brought to Putnam and locked up at the police station for the night. Later they were bound over to the superior court and were released under bonds, which bonds they have forfeited by disappearing from these parts, and their whereabouts are unknown.

Mrs. Murdock is the mother of seven children. She is many years the junior of Mr. Murdock, with whom she was united in marriage in December, 1906. Mr. Murdock testified that their home life had been happy up to about two years prior to her becoming involved with Brown. The gossip of neighbors relative to his wife's doings first directed his attention to the possibility that she might be unfaithful, as was definitely established by later investigations. One of these investigations was made by representatives of a Providence detective agency and information obtained by this agency eventually led to the state police arresting Mrs. Murdock and Brown in the barn.

The court awarded the custody of the children to Mr. Murdock, who is engaged in business in Webster, where he has been a contractor for years.

A divorce also was granted to Mrs. Lulu M. Stainthorpe of Central Village from Harry W. Stainthorpe, now of Leominster, Mass., on the ground of desertion. The couple married in the town of Plainfield July 24, 1907, and lived there, at Central Village and Moosup up to the time that Stainthorpe left, Aug. 11, 1919. The other woman in the case was Emma Dyer, who, it was testified by Edward Tatro of Slatersville, R. I., a witness for Mrs. Stainthorpe, has been living at Leominster as Stainthorpe's housekeeper. Mrs. Stainthorpe was allowed to change her name to Lulu Hutchins.

The third divorce of the day was granted Willie H. Bowen of Danielson from Jennie E. Bowen, now resident in Massuchsetts. The ground was desertion. The couple married at Hampton June 27, 1885, and desertion occurred March 18, 1907. Five children were born of the union, four of them living.

Mrs. Bowen's ambition to have her husband deed his property to her was set forth in court by the plaintiff as the underlying cause leading up to family unpleasantness that ended when Mrs. Bowen carried out her oft-repeated threat to leave and take the children with her. Mr. Bowen said he used his utmost endeavors to keep the family intact and even offered to deed a house to his wife if she would give him good and sufficient reason why he should do so, but this she declined to do.

During the course of Friday morning's session in the superior court a motion for counsel fee and alimony pendente lite was argued in the case of Nellie Rood of Worcester vs. her husband, Alfred W. Rood, of Windham Center. Both principals were in court and Rood testified that he has a life interest in a farm in Windham, where he lives. This farm is operated by his brother, Horace, who boards Alfred, a cripple, pays the taxes, the interest on the mortgages and other expenses incident to the upkeep of the place. Mr. Rood testified that his only income is $4 a week, which his brother pays him for driving children to and from school. Mrs. Rood said she is now working in Worcester for $12 a week, all of which goes for the support of herself and infant, which is being cared for by her mother at a charge of $5 per week. Judge Marvin said he would take the matter under consideration.

Albert Kruppowitz of Ashford came into the superior court here Friday morning when the criminal court was reopened after its most recent recess and pleaded not guilty on two counts charging that he has violated the liquor laws. He declined to follow in the footsteps of those who have pleaded guilty in similar cases in this county during the past month and take a jail sentence, so will go to trial in January, and elected to have his case tried by a jury.

Kruppowit is in court to face a third offense charge of violating the liquor laws. He formerly lived in Stafford Springs and has been in more or less difficulty with the courts over liquor law violations during the past year. He furnished bonds for his appearance at the January term.

Court adjourned until next Tuesday morning.

Withdrawing an appeal which he took last Monday in the city court when found guilty of keeping with intent to sell, George Annas of a store in Front street went to jail Friday to serve the ten day sentence imposed upon him by Judge M. H. Geissler and paid his fine of $200. Annas was arrested Saturday night last when his place was visited by Officer John Ryan and Sergeant Laird and a bottle containing an intoxicant and a whiskey glass were found at the glass-washing stand under the soda fountain in the store. The proprietor of the store raided only recently completed a sentence of fifteen days for violation of the liquor laws.

A committee of Anselm Mayotte post, American Legion, has been in conference with State Highway Commissioner John Macdonald relative to naming the new concrete bridge to be constructed across Little river near this city in honor of some local service man who fell in action during the World war. The proposal includes a plan to place a bronze memorial tablet on the bridge, which may be named for Harry Clinton Hopkins, son of E. R. Hopkins of School street. The bridge will be finished some time next spring and if the suggestion of the American Legion is adopted the dedication exercises likely will be held Memorial day.

Mayo Victor Chapdelaine issued a statement Friday urging the people of this city to co-operate next Thursday in the observance of Fire Prevention day. "Putnam contributed its share to the fire losses of the country during the past year," the statement says, "and I recommend that the people of our community think seriously of this matter. I urge that fire drills be held in the schools on Fire Prevention day and that young people be spoken to on the subject of fires. I urge business men and householders to remove all rubbish or other material that constitutes a fire hazard, for the sake of cleanliness and precaution against fire. It would be timely also to give attention to heating apparatus, to flues and chimneys, in order that danger of fire from these sources be reduced." The heads of the Chamber of Commerce, A. Newton Vaughan, and of the fire department, Ralph E. Thurston, will co-operate in the observance of National Fire Prevention week. Chief Thurston will address the pupils of the Israel Putnam school on the subject next Tuesday.

It was announced Friday morning that the officials of the Putnam Savings bank have decided to accede to pressure requesting that their new building in Main street be set back three feet from the building line originally selected in order to help establish a better street line for the future in that very important location in the business section. The proposed change has been a matter of discussion recently between representatives of the bank and of the Chamber of Commerce.

Many Putnam people will occasionally glance to the east this (Saturday) forenoon in the hope of catching a glimpse of the giant ZR-1 which is scheduled to make a trip into New England today and will pass over Providence while en route to Brockton. It may or may not be possible to see the airship from this city, but many keen eyes will be on the lookout for it.

WESTERLY

Due to the absence of John J. Dunn, the defendants' counsel in several cases which were set down for trial Friday in the Third district court, where the state appeared as the complainant, caused by his attendance on the session of the superior court now being held in Kingston, these cases were continued one week and a short court session was held.

The next case called was that of the state, Russell L. Slocum, dog officer, vs. Harry Deutsch, charged on three counts with keeping three unlicensed dogs, contrary to law. A plea of not guilty was entered and the case was continued one week with surety asked in the sum of $100 on each count, the bond being furnished by his brother, Louis Deutsch. This case is the outgrowth of a bill presented at the last session of the Westerly town council for damage by dogs. Court adjourned, having had the smallest attendance in weeks.

At the meeting of the Westerly republican town committee in Westerly town hall Thursday evening Dr. John M. O'Connell, chairman of the committee, presided, with Mrs. C. Palmer Chapman secretary. The session was a meeting of the committees from both the First and Second districts. Monday evening next at 7.30 oclock in the Westerly town hall was set for the next meeting of the town committee. Wednesday, Oct. 10, at 7.30 o'clock, was fixed as the time for holding the caucus for the nomination of town officers, for which it is expected a slate will be made up at the committee meeting Monday evening. Oct. 3 the republican caucus named the following to act as town and district committees for two years, the town committee to be made up of the members from both districts, with the following officers: John M. O'Connell, chairman; Mrs. C. Palmer Chapman, secretary;

Assurance that the dirigible ZR-1 will pass over Westerly this (Saturday) morning having been given by Commander McCrary, interest is centered in the time at which the big blimp will speed over. It has been announced that the hangar, the largest single room building in the world, on Lakehurst, N. J., field, will be left at 7 a. m. and a course taken which will lead out to the ocean, up the coast, crossing Long Island and the sound to New London, thence to Westerly and eastward to Brockton, Mass., for a half hour stay. Boston is the furthest east the airship will sail before making the return trip. If the dirigible should come down on Broad street its 680 foot length would reach from Elm street to the Pawcatuck river bridge; its 78 feet width would entirely fill Dixon house square. The airship is inflated with non-inflammable helium gas, its capacity being 2,150,000 cubic feet, so that it would require several fillings of the 100,000 cubic foot Westerly Gas company's distributor container on Canal street to "gas" the ship.

There is a possibility that when the dirigible is in sighted its approach will be signaled by a blowing of mill whistles and strokes on the fire alarm bell.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur N. Nash and Mr. and Mrs. Merton L. Stott left Westerly by automobile Thursday for ten days' trip through the White mountains. Thursday was passed at Brockton fair. Bethel, Vt., will be visited by the party before their return.

Selection of this site probably will be made at the next meeting of the committee Saturday night, at which the lodge plans to co-operate with the Armistice day committee from Merrill post, A. L., for arrangements for the planting of the tree on that date. The members of the committee are Chancellor Commander John H. White, Past Chancellor Commanders Richard J. Rooney, Adolph Sheller, James Maxwell, Charles Girard and also William Minchen.

Miss Jean Smith and Miss Stella Egan of Westerly were visitors in Mystic Thursday evening.

The strong New Haven High school football eleven arrived in Westerly Friday by noon express, accompanied by their supporters, making a party of fifty or sixty. At 3.15 both elevens were playing the best football they knew. During the first quarter neither team was able to score. In the second quarter by a series of hard line rushes the New Haven players were able to force the ball across the line and the goal was prettily kicked by the New Haven boys. But things were not all New Haven's way in this quarter for by a series of forward passes the ball was carried well down toward the New Haven goal and in all probability the blowing of the whistle for the end of the half prevented the W. H. S. boys from crossing the New Haven goal line. The score at the end of the first halfwas New Haven High 7, Westerly High 0. In the third quarter New Haven scored a touchdown but failed to kick the goal. In the last quarter neither side scored, the game resulting, New Haven 13, Westerly 0.

BALTIC

At the annual meeting of the Men's league held in the vestry of the Methodist church Monday evening the following officers were chosen: William Crawshaw, president; John Chadwick, vice president; Charles B. Barnes, and Leonard Firth, treasurer. Various committee were also elected and arrangements were made for a busy season. After the business meeting the company sat down to a supper which was the award of the losing team to the winning team in the bowling contest which has created such an interest during the past summer. The committee having the supper in charge was Matthew Bailey, William Crawshaw, Joseph Ashworth, John Heibel, William Firth and Matthias Whitehead. They served a clam chowder, with roast beef sandwiches and coffee, and it was enjoyed by all. After supper Charles B. Barnes presented the bowling trophy, a silver cup, to Samuel Stafford, who is the winner this year. Mr. Barnes made a fine speech, paying a well deserved tribute to Mr. Stafford for the work he has done and the interest he has taken in the green and in the sport. He also urged the men to stand by the church and render real assistance in forwarding the moral and spiritual interests of the community. Mr. Stafford responded in a pleasing speech of appreciation. Cheers were given the losing side. With the prospects so promising, the men went forth with the cheering note "Let's Go."

SPEAKS FOR THE COUNTRY.

That President Coolidge is unalterably opposed to the cancellation of European debts will create no surprise. That is the attitude that has been maintained consistently by this government. It was the view of President Harding and it is the basis upon which progress has already been made by this country in the adjustment of its foreign debts.

Not only do we expect that the European countries will make settlement in time, but we have stipulated that such payments shall go for the liquidation of this country's indebtedness to those who provided the money with which to make the loans to Europe. Already Great Britain has paid hundreds of millions to this country in payment of interest and debt under the amortization plan. Cancellation would mean that this which has been applied to the settlement of the nation's indebtedness would have to be returned, that the people of this country would be obliged to provide the interest which they are receiving on the loans made to Europe for war purposes and that in the end they would be repaying themselves the billions of dollars that were used in the World war before this country entered.

Cancel the war debts and it means that the countries of Europe are relieved of a large war burden. They can devote their entire efforts to preparing for another war and can figure on getting whatever financial assistance is required the next time they get into difficulties. It is for the good of the European countries that they pay their debts. It will take some years but along with the task of meeting the obligation should go a thought or two about the advisability of prevention of just such indebtedness.

It had been thought that the idea of debt cancellation had been squelched a long time ago. For those who still cling to it the attitude of President Coolidge should be sufficient discouragement. He unquestionably speaks for the country.

SHORT WEIGHT COAL.

Those who deliberately set out to defraud those with whom they do business, and in fact seek business with the intention of short weighing their goods, can get no sympathy when they get into the hands of the authorities. The swindler can have no friends. His whole conduct is underhanded. His aim is to misrepresent and profiteer.

It is not often that city officials will advocate a boycott, but when the commissioner of weights and measures of New York city finds that there are dealers in coal who have failed to deliver by two tons the coal for which they have charged there is excellent reason why warnings should be given to the consumers against the policy of doing business with other than established concerns. New York has those which set up business for a short period, get their pickings and disappear. They are patronized because coal is wanted in a hurry and they seem to be able to deliver coal, even though it may not be all that is paid for and it may be of a decidedly inferior quality.

The coal consumer is in no mood, with coal prices where they are today, to be imposed upon in any such manner. He rightly feels that sufficient injustice is being done him if he gets coal and gets all that he pays for. To be squeezed for the price of two tons of coal which he never gets a good reason for listening to the advice of the commissioner of weights and measures. Established dealers cannot afford to engage in any such kind of business and it is chiefly in the large centers that the fly-by-night dealers are able to practice their deceptions.

Coal is costing twice as much today as it did a few years ago, and there are those who can easily recall when they were buying three tons of coal for what they are paying now for one. Whatever can be done for the protection of the coal buyers through the prosecution of the short weight dealers is bound to help the revelation of their policy assures the end of their coal sales in communities where they have done business.

PLACING GREEK REFUGEES.

Much sympathy has been aroused in behalf of and much has been done for the refugees in several European countries. They have been aided to recover from the deplorable conditions which surrounded them. They have been saved from starvation, clothed and doctored. It is never impossible to arouse sentiment in behalf of such unfortunates, and for that reason interest is bound to center in the effort which is now being launched for the settling of the Greek refugees, who have been driven out of Asia Minor, on land in Macedonia for the good of those people and seemingly for the good of that neglected region.

The Turks have succeeded in ousting a million or so Greeks from Asia Minor. They had gone into that region, become self sustaining and prosperous. They were not objects of charity but they are Christians and for that reason Turkey feels more secure without them.

For Greece to accept a million such refugees at once has imposed no slight burden. It was in fact more than Greece could swing and aid in considerable amount has been going from this country. But as long as the refugees have nothing to do and cannot become self sustaining they are bound to be objects of charity. Being able bodied and capable the idea had been presented and approved of locating them on the land in the region of Macedonia where it is hopes that they will establish themselves with as good results as they did in Asia Minor. It involves a large loan for which Greece will be responsible but the entire matter will be turned over to a commission of which Henry Morganthau of this country is to be chairman.

These lands are not waste lands except that they have been neglected of late years and torn by wars. The project is one that not only means much for the refugees but for Greece itself, for the repatriation of such a large number of its countrymen and virtually the reclamation of more than a million acres should react to the decided advantage of that nation. There appears to be so much merit in it that more than Greece will be anxious for it to succeed.

COAL FOR CANADA.

Just what certain efforts that are being made for the prevention or curtailment of exports of anthracite result it depends upon the action that is really called for. It is a matter that must be looked at from more than one angle.

If the situation were such that with full production in the coal fields it was impossible to supply the requirements of the people of this country there might be justification for insisting that the exportation of coal should be stopped. That in fact could be expected to follow and particularly so if export prices were more favorable.

But the inability to get coal in this country is not due to the diminished supply but to conditions which exist, though they ought not to, in the coal industry. The coal consuming public is being made the goat and there is no assurance that the stopping of the export to Canada would insure a sufficient upply at all times in this country. Limitation of coal for export, in case the coal resources warrant it is one thing. Cutting off export is decidedly another.

Canada has depended upon us for anthracite for a long time, but there are certain things that we look to Canada for. Only recently a prolonged howl went up over the idea advanced in Canada of preventing the exportation of pulp wood for paper making. Likewise there are plans underway for the bringing of electric current over long distance lines from hydro electric plants in Canada.

If we attempt to cut off the hard coal from Canada without any good reason we must remember that we are simply opening the way for retaliations which might be of no small concern. Stopping the exporting of coal for Canada deserves more than snap judgment. There's no good reason for penalizing Canada for conditions which need bettering in this country.

NOT ANOTHER MAYFLOWER.

By a decision which has been reached by the committee that has wrestled with the question of qualifications for the race between fishermen for the trophy put up for the winning fishing schooner, no exclusion of the Columbia is made. It is ruled that the schooner's measurements made it possible to enter as a challenger, and that conditions do not exist which prevented the acceptance of the Mayflower as an entry in the contest.

When the Mayflower was constructed it was built with the idea of winning the cup. The idea was laudable enough had it come within the requirements of being a schooner built to fish on the grand banks. To say that the schooner, which was in fact more of a yacht than a fishing schooner, had made a trip to the banks and been used on a fishing trip was not sufficient to admit it. It was too apparent that it had been built for the race rather than for fishing on the banks.

That situation nevertheless created friction which has not been entirely eliminated. It has served to decrease the interest in the contest, but the committee bound by the rules has its duty to perform and it has demonstrated that it is ready to admit those that can actually qualify. It is to be hoped it will end the bickerings of the past.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

God gives every man his work to do, and that work is his kingdom over which he ought to reign as king. He may not be an unlimited, absolute monarch if he is in the employment of another man, and yet there ought to be something kingly about him and the work he does. Not only does God give man his work but the capacity to do it, not however at first in the finished state, but the foundation of power in a crude form which man by careful training may bring to a high degree of capacity. All people have some opportunity to make good in this world; with some, of course, it is small compared to others. Outside of actual slavery, all men have a better chance of making good than they make use of. The reason why more real successes are not made in life is that men are not willing to pay the price. It is not so much the lack of ability as it is a lack of hard work in making ability really efficient.

Every man can give to his work the character he desires, whether he is a king or just a common laymen. Of course the greater his station in life the more conspicuous his success or failure. The quality of a monarchy is greatly modified by the character of the monarch. The puny kingdom that fell from the nerveless grip of Saul becoming forty years later the most important in the then known world is explained by the one word, David. Character was the main agent that wrought the change. The presidency of the United States is doubtless the most influential position in the world today, but that position can be greatly modified by the man who occupies it. It is true in all lesser positions. Take the workshop. What sort of work will a very fine and delicate machine produce if it is run by a blundering, incompetent man? Is it not always the man who is back of the machine that counts?

Recently the writer has warned the general public of the awful fate that awaits coming generations from riding too much and walking too little (The writer is sure of this because he hasn't money enough to buy a car.) In that paragraph he portrayed the awful condition of things when this legless generation arrives. As it is men who mostly drive cars, it will be mostly men who are legless and this will create many awkward situations. But the future holds in store another great calamity for the inveterate automobilist. It is duty to the fixity of his gaze to go straight ahead. If there is any man who has to be onto his job every minute it is the man who is driving a car. He can give but a hasty glance to lateral objects. That shows that he is going to be absolutely stiff-necked by the year1950. When he wants to turn his head in either direction his whole body will have to swing around on his heel as a pivot. Then some Jeremiah will write: "Ye stiff-necked and legless generation did I not warn you to flee from the wrath to come by walking more and riding less?"

The outbreaks of lawlessness throughout the country in which floggings and other serious crimes are committed seemingly show that the spirit of anarchy is here. Whether it is individual or the organizations taking the law into its own hands, it is law-breaking just the same. Even if legal authority is sometimes provokingly slow in bringing criminals to justice is no excuse for the action of self-appointed individuals or organizations. It is decidedly un-American in conception and execution. But we ought to know who the guilty parties are. It may be that a criminal gang is trying to get away with its dirty work by hiding under the regalia of another organization. Or it may be that some wily propaganda is set in vogue for the purpose of injuring some innocent organization. Let us reserve our censorism until the evidence is conclusive against the guilty party.

The high wages paid today for labor are not such a bonanza if one takes into account the corresponding increase of living expenses, or the purchasing power of the dollar as compared with what it was years ago. It sounds as if wage earners, including salaried people, were living in clover when we think of ordinary toil getting five and six dollars a day and skilled toilers getting twice as much. Six hundred dollars a day had about the same purchasing power within memory as eighteen hundred today. Women now in early old age remember when they would not admit that they are corned beef lest they would lose their social standing. They would hire some colored boy to buy it for them on a dark night. But today corned beef is so expensive that people who can afford to eat it once a week are at once recognized as belonging to the elite, and those who own limousines have it done up in red paper and carry it home on the running board.

How much the world owes to its men and women who have dared to do things! There are two kinds of daring that are as widely separated from each other as the poles of the earth. The first is the foolhardy and utterly reckless daring of the brainless sort who have no idea of the value of human life. It has absolutely nothing to do with courage, bravery or lofty motive. You see this kind of daring on the road by those who endanger other lives as well as their own by just getting ahead of somebody else. The second is the daring of those where some great principle is involved or the saving of other lives. I mean by noble daring the action of those who blaze new pathways into unknown territory where it is reasonably believed that it contains something that will bless humanity. The time has been when the adventurer was the discoverer of continents or large tracts of unknown lands. Let the world always pay tribute to Columbus, Hudson and Livingstone. But let us not forget the quiet chemist who is dealing with poisonous serums for the cure of cancer.

The real value of an object is to be measured by the amount of ourselves it has cost to get. We get out of things in proportion to what we put into them. Radium is much more valuable than lead because its value must be measured in terms of great personal effort. A college education to the idle rich who are there just for athletic sports does not mean what it does to the lad who has to wait on table and run furnaces to help defray his expenses. Does not a hard problem, whether it is in a boy's lesson or a man's business, really become a joy if it is solved by dint of personal energy? Hard things become a pleasure when we discover that we can do them. We can understand why great painters hate to part with their masterpieces.

October has always been celebrated here in America for the number of its avalanches. The downfall of the leaves may with the greatest propriety be called an avalanche. The man who disagrees to this statement certainly does not have a front lawn under maple or elm trees. If one is a great lover of nature he will surely understand what the writer means by an avalanche of color. Walk out into the wilds or ride over the Mohawk Trail and then down through the Berkshires if you want to see something that outrivals either the Versailles or the Louvre art galleries. But in late years other things have made these avalanches look thin and pale and that is the avalanche of conventions of all descriptions, but those bearing on religious matters are greatly in the lead. There seems to be a craze to get together and discuss matters of common interest. If there is never a worse craze than this the outlook is very bright.

CENTURY OLD NEWSPAPERS IN PUTNAM COLLECTION

An interesting collection of old newspapers, published about a century ago in various towns in eastern Connecticut, has been made by Malcolm M. Willey of Putnam, and at this time of the year, when schools and colleges are opening, it is entertaining to observe the advertisements that appeared in the columns of these old journals aiming to attract students from the neighboring country to various institutions of higher education.

In the Windham County Advertiser for June 4, 1828, published by John Gray, Jr., in Brooklyn, Conn., appears the statement of a school committee in Woodstock: "A school for the higher branches of learning will be opened in North Woodstock on Monday, the 25th May, instant. The teacher, Mr. Orson Cowles, of Yale college, is well recommended by President Day, and others, as to his religious, scientific, and literary character. It is presumed that young gentlemen and ladies, will find the various advantages of this school equal to those of similar institutions. The situation is retired, and pleasant; the building new and commodious, and the moral and religious habits of the society good. Tuition and board on very favorable terms."

Just what constituted "favorable terms" is not stated, though from a similar notice, in the same issue, of the establishing of a school by La Fayette S. Foster in Pomfret (Abington Society) it is learned that tuition for English studies was $3 a quarter; for other languages, $4 for the quarter.

Further light on the cost of education in this corner of Connecticut a hundred years ago is given in the announcement in the issue of the Advertiser for April 1, 1828. The trustees of Ashford Academy "respectfully inform the public that they have engaged Mr. John O. Payson, a member of the senior class of Yale College, who is well recommended by President Day, to take charge of the school." The trustees further state that it is the object of the institution to instruct "young gentlemen and Ladies in the higher branches of literature." Especial attention is also to be given to the "morals and behavior of the pupil." They then state that terms of tuition are $3 a quarter in all branches, and then add: "Board may be obtained in respectable families from $1 to $1.33 per week, including washing." Seemingly education in Connecticut academies was to be had at somewhat cheaper rates than similar instruction in the neighboring state of Massachusetts for the notice of Nichols Academy, Dudley, in the same year, 1828, states that tuition per quarter in classical studies, printing and drawing is to be $4.33, and in "Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics, etc., $5.33." Board, again including washing, was to be had for $1.33 to $1.50 a week.

Papers of this same period in Mr. Willey's collection contain numerous advertisements of lotteries. The issue of the Windham County Advertiser for March 18, 1828, announces tickets for the Connecticut State Lottery, "Class 1st, for the benefit of the Asylum for the Insane." The high prize was given as $10,000, with tickets selling at $4, "and shares in proportion." The same paper also has an advertisement giving the date of the drawings in the Connecticut Lottery for the benefit of Groton Monument Association.

The Norwich Courier of July 16, 1817, printed by Hubbard and Marvin "at their office in Chelsea," has a detailed announcement of one Jno. L. Sullivan of Boston, offering to sell the rights to use his patented Steam Tow Boats on the waters between Norwich and New London, and pointing out the advantages of this type of conveyance over the single boat with its great dangers through accident.

Stage notices show that at the time, during the summer months, a stage left Norwich for Worcester Tuesday and Friday of each week, returning Wednesday and Saturday, arriving in time to connect with the steam boat to New York. The fare from Worcester to New York was $6; from Pomfret to New York, $4.50; from Brooklyn, $4.25; and from Norwich $3.

Liquor advertisements indicated that there was no Volstead provision in 1821. In a copy of the Connecticut Gazette, published in New London, and edited by Samuel Greene, one of the outstanding figures in the early journalism of the country, are numerous offers of old spirits, gin, and cordials for sale. Robert Coit of New London offers two hogsheads of Tobago rum, and a competitor, Gordon Kimball, has "West Indies and New England rum, as cheap as can be bought of the same quality in the city." He also has on hand, he states, a supply of best double ale. And at the same store "good sugar" was selling for twelve and a half pounds for a dollar. The Team Boat Hotel, located "on the Parade, opposites the market" in New London, advertises "Liquors of the very best quality," and advises that "gentlemen from the country, and others" will do well to call there.

One of the oldest papers in Mr. Willey's collection is a copy of The Windham Herald for January 24, 1812. The paper was then in its twenty-first volume. It was "published by J. Byrne and Son in lower room of the court house" in Windham. The first page of this issue is given over largely to the news of a fire in Richmond, Va., which was headed: "Deplorable Conflagration at Richmond. From the Richmond Enquirer. Narrative, etc." The fire occurred on the night of December 26, almost a month before the issue containing the news of it, which gives some indication of press service in the early days. The first paragraph of the account is interesting as an example of early journalistic style.

"We cannot paint the details of the scenes on Thursday night—No description can do justice to its horrors—and there were so few persons so cool and self-collected as to accurately paint any part of the mass of woes which fell in a moment upon us. Some are so fraught with horror that delicate pencil would have to skip them. Besides, time has not been had to bring together an accurate group of woes. It is painful to touch upon the catastrophe of those who are gone forever. Their ashes are in their graves—but their memories are entombed in our hearts. Reader, conceive if you can, what you never have felt." After reading two and one-half columns of lurid description, one finally learns that seventy lives were lost.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Otto Gessler, who has been named as military dictator of Germany, with full powers to cope with any crisis that may arise, hails from Bavaria, where before the war he had won something of a reputation as a political leader and publicist. Following the fall of the empire he was called to Berlin to assist in the establishment of a new government and the restoration of order out of the chaos that then prevailed. He became a member of the Coalition Cabinet and assumed a full share of the difficult work and responsibilities that confronted that body. His political friends, and even his manlike qualities. In his new post Dr. Gessler is charged with the responsibility not only of maintaining order in Germany, but crushing any attempt by monarchists or fascisti to seize control.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

The Beauty of Nature.

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures. He leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul. He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake. Psalm 23:1-3.

One can easily discover what a deep love of nature and pastoral life David possessed and how he never lost it amid the splendor of his kingly career. The palace never caused him to forget the plain. The sceptre of a throne never obliterated the remembrance of a shepherd's crook. His harp was always tuned to the melodies he had learned by forest and stream. His most beautiful psalm is full of word pictures drawn from country life. Its sweetness and tenderness have been the comfort of the ages. Its "shepherd" its "green pastures," its "still waters," its "paths," its "valley," its "rod," its "staff"—they all belong to a quiet, contemplative, pastoral existence and David uses them as the best smiles he can think of to comfort others with the comfort he himself finds in them.

"And above all, the Lord Jesus, Himself, apparently His most natural setting was the desert, the mountside, the seashore, the wayside, the fields.

How beautifully He talks of the lilies of the field as possessing a beauty with which the glory of Solomon was not comparable! Does He want to show the poverty of His material life? The best similies that He can think of are the foxes and the birds. Does He want to show the care that His Father is taking of the least of those who put their trust in Him? A common sparrow gives Him His best comparison. Does He desire to impress on His disciples the urgent need of missionary action, a field of grain, ripe for the sickle is the striking figure He chooses. And God, Himself, wishing to disclose to men a striking proof of His tender compassion stoops down and tells them that He will not quench the smoking flax, nor break the bruised reed.

And God's country still keeps green and beautiful—full of ennobling suggestions to the eye that can see them and the ear that can hear them and the soul that can feel them.

Oh, what a pity that the world and the things that are in the world separate so many of us from Nature's charms!

What a pity our senses are so blunted to nature's beauties! What a pity that we are robbed of our inheritance of love for flower, and tree, and running brook; for it's an inheritance God-given! That is a distinct and lamentable loss suffered by any man when he no more experiences exquisite pleasure at the sight of a flower, a field of waving grain, or a flaming sunset.

One can too easily love things of more value than many dollars.

Stories That Recall Others

They All Knew It.

Having a new teacher for a time because of the illness of the regular one, the daughter of the household was asked how she liked the substitute. "Oh, we like her all right," was the reply, "but she wouldn't let us sing what we wanted to. When she asked us what we wanted to sing we said, 'Yes, We Have No Bananas,' and we all knew it, too."

Crying For a Bite.

Mary, the smallest of a group of children of a neighborhood, is teased considerably by her playmates, who apparently delight in hearing her cry. The other day her older sister ran home to explain the cause of Mary's outburst, with Mary following close behind.

"Mother, what do you think? Mary is crying because I won't let her bite me!"

BOYS' BIG BONFIRE DANGER ON SPRING ST.

About 5.15 o'clock Friday afternoon the fire department answered a telephone call for a fire in the rear of No. 36 Spring street. A man had been burning leaves in the gutter on Spring street and some of the burning leaves were carried by boys into a backyard where Tree Warden Henry Davis had been trimming a large maple tree. With the burning leaves the boys started a fire in the pile of dry wood and leaves trimmed from the tree.

The pile blazed up quickly and the fire assumed such proportions that the flames threatened the residence of Jabes Bailey. A stream from a hand water pump carried by the firemen put the blaze out in short order.

FORECLOSING MORTGAGE ON FORMER GAME PRESERVE

The sale of the former Plant game preserve in the towns of East Lyme, Lyme and North Lyme on which a mortgage of $30,000 against Tom Frusher, formerly of New London, was foreclosed by the executors of the estate of the late Commodore Morton F. Plant last week, was ordered by Judge Isaac Wolfe at a short calendar session of the superior court in New London Friday.

J. R. May was called to the stand to give a value on the property and he said that in his opinion it is worth between $35,000 and $38,000. The preserve consists of 1,800 acres of land, the lodge and three other buildings.

The mortgage was taken out by Mr. Frusher on Aug. 6, 1920, and secured by six notes of $5,000 each. There is interest amounting to $1,950 due on the property from Aug. 6, 1922.

Judge Wolfe also entered an order authorizing Receiver Robert W. Perkins of the Shore Line Electric Railway company to sell certain tracts of land in Branford, Guilford, Saybrook, Stonington and North Stonington.

N. F. A. PLAYS STONINGTON ON LOCAL GROUNDS TODAY

After a short signal practice in preparation for their game with Stonington on the campus at 3 o'clock today a number of the Academy players left to see the Westerly-New Haven game at Westerly yesterday. Westerly is to be Academy's next victim so that any information picked up by the local boys will come in handy in the near future.

Since their victory over the fast Killingly eleven last Saturday, the locals have put in some hard licks of practice and are playing a good deal better than last week. The Killingly game is the only game near the first of the season won by N. F. A. in recent years, so that this may be taken as a good omen for the future.

The lineup for the locals at the start of the game will be practically the same one which started last Saturday although it is quite probable that there will be one or two changes.

The plaintiff claimed that he was driving his machine along the highway in a westerly direction when his car was struck by a Nash sedan owned and driven by the defendant, Alfredo Fusconi, and was badly smashed. He alleged that he spent more than $400 on repairs.

After the evidence the case was submitted without arguments by the attorneys and Judge Wolfe reserved decision.

A feature of the social hour at the D. A. R. meeting this week with Mrs. Edward J. Graham, at her summer home in Lebanon, when Mrs. George A. Ashbey, of Norwich, and Mrs. Llewellyn P. Smith of Lebanon, poured tea, was the mammoth fruit cake which had been made by Mrs. Smith, according to a recipe over 150 years old, which has been in the Huntington family for generations. The wondrous cake was cut by Mrs. Smith for the more than ninety members and guests present. In explaining that the cake was according to the formula of her mother, Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Huntington, Mrs. Smith humorously deplored the lack today of the spirit which in her mother's day was to be had, to add to the rich ingredients of the formula.

LABOR NOT TO RELY UPON LEGISLATIVE ACTION

Portland, Ore., Oct. 5.—(By the A. P.)—Labor will devote its efforts toward organization of workers rather than rely entirely upon legislative action for the correction of industrial evils as a result of action at the convention of the American Federation of Labor today. The action followed consideration of the decision of the United States supreme court nullifying the minimum wage law for women. For the purpose of carrying on a campaign to organize women and other workers which the legislation was intended to benefit a conference of international officers was ordered.

Max S. Hays, of Cleveland, Ohio, voiced a protest against abandonment of political efforts to correct evils. He urged labor's support in Ohio for an old age pension law.

The executive council's report which the convention affirmed criticised the supreme court's decision against the minimum wage law, especially on the ground that a majority of only decided against the law while the supreme court had previously laid down the principle that an act of congress should be declared invalid only where there is no rational doubt.

STATEMENT BY STORROW AT RAILROAD HEARING

Boston, Oct. 5.—James J. Storrow, chairman of the New England joint railroad committee, which last summer submitted a report recommending consolidation of the New England railroads, with the exception of the Boston and Albany, and Canadian-owned lines, defended the consolidation plan today at the final hearing of the Interstate Commerce Commission here. Josiah F. Hill, of the banking firm of Lee, Higginson and company, and John R. Macomber, former president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, also addressed the commission in favor of the all-New England plan. Mr. Hill submitted analysis of statistics indicating that the cost of operation of New England railroads compares not unfavorably with costs of other American systems.

Costs per dollar of revenue are three cents higher than outside New England, Mr. Hill stated, and declared that this compensated for passenger revenue rates. A previous estimate subnutted by John W. Oldham, who spoke in favor of trunk line control, placed New England's handicap at 10 cents on the dollar.

Mr. Storrow, in summing up the results of the hearings asserted that public opinion, as generally voiced by shippers and business men of New England, was overwhelmingly against control of New England railroads by trunk lines. He asserted, with Mr. Macomber, that New England business and banking houses were ready to give the full strength of their backing to the proposed consolidated system.

YANKEE PITCHERS HAVE EDGE ON THE GIANT HURLERS IN PAPER AVERAGES

New York, Oct. 5.—Four pitching veterans—all former members of the Boston Braves—are being groomed carefully by Manager McGraw of the World's Champion Giants to match speed and curves with the all-star Yankee array in the world's series that begins next Wednesday. Upon them McGraw pins much of his hope for a third successive world's championship.

The quartet are Jack Scott, twirling hero of the Giant triumph last year; "Silent John" Watson, a 1923 addition to the staff; Hugh McQuillan, whose acquisition last season helped turn the pennant-tide in favor of the Giants; and Art Nehf, diminutive southpaw star.

Nehf, Scott and McQuillan accounted for three of the 1922 series victories over the Yankees, while Nehf twirled the deciding victory for the McGrawmen in the eighth game of the 1921 classic.

On paper, the Yankee mainstays—Jones, Hoyt, Bush, Pennock and Shawkey—outclass the Giant moundsmen, just as they did a year ago, but memories of the 1922 reversal, when the Giant staff came through with flying colors while their rivals cracked, have prompted the belief that McGraw may again round his squad into winning condition.

Nehf, McGraw believes, is again at the top of his form after a somewhat erratic season. The little southpaw blanked Brooklyn in the game which enabled the Giants to clinch the 1923 flag and is likely to twirl the opening contest against the Yankees, thus gaining this distinction for the third straight year.

With few exceptions, Scott has twirled steadily all season and hopes to duplicate his come-back of 1922 when he blanked the Yankees with the most brilliant mound exhibition of the series. McQuillan's speed-ball has been working to perfection recently and Watson has regained McGraw's confidence after a brief lapse in discipline. "Rosy" Ryan, despite his good record for the year, is unlikely to start any of the games, unless one or more of the veterans fail to come through.

Umpires Named.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—President Ban Johnson, of the American League tonight selected Billy Evans and Dick Nallin as the league's umpire for the world's series.

Barnstorming Exhibitions.

Chicago, Oct. 5. — Major League players, excluding those participating in the world's series, will have until November 10, to engage in barnstorming exhibitions, Commissioner Landis ruled tonight. This is an extension of 10 days over the time previously granted.

Permission for any member of either New York teams to play exhibition games after the series will have to come from Commissioner Landis.

RIVERVIEW TO PLAY AT CARPET GROUNDS SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Moosup, Oct. 5.—The Riverview club of Norwich, one of the fastest clubs in the state, will be seen in action at the Carpet grounds here on Sunday against Manager Loughran's fast aggregation which sent Sterling to defeat last Sunday by the score of 4 to 1.

Both teams are to have the players on the field by 2 o'clock and with good weather the game should be the best of the year. The Riverview club has won 20 of their 23 games this year playing the best teams of the state.

The lineup of the Riverview club has been announced by Manager Donovan as follows: Tony West on the mound with Bill Reddy receiving, Couillard 1b, Burns 2b, Faber ss, Mills 3b, Clabby lf, Hart cf and Schaffrich rf.

Against this flashy ball club Manager Loughran will pit his team of college stars. "Chuck" Darling of Boston College will play in left field, "Sid" Hines of Boston College or Jarvis of Jewett City center field, Halligan of Boston University right field, Finnigan of Boston University third base, Kendricks of Ware, Mass., sohrt stop, Phillips of Boston College on the keystone sack, Frechette on first. This is the only local player on the team, a player who in 24 games has made but one error. For the battery the fans will have the chance to see Harry Mullowney of Boston College on the mound and Ryan of Holy Cross backstopping him. Both the men are big league timber and are the most expensive players to sign with Moosup since 1915.

The game is sure to be the best of the year as Manager Donovan is out to beat the "College Boy" team and Manager Loughran out to beat the insane asylum outfit. The time of the game is 2.30 sharp. Mark Moosup on your calendar for Sunday and see the best game of the year, every player guaranteed to be on the ground one-half hour before the game is called at 2.30 o'clock.

OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED THAT ZEV WILL MEET PAPYRUS FOR $100,000 PURSE

New York, Oct. 5.—It was officially announced tonight that Harry Sinclair's three-year-old Zev, has been selected to meet Papyrus, English Derby winner, in the $100,000 International race, Oct. 20.

The official announcement, coming as it has twenty-four hours before the time set by the jockey club committee, was due, it was said, to the fact a member of the committee made the decision known at Belmont Park this afternoon.

The official statement from Major August Belmont's office follows:

"The committee of the jockey club —August Belmont, Joseph L. Widener, William Woodward, Robert L. Gerry and W. S. Vosburgh—named to select an American three-year-old to race against the Epsom derby winner, Papyrus, for a purse of $100,000 at Belmont Park, Saturday, Oct. 20, made known its decision today.

"Under the terms of the agreement, three horses were to be named and, in case of sickness or disability, they would pick the field in sequential order.

"The choice included Zev, My Own and Untidy, and Zev, if he remains fit and well, will be the horse.

"My Own, is second on the list, outranking Untidy, which will only face the derby winner in case both colts are out of commission on the day of the race.

"The definite choice of Zev sets at rest any speculation as to the chances of my own outranking him for the honor and puts an end to the controversy which has been raging for the pust two weeks."

Smith (Ruth Perkins), one time in the local railroad offices.

The edict ordering Sergt. Samuel Hick to discontinue chasing rum-runners and bootleggers in the officer's automobile which was issued yesterday was of short duration as regards effect, for today Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney granted the sergeant permission to continue the operation of the automobile at the expense of the city. As a result of the change in ruling within 24 hours after being given to dispense with the services of the automobile, Sergeant Hick and his associate, Patrolman Frank Philopena, were scouring the city this evening in the famous Durant touring car. It is understood that following Sergeant Hick being ordered to do his rum-chasing afoot, Sergeant Hick took the matter up with State's Attorney Hadlai A. Hull, from whose office Hick is working, and the state's attorney immediately requested a conference with City Manager Holt and Captain of Police Pinney, the result being that both the city manager and captain of police finally agreed to comply with the wishes of the state's attorney that Sergeant Hick be permitted to use the automobile and that the city bear such expense as is monthly incurred for gasoline, oil and wear and tear on the car, which Sergeant Hick places at about $4 per day.

Detective Sergeant Charles Hammond was this afternoon suspended for 30 days for conduct unbecoming an officer, being under the influence of liquor while on duty. The suspension was made by Captain Charles A. Pinney following Lucius E. Whiton lodging complaint with City Manager William A. Holt of the officer's condition earlier in the day.

It is alleged that Detective Sergeant Hammond was passing through Huntington street between 12 and 1 o'clock and as the officer reached a point near Jay street Councilor Whiton happened along in his automobile. Councilor Whiton observed that Detective Hammond's gait was unsteady and upon closer observation he decided that the officer was intoxicated. The city official at once visited City Manager Holt and the latter communicated the report to Captain Pinney. Detective Hammond was summoned before Captain Pinney and the latter being satisfied that the charges levied by Councilor Whiton were well founded, ordered Detective Hammond suspended without pay for one month.

Two old-timers made their appearance in the police court today, John Heffernan and William Dooley, the latter famous in the police station and the court as the man who declared he was the chambermaid in a saloon on one occasion in the wet past when he was arrested. He was sent up for three months. Heffernan made a lodging place of the tramp room every night since the 4th of May—a period that stamped him as a vagrant, and he was prosecuted for that misdemeanor. He was in need of care and treatment, so was sent up to the workhouse to stay during the winter.

Two sailors from the yacht Cytheria spent Thursday in Norwich, where one of them, Edward Kelly, formerly made his home. He and his companion, William Goodsell, came back to New London in a condition that inclined them to be pugnacious. They finally ran up against Policeman Sloan and were arrested. Each pleaded guilty to the offense charged. They were fined $10 each and paid.

The street department is giving attention to various streets of the city that have become gullied and holes are being filled with gravel and tar. Sidewalks along the route traversed by the street department wagons are treated where holes are found in the walks.

Michael Kennedy was fined $10 for intoxication today in the police court. He is an old man, but tackled some of the stuff that goes as wine and became so intoxicated that he fell and bruised his face. He will have to stay in jail about three weeks.

It is believed the city and the New Haven Railroad company are to have some such contest in the courts as the city had over the ownership of what is known as Lane A in order that the rights of the city and the railroad in the crossing to the ferry and the sidewalk on the south side of the railway station may be established and defined. The city, it is understood, claims that the passage to the ferry is the property of the municipality and that all the privilege the railroad has in that passage is a right of way for its tracks. Now the railroad has built walks there and assumes that it has all the rights that attach to the premises as though it was the owner in fee simple of the land.

The older residents declare that there is no record that the railroad company ever purchased the land on which the northern end of the station stands nor the water on which a portion of the wharf in front of the railway station is located. So there will be a hunt of the land records of the city to determine the rights of the railroad and of the city.

Niagara Engine company has installed a radio apparatus in its house.

Carpenters report busier times now than they have known for several months. They are engaged largely in repair work that is being done in anticipation of winter weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Zakiel Spitz and Mr. and Mrs. George Lowrey are to go to New York today (Saturday), where Mr. Spitz is to attend a banquet at the Hotel Astor and enter into the arrangements for beginning a nation-wide drive to raise a million dollars for the Jewish Theological seminary.

It is understood that a couple of stores that entered into the Saturday evening closing plan and shut their doors at 6 p. m. will this (Saturday) evening be doing business at the old stand in the old way. The proprietors declare that their business has fallen off since they have been closing early on Saturday.

Edward Smith of 61 Norwood avenue, a section of the city that is not as well built up as some others, left his automobile, an old Ford, in his yard last evening. Soon after a couple of persons were seen to take the machine and drive away in it.

Raymond Cormier, 74 Washington street, will be in the police court at Springfield, Mass., Monday next, charged with speeding on the Boston post road this week.

Charles Whitney, Groton, a patient at Home Memorial hospital, was able to return home this afternoon.

Complaint was made to the police early this morning by neighbors of Attorney G. Curtis Morgan that the continual barking of Mr. Morgan's dog annoyed them. An officer was sent to Mr. Morgan's home to notify the attorney to cause the animal to be taken care of, but no one could be aroused there.

The police this afternoon caused the first cargo of whiskey and alcohol to be stored in the custom house since the entire amount of whiskey and alcohol was removed from the federal building several weeks ago to New York, after having been in storage there many months. The whiskey and alcohol deposited in the custom house today comprised 19 cases of whiskey and 56 quarts of alcohol, all of which was seized last July from the fishing boat Bertha E. James Romano of Belden street, arrested at the time as being possessed of the whiskey and alcohol, is scheduled to appear in the United States court in New Haven this week, charged with transporting liquor. Deputy United States Marshal A. P. Marsh was in New London yesterday for the purpose of ordering Romano into court.

At a meeting of John Coleman Prince post, American Legion, a committee composed of C. Hadlai Hull, Henry L. Dorsey, Edward Cruise, Morris B. Payne and Ernest F. Gates was appointed for the purpose of purchasing a burial plot 65x76 feet in Cedar Grove cemetery, that a suitable burial place may be provided for any veteran of the World war for whom a private burial place is not available.

Merlin James Emery, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Emery of Groton, died last night at the contagious ward of Lawrence hospital from infantile paralysis.

One Grondon, operator of an automobile, knocked down a small boy in front of the Thompson garage, on the crossing at 6.15 this evening. Grondon conveyed the lad home, where a physician pronounced his injuries scratches only.

Broad Theatre.

The largest exterior set ever constructed for a motion picture comedy was built at Hollywood for Buster Keaton's first six-reel Metro feature comedy-drama, Three Ages, which is coming to the Broad theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. It represents an exact replica of the famous structure, the Colosseum, which is still standing in Rome.

This age-famous arena was reared in duplicate at Hollywood, after thirty cars with 500,000 feet of lumber, three tons of nails, eight tons of plaster, and carloads of other materials were juggled by several hundreds of carpenters, painters and property men.

It was built in the open so that both exterior and interior scenes could be photographed. It closely follows every detail of the amphitheatre which was built nearly a century B. C., and where gladiators fought and the early Christians were martyred.

The Hollywood structure is 150 feet high. Inside a wall, 14 feet high, marks the beginning of tier upon tier of seats which rear themselves to a height of 136 feet to the rim of the outer wall. The floor plan of the original Colosseum was faithfully followed by Keaton and his architects. This necessitated a close study of original drawings and works by a large staff of experts, but when finally the structure was completed it was a remarkable representation of its famous original slowly decaying by the side of the Roman forum.

This is only one of the unusual preparations made for Keaton's big feature. Three Ages was directed by Keaton and Eddie Cline from a story by Jean Havez, Joe Mitchell and Clyde Bruckman. Fred Gabourt was art director. It was photographed by William McGann and Elgin Lessly. It is a Joseph M. Schenck presentation through Metro.

As an added feature Mary Astor will be seen in The Beggar Maid, adapted from the poem of the same name by Tennyson. Movie Chats will complete this big bill.

Today's bill consists of Viola Dana in Rouged Lips, Ruth Roland in Haunted Valley, the Japanese earthquake films and an educational comedy. Continuous show today from 1.30 to 10.15.

First German Lutheran Church.

The preparations for our concert are making good headway and the very interesting programme is almost complete. Next week we will be able to tell our friends some more about it.

Sunday afternoon at 2.30 there will be the regular monthly meeting of the church board of the parsonage. Monday night at 8 o'clock; quarterly meeting of the congregation at the church parlors. Tuesday night, rehearsal of the church choir at the basement of the church. Thursday night at 7.35, choir rehearsal for the concert under the leadership of John Eckstein. Mrs. Hero will preside at the piano. Friday night at 7.30 meeting of the Young People's society at the church parlors.

Our membership drive was very successful. The two teams under the captains, Miss L. Munch and Miss O. Grebe obtained 16 new members for the society. They will be introduced next Friday night.

Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, German school and religious instruction in the basement of the church. Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, confirmation instruction.

Broadway Theatre.

Let it be understood that the Japanese earthquake sensation in pictures to be shown at the Broadway theatre, for Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday is not a news reel. It is a special feature actually taken during the earthquake and rushed to the United States, making it a real scoop of the season. It is appalling and sensational, seeing thousands flee for safety, building, burning and falling, and pictures exactly as happened in Japan.

Is Harold Lloyd the screen's comedy king?

That is an interesting question and a question that James W. Dean, the prominent syndicate writer and motion picture critic, knew would cause considerable comment. In fact, Mr. Dean began the controversy by syndicating a story through prominent newspapers throughout the country and thusly started the ball rolling. He write:

"The barber was talking as he wielded his razor. Valentino is a great actor, he thinks, but William Farnum is greater. And who is his favorite actor of all? Harold Lloyd. Does he think Lloyd better than Chaplin. 'I should say,' he answers. 'Chaplin is always the same. Lloyd is always different.'"

Sale of Cottages at Hopeville.

Burdick & McNicol, real estate brokers, have sold for Mrs. Agnes L. Spencer her cottage located at Hopeville, in the town of Griswold. This property overlooks the Hopeville pond and is an ideal little country home, having several poultry houses and other buildings as well as several acres of land in connection with it. Mrs. Spencer has moved to Central avenue, Norwich.

Sells Franklin Street Business Property.

Mrs. Ellen E. Fisk has sold through the agency of Francis D. Donohue her block located at No.'s 252-256 Franklin street, to Frank Mininni. It is a three-story frame building, having two apartments and two stores, there is a deep lot to the property. Mr. Mininni purchases the property as an investment.

Sale of Mechanic Street House.

Through the agency W. F. Hill, David Novick has sold his cottage with all improvements and garage at 79 Mechanic street to Robert Chapman of this city. The new owner intends to make this his future home.

Strand Theatre.

A new show of B. F. Keith vaudeville will be seen at the Strand Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The order of the appearance of the acts are as follows:

Betty Washington, "the sweetheart of the violin, and her bow" will open the bill.

Ed and May Ernie, the merry monopede and the dancing girl, offer Three Feet of Comedy.

Josie Flynn and Louise Arnold in third spot offer Black and White, Assorted.

Archie and Gertie Falls close the program in A Few Hard Knocks.

Colorful action and double distilled drama are promised patrons of the Strand theatre for the week beginning Monday, when Divorce, a Chester Bennett production starring Jane Novak, will have its first local showings.

Aside of tense drama, the play will be plentifully interspersed with touches of a lighter vein, and it is promised that the reproduction of an ice rink, with its bewildering ballet on skates and its bespangled professional skaters, will prove a delightful interlude.

John Bowers, one of the most dynamic men of the screen, appears as Miss Novak's leading man in Divorce. Others in the cast are Margaret Livingston, Edythe Chapman, James Corrigan, George Fisher, Freeman Wood and Master Philippe de Lacy.

A whisky still is so called because the moonshiner has to work it on the quiet.

NEW METHOD OF REDUCING FAT

A news item from abroad informs us that the American method of producing a slim, trim figure is meeting with astonishing success. This system, which has made such a wonderful impression over there, must be the Marmola Prescription Tablet method of reducing fat. It is safe to say that we have nothing better for this purpose in this country. Anything that will reduce the excess flesh steadily and easily without injury to the stomach or the causing of wrinkles, and without the help of exercising, dieting, or absurd greases and salves, is a mighty important and useful addition to civilization's necessities. Just such a catalogue of good results follow the use of these pleasant, harmless and economical little fat reducers. We say economical because Marmola Prescription Tablets (made in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription) can be obtained of any druggist the world over or from the Marmola Company, 4613 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich., for one dollar a case, which is a decidedly economical price, considering the number of tablets each case contains. They are harmless.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

The Town of Don't-You Worry

There's a town called Don't-You-Worry,
On the banks of the River Smile,
Where the Cheer-Up and Be-Happy
Bloom sweetly all the while.
Where the Never-Grumble flower
Blooms beside the fragrant Try.
And the Ne'er-Give-Up-Patience
Point their faces to the sky.

In the Valley of Contentment,
In the province of I-Will.
You will find this lovely city,
At the foot of No-Free Hill.
There are thoroughfares delightful
In this very charming town,
And on every hand are made trees
Named the Very-Seldom Frown.

Rustic benches quite enticing,
You'll find scattered here and there;
And to each a vine is clinging
Called the Frequent-Earnest Prayer.
Everybody there is happy,
And is singing all the while,
In the town of Don't-You-Worry,
On the banks of the River Smile.
—Rev. J. F. Bartlett.

THE SAME BLUE SEA.

Then give me a cot by the same blue sea,
A home by the cuptal deep,
With all its lovely witchery,
And there will I wake and sleep.

I, too, will walk the pebbly shore,
Entranced by the wavelets' curl,
Will watch the billows thundering roar,
And the wild waves' maddening whirl.

Out on the shoals we'll safely stroll,
And plunge in the briny sea.
Ride on the billows as they roll,
Till we reach again the lea.

We shall be counselled as we walk,
By the sea-gulls, white and fair—
Shall list the angels' silvery talk
Breathed through the envapored air.

Then give me a cot by the same blue sea,
A home by the crystal deep,
With all its lovely witchery,
And there will I wake and sleep.

SOCIAL CORNER EVENTS

Oct. 10—Picnic arranged by Tuny Ann at North Windham hall.

Answers and Inquiries

Freda Ward: Your name has been added to the Social Corner List.

THE DAY NOW AND THEN VACATION.

Dear Social Corner: I suppose all the members are busy cleaning and canning and getting the children ready for school, and have neglected the Social Corner. But after a while we will get into the habit and there will not be room for all the letters.

I have put down a peck of pickled peppers, cleaned two windows, washed the cellar stairs and am done until the next time. My vacation was a day now and then. We went to Sterling Hill to get scenery. (It is better than the Mohawk Trail) and from there to Beach Pond, a pretty body of water, but it was like the rocky road to Dublin to get in and out. But we soon struck the state road. On the road through a wood we found a spring of water. It was hill water. Some good Samaritan had sunk a tub and the water runs in and out all day. At home we have to drink pond water that in spite of filtering does not smell or taste good.

One day we went to Hartford and from there to New London and if any one wants carres you will find nine on the road to New London. Several times we have been over the road from Danielson to Providence and have not even hit the state road fence.

One Sunday after church we went to the Wolf Den just in time to see the wolf, for a few days later some one had sympathy for the poor old dog and put it out of the way.

Cloud Digger has predicted a terrible winter. I think we can stand it if we don't have to burn soft coal, for it is the worst fuel for the house that ever was put on the people, for everything in my house was covered with smoke. Walls, ceilings, and draperies had to be renewed. And most of the people will say the same.

Will send in a recipe for Tomato Marmalade. I make a little at a time. Ten green tomatoes, one lemon, half cup raisins. Chop fine and boil until soft. Sweeten to taste. I put in hot jars and seal and it will keep until its gone.

The high school girl who received a note at the post office last evening and dropped it at the door can get the same by calling at the office. The following is a copy:

Dear ———: The reason I didn't laff when you laft at me in the post office was because I hed a bile on my face and kant laff. If I laff she'll burst. But I love you bile or no bile, laff or no laff. Your loving ——— till death.

Hope to find the page full this week, and we must have new members to take the place of those who have laid down the busy facile pen.

PICES.

A DAY OF SURPRISES.

Dear Corner Friends: Can it be that our interest is waning when we hardly have three columns and less than a dozen letters? We hope all the old as well as new writers will get busy with their pen and ink. We have enjoyed the letters telling of the nice trips and outings they have taken this summer. So I will mention what surprises happened one day as Rose Lee's letter reminded me about it when Bug surprised her at Groton Long Point.

We were riding out to a beach not far from New London and as we were about to pass a cottage, who should we see but Huldy, just ready to step into their car for a spin to Ocean beach to show C. E. S. the latest style of bathing suits as she (C. E. S.) had been talking about going in bathing if she had an up-to-date bathing suit. I don't think she has decided yet which she will choose. They took a "Brave little Kitty" in the car with them instead of a dog. After our tarry there we journeyed on and came upon a camping party pleasantly situated on a prominence overlooking the water from their cool and shady retreat. Instead of the camp containing Indian and gypsies it was just Mr. and Mrs. Grace, who had hied away from the strenuous routine of daily duties and material cares, thinking they could enjoy peace and quiet without interruption. But that was not to be. Before the sun got very high Aunty No. 1 with others strolled in to give her a surprise and before nightfall she had over twenty people give her a surprise coming from Manchester, Willimantic, Norwich Town, Franklin and North Stonington. We were just like bees around a hive. We settled on everything—she could not manage us. After the chairs were filled we turned over everything that would move to sit on—even to her china closet, but not the chowder. We left that right side up for another meal. After our pleasant and inspiring calls we began our homeward journey. As I glanced up at Lucy Acorn's house I wished I might see her.

Grace: I found twigs enough to start a fire. Did you find bark?

"Every dog has his day," as the saying goes, and now I am having mine and you will find the place if you read the poetry column.

GRAND TIME AT ALFARA'S PICNIC.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Friends: I want to thank you for the yellow slip. I was very much surprised to think I had earned a prize. I was surprised to think that none of our sisters wrote about our last picnic at Alfara's a week ago. It was a nice day, only cold, and we had a nice time. Alfara is a grand hostess and hubby is not found wanting in anything that he can do for a grand time. There were over 50 who sat down to a nice dinner furnished mostly by our hostess. I was rubbering around a little and found six chicken pies for dinner. We also had mashed potato. I saw her making several different kinds of salad. The sisters carried different kinds of pie and cake, and at last our hostess had muskmelon with ice cream. Someone furnished the coffee, which was very nice, and also gave us a sample to take home. I think we should call it Social Corner coffee. I do not know where it is sold in Willimantic. Where I trade they have not got it. I trade at different stores just as it happens, but no one knows anything about it.

I think Alfara should be called Hostess No. 1. I have seen none do any more than she did for us. She has a picnic every year, but this year was the first time I ever attended. Something always happened so I could not go. Often I was away on a trip.

Next Wednesday I expect there will be a picnic at North Windham and I hope to meet many who can go and help have a good time.

Yours for health, happiness and success.

ROSE LEE.

HARRISON CAKE RECIPE WANTED

Dear Social Corner Folks: A long time I've been silent, but just the same have enjoyed the Corner letters.

I had the chance to go to Aunty No. 1's picnic and sure did have a good time Charity: Your visit will never be forgotten. Come again when you can.

Liberty: How is the little baby? Pretty cold weather!!

Elizabeth: Some weather for the shore! Hope to see you again soon.

Cherrisette: How goes the chickens See you quite often.

New York Girl: When you come to the city by trolley you will no doubt ride with my better half. Speak up if you do. He is on your line now.

Will close now by asking if any one has the Harrison cake recipe, if they will please send it in. Thank you.

PAPA'S BOY.

VISIT TO NIAGARA FALLS AND CANADA.

Dear Corner Sisters and Editor: My friend and I have been on a fine trip to New York, Niagara Falls and Canada. The big city is grand as the work of man, but the great falls is the work of God. No pen can write or tongue can tell of its beauty and wonder. The bridal veil and cave of the winds are great. It is quite a thrill to go under but no one should miss it. The falls are wonderfully decked in a rainbow of glory. Canada is nice. Toronto is a fine city, but give me the good old U. S. A.

Celia Louise: Where are you? Wish you could have been with me. Please write a letter to the Corner.

My long vacation is over and I am back on the old job taking care of the sick. I have a nice patient now. I am in fine trim ready to work, never mind how hard.

Kind regards to all the sisters.

PEACE.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Social Corner Editor: As I have attended several Social Corner picnics and enjoyed them so much, I would like to become a member and take for my pen name

FREDA WARD.

ALFARA DESERVES VOTE OF THANKS.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: As our page is not filled yet I will add my bit. I had the pleasure of attending the picnic at Aunty No. 1's, also at Alfara's as H. M. L. took her car full of sisters who had no other way to go. We had a fine time at both places.

Aunty No. 1: The flowers were much appreciated by the patient at the hospital. Thank you.

Grandma Gray: My father enjoyed the call from your husband very much. Hope you can come with him next time. I would like to meet you.

Kensey: Did you enjoy the S. fair? We did not go this year. We enjoyed your visit. Try it again.

Rhody Louise: When are you coming to Lebanon? Perhaps we can arrange a Social Corner meeting at the church while you are here.

I think all who attended Alfara's picnic should give her a vote of thanks as she did such a lot to make the day pleasant for all. It certainly made her a lot of work. She and her husband proved a delightful host and hostess. Such nice chicken pie, and the melons and ice cream were an unexpected treat.

Best wishes for all.

DORINDA.

PICNIC AT NORTH WINDHAM OCT. 10.

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: I will have a picnic at the North Windham hall Wednesday, Oct. the 10th. That is a mile beyond Alfara's, where we met the 26th. Go the same way in the Danielson and Willimantic bus and get off at the store at North Windham and follow the yellow paper. It is but a few minutes' walk to the hall and anyone can walk it. Bring plate knife, spoon, cup and food as usual and there will be some one to wait on you all. So all come that can and help to entertain of possible.

TUNY ANN.

GREETINGS FROM ELEANORA

Dear Corner Sisters: I thought I would try and write a few lines this nice morning. What a change in the weather since Saturday. What a fine day we had last week Wednesday at North Windham!

Lavender: Hope your cold is better.

Amy: Hope to see you soon.

ELEANOR.

AT CRYSTAL LAKE IN MAINE.

Dear Social Corner Friends: Once more I am at liberty to write you, after a very busy summer, with but very little time to do otherwise than visit, and enjoying every minute of the time.

I attended Oxford county fair. As it was my first visit in that part of the country, I enjoyed it very much—going with friends in their car. We had a picnic lunch. There were six of us and everybody seemed to have just as good a time as I did.

Then they returned home and more came, including a sister whom I had not seen for 25 years. There were five in the crowd. They came from Norwich, and as it was their first visit in Maine their visit was altogether too short for them as well as myself. But I am fully convinced they will come again.

Our latest dance at the pavilion was a confetti dance, and talk about fun! It drew a large crowd. To be sure, the affair was under new management and the hall was packed. A boy who thought he knew it all, while explaining what was what, pointed to some boxes that were full of confetti and said those boxes are filled with spaghetti and when someone pulls the string they will dump the contents on to someone's head. It was some fun from beginning to the end.

Then a masquerade last week called out a large crowd. As all of the other halls are closed for the season, the people flock to this end of the town. The costumes were great. Marie Verril as a Chinaman and his cousin from Freeport as a Mexican dancer were O. K. but when Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Bairde came in as a cowboy and his Indian bride, there was no end to the cheers, whistles and shouting. It made Crystal Lake echo.

Well, of course, the latter took the prize, as Mr. B. looked a perfect Indian maid, and as Mr. B. had been a cowboy he could not but get his part perfectly, and his suit of course was a real one made by himself.

Next Saturday evening there is to be a barn dance, and the last of the season, I believe.

Today the wind blows and it is squally. The apples are all falling off. I always wish that people who don't have any only lived nearer so they could have some.

We didn't have any last year, and I certainly missed them. We are having ever so many crops, all pretty good. Potatoes never were better. On almanac day for this month it was 82 at noon time but showery towards night, and cooler. So today has begun a the day finished.

Sorry to learn of so many Corner Sisters passing on, as I knew some of them.

Will close now, trusting everybody is well, or not real ill.

Potlatch: Why don't you write? Trust you are as well as usual and that Wildwood is well. Write again some time, at least once a month.

Trust this does not take up too much room. Editor is looking this way, so I will close for this time.

BALSAM FIR.

CLUB NO. 2'S FIRST MEETING

Dear Social Corner Folks: I hope you all got home safe. I was glad to see so many out at the first meeting of Club No. 2. We all missed Stillwater, but I believe she was with us and knew we thought of her.

To all whom it may concern: The money is in bank, and I walked home. The flower is pressed.

I thank you, Marcella, for the pretty card sent me. I bet you had a nice trip.

Canterbury Bell: It will be all right for you to make that call Saturday.

GONE TO MAKE HER HOME IN FLORIDA

To the Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I will surely be frogotten altogether for not writing for so long, but will write more often in the future. I had been preparing since last March for the trip I just took from Moosup, Conn., to Florida. I have left Connecticut for an indefinite time, of course, for I intend to make this state my future home. My husband's illness last winter left him with weak lungs so that he cannot winter north another cold winter like we had.

But even from here I will write for the sisters who are unable to travel through the length of our good old U. S. A. Believe me, sisters of the Corner, I don't see why there are so those countries. Why our own is filled many who travel to Europe to see with wonders from the coast of Maine, the borderline with Canada to the peak of this peninsula at Key West. I have traveled in my time from Canada to Florida and it is wonderful. But according to tourists I've met the west and the southwest and northwest must be as wonderful.

You don't have to be a millionaire to enjoy this beautiful country. With our car and trailer we made the trip, counting the tire and tube expenses for less than $200. Now any fair driver can do this with anything from a Ford to a Rolls Royce. It doesn't mean that you live in hotels at night. Oh, no, out in God's own beautiful hotel, under clear skies as well as dark, rainy ones, with a campfire with hot coffee, bacon and eggs for three meals, if desired, or canned goods if you want. But when the cooking is done and dishes also (not chinaware but white and blue enamel ware or aluminum), you can sit on anything handy, folding chairs or just a board on two stones, or a cracker box. Then feed your fire wood, so as it can blaze up good. The men folks love to talk of their young days or older ones, no matter, fishing, hunting or camping talks. The women folks think of putting the children (if any), to bed in tent or trailer, and then enjoy themselves, also.

You sure do meet with some very nice people. I will write the whole trip later for the benefit of the sisters who are shut in. Being my first letter in so long a time, I will only write a short one.

From Moosup to Hartford we then went to New Haven, Bridgeport and New York city, crossing by ferry to the New Jersey side, through Trenton to Philadelphia, through Philadelphia on to Washington, D. C. We spent two days in the capital, then to Richmond, Va., through to Pineburst, Southern Pines on to Augusta, Ga. From there we went to Jacksonville down to Daytona and on here.

Now sisters, here are a few things seen on my route. Everybody in Connecticut knows of our kind of scenery and our towns.

The scenery of New York when coming into the city and when going across the Hudson by ferry is wonderful. And, you take notice of how many different nationalities are represented by her population. Her streets are wonderful and her police officers courteous.

In Philadelphia when coming into the city they have a park called Roosevelt Park, and Boulevard. With paved streets, double width, with trees and lawns between, also lights until you come into the city proper. Then nice paved streets to the city hall and a busy railroad terminal with its big hotels around, and very bumpy roads around it.

Washington has wonderful streets also. Beautiful government buildings of all kinds. And a lovely capital and grounds. Pennsylvania avenue so famous in all events at the capital, S street with Ex-President Wilson's home, Washington Monument, as well as the Lincoln Memorial neadby are all beautiful. When standing by the Memorial and looking at a big, clear sheet of water in a sunken garden toward the capitol where you can see reflected in its waters the Washington Monument as well as the capitol. Then there is the Riverside Park drive, along the Potomac river and not to forget is the White House and its wonderful surroundings.

I will close this letter by hoping and wishing that the sisters are all enjoying themselves. I have missed the Social Corner page the most since I left, but will get it again.

Best wishes to the editor as well as all the sisters.

I remain as ever.

E. M. R. C. P. (May 7.).

WHO KNOWS HOW TO USE BARBERRIES?

Dear Social Corner Sisters: After being absent all summer, went to the Buckingham Wednesday and had a lovely time.

We had a good crowd out, and I guess every one else planned to do their various errands that afternoon same as I did, as no matter where I went, town hall, library, and every store I went into, I met the sisters.

Chelsea: Was hoping to see you there. Wish your family could grow up so you could leave them occasionally.

True Blue: How is your wrist getting on? You surely had good courage.

I wonder if any of the sisters know how to use barberries as a pickle or relish?

Went for a walk Sunday and found lots and lots and still more lots of them. The bushes looked so pretty hanging full of the bright, red berries.

Brought home a handful of the sprays for a bouquet, and then filled my coat pockets with the berries. Made jell with them using about half apples, and the men folks here like it immensely.

Hope this will get in this Saturday, though I know I should have written and sent it last night.

I never have any of these long winter evenings you hear of; mine are all short, as well as the days and the weeks.

TRIPLETS.

RECIPE FOR APPLE JELLY

Dear Members of the Corner: I thought I must write you a few lines this week as I was disappointed to see so few letters last week. I made up my mind that I would try and do my part in keeping up the Corner. Where are all the sisters gone? Surely their vacations must be nearly over by this time. I have been very busy canning, it is quite a job if you can much but it all helps out when it comes winter time. I thought there was a meeting of the Social Corner this week and was intendink to come over but saw the notice in The Bulletin about it so I thought perhaps it would be later on.

I will send a good recipe for apple jelly.

Apple Jelly: Wash and cup up as many apples as desired taking out poor spots. Put a little water in them and put on to boil with skins on and all. When done squeeze through a cloth, put on stove and put not quite as much sugar as there is apple and boil a few minutes and put in jelly tumblers.

Sisters, wake up and write a few lines to the good Old Corner.

With good luck to all,

BURAL AUNTY.

SURPRISED ON BIRTHDAY.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I was sorry to see so few letters in last Saturday's Social Corner page, and hope there will be more this week. I want to thank the sisters who so kindly remembered my birthday with cards and gifts. I also had a small surprise party that afternoon, when Necia, Blue Bell, Chocolate and Robin came with their fancy work to spend an hour or two. We had a very pleasant time with light refreshments and Blue Bell gave several selections on the piano and little Blue Bell sang a nice little song for us.

We missed Sister Stillwater at our gathering at the Buckingham. When the minute began she was always ready to help out. I will always remember the two pieces she recited, called Little Britches and Gone With a Better Man Than I. They were spoken and acted well. Best wishes for the Corner.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week the republicans in town caucus assembled nominated as their candidate for first selectman, Paul B. Green, with Charles J. Winters and John B. Clark candidates for second and third selectmen, respectively. The democratic party at their caucus the same week selected as their candidate for first selectmen in opposition to Paul B. Green, Archer P Willoughby, with Delano J. Park and Ernest Cady as candidates for the offices of second and third selectmen. Othniel Gager appeared on both tickets as candidate for the office of town clerk and treasurer of the town deposit fund. That week the New London County Agricultural society opened its three day fair.

With the exception of the fair and the party caucusses little out of the ordinary occurred in Norwich that particular week. Interesting extracts, taken from the files of The Bulletin for the last week in September and the first week in October, 1873, are as follows:

Monday, Sept 29, 1873.— The stock entries for the county fair are unusually large; and there will also be a very large number of horses to compete in the various trotting events. The exhibitions in all departments promise to be remarkably fine and indications are that this will be the most successful fair ever held in Norwich.

The managers of the Ella are negotiating for a new boiler for that boat which will enable her to make much better time than heretofore. This is welcome intelligence for if the trip to and from Watch Hill can be made in two hours and a half or three hours sharp and a long stay at the Hill be given excursionists the boat will receive much more patronage from this city and from up the Worcester road.

Still they come. This week, probably on Friday, a fire company from Brookline, Mass., will come here on their return from Newport. They will arrive early in the morning and leave on the 2:15 Worcester train. It is expected that they will be the guests of the big steamer company during their brief stay.

Tuesday, Sept. 30, 1873—Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Lamb received their friends last night, it being the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding. A large number of friends were present upon the auspicious occasion and a very enjoyable time was had, which terminated amid the generally expressed wishes of all that they might meet again twenty-five years hence, at the diamond wedding of the venerable couple.

Owners of dogs will be interested in knowing that hereafter their canines will be put on the list like other property and taxed at the old rate; and in no case shall the tax be abated against the person liable to pay the same.

A meeting of the Central school district was held last evening. Ebenezer Learned was appoined chairman. The report of the board of education was read and accepted. The report of the treasurer was also read and accepted. The following were then re-elected members of the board of education: James Greenwood, Silas Higgins and B. F. Learned. H. H. Osgood was re-elected treasurer and Maron Kinney was re-elected clerk. The meeting then adjourned.

Last Sunday was the fifth anniversary of the ordination and installation of Rev. Daniel Merriman as pastor of the Broadway church, and the reverend gentleman gave in his morning sermon a resume of the doings of the society and church during the preceding five year.

Wednesday, Oct. 1, 1873.—The New London County Agricultural society's fair opened yesterday. As usual, exhibitors were dilatory in bringing in their contributions, but a meager idea of what the fair is to be could be gathered. There was no stock visible, unless poultry can be classed under that name. Of this last there were numerous coops, with some fine specimens in position. The more curious farm implements were represented outside the building by a collection of mowers and plows and a solitary hay rake. There was an extensive display of vegetables and more were constantly arriving. A particularly fine assortment of carriages was on the ground. Today comes off the first trot that has awakened interest in Norwich for a long time. A purse of $300 has been subscribed and as the track is in fairly good condition reasonably good time may be looked for.

The Good Intent Hose company passed through here last night on the steamboat train on the Norwich and Worcester railroad on their way to Newburgh. They were received by the various Norwich fire officials. Their band played and pleasant greetings were exchanged. On their return, according to present arrangements, they will be escorted from the steamboat train, next Saturday morning, to their hotel by a delegation from the Big Steamer company, and thence, later in the day, to the house of the latter company, where they will be served a collation and entertained until their departure at 2.15 o'clock in the afternoon.

Col. Converse and family, who are in Paris, are expected to return by the 18th inst. in the Algeria, owing to the continued illness of Mrs. Converse.

The banks will close at 1 o'clock today, those doing business therein to attend the county fair.

Thursday, Oct. 2, 1873.—Most of the manufacturers and employers in this vicinity have made provisions for paying their operatives in greenbacks so that the panic is not likely to affect Norwich much, if at all.

Much complaint is made of the practice indulged in extensively in Greeneville by boys throwing stones at strangers. Greeneville will probably contribute soon to the state reform school.

Lanterns for the street gas lamps at the portals of the police headquarters and at the front of the court house were mounted yesterday.

In response to the recent appeal made through circulars, on behalf of the Otis Library, upwards of $200 have already been raised. The conditions of the subscriptions are that it shall not be binding unless at least $500 is subscribed by the 15th inst. A number of gentlemen have given their names for $25 each on these terms.

Friday, Oct. 3, 1873—The store on Franklin square recently occupied by Bulkeley and company, commission merchants, is being refitted for occupancy by Currier Bros.

Messrs. John W. Stedman, C. W. Carter and H. C. Albro, officers of the Grand Commandery of this state, and several members of Columbian Commandery of this city, visited Hartford yesterday to attend the Masonic festivities incident to the visit of the Washington commanderies to that city.

The "deaf and dumb" engine, or in other words, the "dummy" for the horse railroad is expected to arrive next week.

Saturday, Oct. 4, 1873—At the republican caucus held at the town hall, last evening the meeting was called to order by Col. Joseph Selden. Amos W. Prentice was chosen chairman, and John C. Kellogg and Edson S. Bishop, secretaries. The caucus proceeded to the nomination of town officers with the following result:

Assessors—Oliver P. Wattles, Increase W. Carpenter, Jonathan W. Hooker.

The democrats in caucus at White's hall last evening adopted the following ticket:

Assessors—Palmer Newton, George M. Loomer, Elijah A. Bill.

Board of Relief — Hiram Crosby, William P. Potter, Turner Stanton.

Selectmen—Archer P. Willoughby, Delano J. Park, Ernest Cady.

Town Clerk and Treasurer of Town Deposit Fund—Othniel Gager.

MARKET WAS UNSETTLED.

New York, Oct. 5.—Speculative sentiment in today's stock market was still unsettled with the main tendency toward lower levels. Professional interests put out new short lines, apparently on the theory that the market's failure to continue the Wednesday rally indicated a vulnerable position, but the selling failed to bring out any extensive liquidation of long stock. Business was again on a reduced scale.

The opening tone was heavy but fairly good support was forthcoming, particularly in the oils, rails, tobaccos and chemicals, and thereafter prices see-sawed within comparatively narrow limits. Stocks were pointed upward in the afternoon but they eased off again just before the close.

Selling pressure was concentrated largely on the motor, rubber, textile and copper shares. Kelly-Springfield was hammered down to 22 3-4, a new low for the year, but it recovered about half of its 2 point loss before the close. Touching-off of stop loss orders also forced inspiration copper to a new low at 24 but it snapped back to 26. American Woolen was sold on the theory that the closing of the Amoskeag mills foreshadowed curtailments in other textile centers. One sale of hydraulic steel preferred was made at 8, a new low and 5 points below the previous transaction.

Numerous other weak spots cropped out during the session including American Writing Paper Preferred, Producers & Refiners, Foundation Company and Burns Bros. Preferred, all off 2 points or more.

Wall street heard reports during the day that some of the big copper companies were contemplating the shutting down of their mills from Friday night until Monday morning until such time as the metal market became more stabilized. Such action, it was pointed out, probably would mean a 20 per cent. reduction in output. Copper stocks on hand are now reported to be equivalent to one month's supply.

Special strength was again shown by certain of the tobacco shares, tobacco products and the A stock and American Tobacco closing about 2 points higher and Liggett & Myers B jumping 10 points. One sale of United Cigar Stores was made at 1135, or 20 points below the previous transactions. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe Common and Preferred broke through to new high ground on reports that current earnings were ranging at the rate of $15 a share.

Chesapeake & Ohio assumed the leadership of the rail group in the late dealings, jumping 2 1-4 points to 65 1-4. This really revived unconfirmed rumors of an increased dividend in the near future. New York Central was again pushed above 102 but fail edto maintain its gain.

The weekly mercantile reviews threw little new light on the business situation. Bradstreet's reported an expansion in fall jobbing and retail trade demands, particularly in the south, but added that caution and conservatism are still the guiding elements, Dun's declares that the situation is uneven, and presents many contrasts, yet a large business is being done in many quarters at prices above those of a year ago, and there are indications that some buyers who are not active in the markets now may before long find it necessary to replenish stocks of goods."

Call money opened at 4 1-2 but advanced to 5 before the close. Time money and commercial paper markets were quiet with no change in rates. Foreign exchanges were firmer, demand sterling being quoted around $4.55 1-2 and French francs around 5.95 cents.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—Although word that President Coolidge and the cabinet were considering farm relief measures had some tonic effect on the wheat market today, buying failed to develop sufficient volume to support values. The close was weak, 1-8c to 3-8c net lower, with December 1.07 1-2 to 1.07 5-8, and May 1.11 3-8c. Corn finished at a range varying from 3-4c@-8c decline to 3-4c advance. Oats 1-8c to 1-4c@3-8c down, and provisions 5c to 25c up.

Aided by an upturn in Liverpool quotations, wheat prices here averaged a little higher during the early dealings and then in response to cabinet news from Washington scored a moderate general advance about midday. Demand, however, seemed to be confined to traders who previously had been selling. As a result, the market sagged when the wants of this class had been filled. In some quarters, the slackness of general buying was associated with supposed discarding of any plan for an immediate increase of import duties on wheat. Advocates of such a tariff change urged that measures to help farmers ninety days hence would come after most of the wheat crop had left the hands of growers.

Increasingly bearish news regarding Canadian wheat production and the crop movement in Canada attracted considerable attention. According to one authority, the wheat crop of the Providence of Alberta will alone total between 175,000,000 and 200,000,000 bushels, instead of 145,000,000 as estimated by the Canadian government. Canadian farm deliveries today were reported heavy and the movement to terminals as about up to railroad ability to furnish cars.

Corn and oats followed wheat, except that old corn continued scarce and rose to new high price records for the season.

Provisions were stronger in line with the hog market.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Oct. 5.—Good buying support was forthcoming for the oil shares in today's curb market and the general list displayed a relatively firm tone. Some selling took place just before the close in sympathy with hte reaction on the "big board."

Standard Oil of Indiana fluctuated within a radius of 1-2 a point, closing 1-4 higher at 56 3-8. Fractional gains also were recorded by Prairie Oil & Gas, Salt Creek producers and Standard Oil of Kentucky. Pennsylvania-Mexico Fuel, which was under pressure a short time ago, jumped 7 1-2 points to 28 1-2, but reacted a point before the close. International Petroleum, Mutual Oil and Humble Oil reacted slightly.

One of the features of the industrial division was a 28 point jump in Ford Motors of Canada on publication of an official denial by Mr. Ford that he intended to squeeze out the minority stockholders. McCrary Stores touched a new top at 7 1-2. Glen Alden Coal was another strong spot. Motors showed little change.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Oct. 5.—Today's bond market displayed a distinctly better tone although closing prices in many instances were below the day's best levels. At the same time investment bankers and bond salesmen reported a brisk increase in public buying for investment purposes.

The apparent change in sentiment in the bond market, despite a further falling off in stock prices, was attributed by bankers to the ready response which met the unusually large offering of new bonds on Wednesday.

Active United States government bonds either held steady or improved with the single exception of the treasury 4 1-4s which eased slightly. Foreign bonds were dull and irregular.

The major portion of the day's trading was centered in the railroad group where the favorable earnings statements for Class 1 roads for August influenced a healthy demand, for a wide assortment of issues. Industrials were inclined to be heavy, although Marine 6s moved up 2 1-2 points at one time, only to lose practically all of this gain later.

Efforts of Illinois to dispose of approximately $20,000,000 worth of bonds are handicapped, bankers stated, not alone by the state's desire to offer them with a 4 1-2 per cent coupon but even to a greater extent by the fact that interest payments would be made at Springfield, Ill., and on an annual basis.

Jewett City people were elated over the possibility that the big dirigible ZR-1, may pass over the borough today in its New England ight. Some have signified their intention to go to New London this morning, hoping to get a glimpse of the great airship. In the afternoon, during his homeward flight, some thought this borough would be in line. The air course from Springfield, Mass., to New London, was looked up Friday and found to be 20 to 24 miles west of Jewett City. And she will pass over a point about 4 to 6 miles west of Williamntic. In the morning this town is out of it, as the scheduled route is eastward, down the coast to Point Judith.

A large audience at Finn Opera house Friday evening was delighted with the picture, Norma Talmadge in Smilin' Through. The new management of this popular playhouse is realizing just what they expected to, when they inaugurated the new order of things. There are higher class pictures with correspondingly larger and better pleased audiences.

There are two or three tame gray squirrels making their homes in trees and secluded places about the lawns of the borough. Some have been so fortunate as to have shy Mr. Gray eat from their hands. It is contrary to law to short a squirrel within a borough, city or public park.

Nobles of the Mystic Shrine R. J. Guy, James Blair, J. H. Tracy, E. A. Faust, E. H. Chapman, Carle Munn attended the recent Shriners' celebration in Providence, when Palestine Temple entertained. While there they were pleased to meet Arthur E. Swift, formerly of Jewett City, solo trombone in the famous Palestine Temple band. The visiting brethren from the borough were the local representatives of Sphinx Temple, of Hartford. The burlesque marching and drill maneuvers of the so-called "wooden soldiers" of Mecca Temple, Brooklyn, N. Y., were among the many amusements which the local men enjoyed. They were wound up with a great crank with much clattering of ratchets.

Chester Dudkowski, treasurer of the Jewett City Trust company, is off on a week's vacation in Canada.

Mrs. J. R. Johnston and son of Hartford are guests of Mrs. Johnston's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Tracy.

W. B. Lawson, of Hartford, a former railway postal clerk, running between Boston and New York, was a caller on E. H. Hiscox Thursday. Mr. Lawson is now with Alton E. Woodford, an insurance firm of Hartford.

The Harmony club was entertained Friday afternoon at the home of Miss S. K. Adams on South Main street. Mrs. T. B. Keen of Norwich was present.

Dr. G. H. Jennings has received a letter from his daughter, Mrs. Mary Jennings Gregg, a resident of Berkeley, Cal. Their home was in the path of the terrible fire which devastated a large part of that city. When it became apparent that their house must go, they gathered their more valuable belongings, some of them priceless, into quilts which they tied into great packs. Added to all their terror was the fact that their little girl was lost all day long, a wanderer on the streets of the burning city. At last the firt burned on so fast that even the bundles of clothing, with which they tried to escape, had to be abandoned, that they might save their lives. Everything was lost, except the clothing they wore. Prof. Gregg, just returned from a trip abroad, had a collection of very valuable photographs and souvenirs which were lost. Fortunately they have secured tenement accommodations for the winter. Mrs. Gregg's husband is Prof. John Gregg of the University of California. Friends here have sent expressions of sympathy to Mrs. Gregg, a native of Jewett City.

A little girl about two feet high, clasping a doll nearly as large as herself, attracted attention Friday forenoon as she made her way right in the middle of the road, down the state highway. Automobiles turned out both ways. No uniformed and ornate traffic cop was ever a more absolute monarch of the road. Finally a passing citizen took charge of the little tot, who would give no information. Soon, away up the line, was to be seen a woman approaching at some speed. It was not long before mama had the little runaway in her arms, doll and all. Traffic moved again, and there was noted a pleased smile in the eyes of the passersby.

Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Finn attended Springfield and Brockton fairs. Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Finn, Jr., visited the Brockton fair.

SECURES SECOND DIVORCE AFTER SECOND MARRIAGE TO SAME MAN

Six divorces, all of them except one for desertion, were granted by Judge Isaac Wolfe in the superior court at New London Friday morning. The seventh case on the list, Anna E. Dawes vs. Frederick L. Dawes, went off the list.

One of the divorces granted presented the novel instance of being the second time the wife has obtained a divorce from the same husband.

Mattie E. Beckwith of New London secured divorce from James Allen Beckwith of that city whom she married March 12, 1921. She alleged cruelty since April 1, 1921. This was the second time she has secured divorce from Mr. Beckwith. They were first married Sept. 20, 1890, at that time her maiden name being Mattie Briggs. She secured a divorce Feb. 21, 1919, from her husband on the ground of habitual intemperance. At that time Mrs. Beckwith said that her husband had been habitually intemperate since their marriage, that he had grown worse during the ten years preceding the divorce.

Mr. and Mrs. Beckwith were remarried, however, on March 12, 1921.

Friday morning Mrs. Beckwith appeared before Judge Wolfe in the superior court asking for a second divorce from her husband. The ground this time was intolerable cruelty which was alleged from April 1, following the second marriage. Mr. Beckwith did not contest the action.

Mrs. Beckwith testified that her husband had been mistreating and abusing her, saying that he choked and struck her.

Mrs. Natalie Utoff of New York, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Beckwith, testified that her mother had visited her in New York and that she was a nervous wreck.

Mrs. Nellie Dowsett of New London testified that she did sewing for Mrs. Beckwith at the hotel and said that on at least one occasion when she went there she had heard Mrs. Beckwith scream and that Mr. Beckwith came out of the apartment a few seconds later.

Dr. John G. Stanton testified to having treated Mrs. Beckwith for bruises and injuries which he had been informed were caused by Mr. Beckwith striking her.

At the conclusion of the testimony, which lasted only a few minutes, Judge Wolfe granted Mrs. Beckwith the divorce.

Mr. Beckwith is a son of former Mayor Cyrus G. Beckwith of New London and was formerly employed by the city highway department.

Ora Rondeau Rabideau of Griswold was granted divorce from William Rabideau of parts unknown on the ground of desertion April 16, 1920. They were married on the same date four years before.

Edward Goudy Morgan of Groton was given divorce from Jennie Maynard Morgan of Groton and the custody of three children, aged 8, 7 and 5. The couple was married at Killingly Sept. 25, 1912, and the husband alleged desertion on Nov. 7, 1919.

James Noble of Griswold secured divorce from Isabelle Oldershaw Noble, now of parts unknown. They were married May 25, 1902, and he alleged desertion on May 9, 1919.

Desertion since April 1, 1920, was the ground upon which George Arthur Du Bois of New London was granted divorce from Hope Waldron Du Bois of Dighton, Mass. They were married Aug. 16, 1918.

Elizabeth Lafiamme McGill of Griswold had her petition granted for divorce from Thomas McGill, formerly of Griswold, now of parts unknown. They were married Jan. 20 ,1916, and she alleged desertion on March 30, 1916. The court gave her the custody of a six-year-old daughter.

SUSPENSION FOR FAILURE TO REPORT ACCIDENTS

Motor vehicle operators who fail to respond within two weeks to the request of the state motor vehicle department that they formally report accidents in which they have figured will be subject to suspension without further notice, according to a decision announced Friday by Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel.

Under a system that has been followed for some time past, the policy of the department has been to send, by regular first class mail, to each operator reported to have been involved in a motor vehicle accident a blank form upon which he or she was asked to make the sworn report required by law of the facts and circumstances of the accident. Failing to receive a reply with in one week, the department, assuming that the letter has not been received by the operator involved, has sent him a second blank by registered mail with a request that it be filled out and returned to the department at once. If the operator, by signing a receipt for such registered letter, acknowledges that the blank reached him, and still fails to comply with the request for a prompt report, his license is suspended without further notice by the department of the report, properly sworn to, is not received at the department within two weeks of the date when the blank was sent.

NEAR EAST APPEALING FOR AMERICA'S HELP

Word received last week from the Near East office in New York by a member of the Norwich Near East committee tells of the need of American relief in the Near East, this need being as great as it ever was. The letter says, "With such pitiable poverty there it seems as if we never would catch up. Just one illustration. I went down to the dock at Constantinople and saw two barges come in, 3,000 people, sickly, half-starved, helpless, hopeless refugees in rags or nakedness, wretched beyond belief unless you once see it with your own eyes. "They go to Near East relief," said the matter-of-fact dock-master, "a dribble from where they come from." And I thought back to my America with bounties heaped up and riches stored up. God help us to pour out rivers, not dribbles, of relief."

Sec. C. V. Vickery says, "No one who is conversant with the situation doubts for a minute that these thousands of innocent helpless men, women and children, exiled from their homes in the interior stranded at the seaport and unable either to go forward to new homes or back to their old, would die by the thousands if Near East relief should discontinue their feeding." "We have been taking food and resources from orphanage warehouses to feed the refugees and this threatens disaster to our orphanage work."

In May last, letters were received in Norwich and in other towns in New London county asking cooperation with the committee of Near East relief by accepting for sale a consignment of handkerchiefs made by work which had been given to refugee women, stating that wages paid them "keep their families from starvation." Recently received is a letter saying "We are in receipt of your letter with check enclosed for $24.50, final payment on the consignment of $74.10 sent in May. We wish to thank you and your society for the time and effort put into this sale and assure you that the proceeds will be of material help in carrying out this reconstructive phase of the Committee's work." Of this sum $30 was raised at the conference of the six churches held in Hanover through the efforts of the women there.

WOMAN DIES SUDDENLY AT BURNETT'S CORNERS

Mrs. Jane E. White, widow of C. Prentice White, died suddenly Friday morning, in her 73rd year, at her home Burnett's Corners, Old Mystic, as she lay in bed shortly after breakfast.

Mrs. White arose at the usual time and took breakfast, apparently in the best of health. She had not been ailing and had not been known to suffer from heart disease which is believed to be the cause of her death. After breakfast Mrs. White went back to bed and at 9 o'clock was discovered dead by her daughter, Mrs. John E. Godfrey, who lives in the same house.

Mrs. White was born in Stonington, August 25, 1851. She was the daughter of Samuel Prentice and Amanda (Avery) Wheeler. She is survived by her daughter, who lived with her and a son, Daniel P. White of North Stonington.

FRANCE BELIEVES THAT GERMANY NEEDS WATCHING

Speech of German Chancellor Stresemann in the Reichstag Saturday Received Chilly Recepton—Poincare Tells of 30,000 Persons Meeting in Dusseldorf for Manifestation in Favor of Local Autonomy—German Police Opened Fire on the Inoffensive Crowd—War Time Measures Proposed by Bavarian Leaders.

Paris, Oct. 7.—A chilly reception has been given the speech of the German Chancellor Stresemann in the reichstag on Saturday in Paris official circles. It is considered to have been a strange blending of humility and veiled threats and totally unsuccessful in allaying French suspicions against Germany. While recognizing the chancellor's eloquence, parliamentary skill and courage, it was pointed out in official quarters today that his attitude toward the nationalists and Bavaria remained equivocal.

The belief was expressed that the new German cabinet, after it has obtained full powers and dissolved the reichstag, may develop into a dictatorship of the parties of the right after all the socialists are dropped and replaced by nationalists.

It was said today that the speech of the chancellor would strengthen French opinion that Berlin needs watching as closely as ever. The Temps says a union of the allies remains indispensable in order to keep Germany along the road to democracy and peace.

POINCARE'S ADDRESSES IN DEPARTMENT OF MEUSE

Paris, Oct. 7 (By the A. P.)—Premier Poincare today delivered two speeches in the department of the Meuse. The first was this morning at Pierrefitte and contained a reference to David Lloyd GeGorge, former British premier, when he touched upon "former ministers who regularly disparage France's policy in weekly articles or who continue their campaign by undertaking resounding lecture tours."

In both speeches M. Poincare appealed for support for a new issue of treasury bills, the proceeds of which are to be devoted entirely to the devastated region. In his second speech at Ligny-en-Barrois he replied to the German charges of inhuman conduct by the French and Belgians in German occupied territory by contrasting the treatment of the people of Duesseldorf by the police last Sunday with the treatment of the inhabitants by the French and Belgian soldiers.

Thirty thousand persons, said the premier, had met in Duesseldorf for a manifestative in favor of local autonomy. "Suddenly," he declared, "a detachment of German police left their barracks and opened fire on the inoffensive crowd without preliminary warning. The Green police threequarters of an hour later, without reason, fired on a group of Rhinelanders awaiting trains."

M. Poincare said the French troops restored order without shedding a drop of blood. "They ended the carnage which the Germans were committing," he exclaimed. There were two hundred casualties on that day, while French and Belgian sentinels often were attacked but never fired without a warning. During the whole period of occupation there have been only sixty-four persons killed in the Ruhr and twenty-eight in the earlier occupied area."

The Germans, said the premier, had attributed responsibility for the German governmental crisis to French policy. France, they argued, ought to have shown more haste in opening negotiations; France ought to have accepted equivocal words and contradictory measures as ready money; France ought to have believed the reach sincerely was disavowing passive resistance the moment it was paying three months' salaries to the railroad men in advance to continue the strike.

"Whoever may be called to direct the destinies of Germany," said M. Poincare, "we intend to remain faithful to ourselves. We shall continue to demand permanent guarantees of security and the sum total of our reparations."

M. Poincare said he had answered words from across the channel which had said, "You are wrong in attaching yourself so obstinately to the Versailles treaty, which is not executable" by asking, "Then, why did you sign it? Why did you draw up the essential clauses?"

The premier then took up the criticism addressed to France to the effect that it was impossible for Germany to pay what she owed and that the occupation of the Ruhr was not a good method for obtaining payment. He said that when Essen was occupied, Germany already had declared herself incapable of paying and had demanded a moratorium of several years. "If we had not occupied the Ruhr," he declared, "we should be as today, facing a defaulting debtor but without security. Now, on the contrary, we hold guarantees."

When dealing with the Ruhr policy, M. Poincare made reference to Mr. Baldwin, the British premier, as follows:

"Like the British premier, I do not believe there is irreducable opposition between our point of view and that of the London cabinet."

STREET CAR FARES IN BERLIN 10,000,000 MARKS

Berlin, Oct. 7 (By the A. P.)—Street car fares in Berlin will be advanced from 4,500,000 marks to 10,000,000 marks October 10. The fare, however, probably again will be speedily raised, as ten million marks was the charge fixed when the dollar was quoted at five hundred million marks. The dollar quotations now has almost reached a billion marks.

WARTIME MEASURES PROPOSED IN BAVARIA

Munich, Bavaria, Oct. 7 (By the A. P.).—Patriotic wartime measures such as women and girls cutting off their hair for the market, the sale of wedding rings and family treasures are proposed by the Bavarian leaders, who assert that they and thousands of others are eager to aid the fatherland to regain a permanent place in world affairs. They contend that Bavarians generally are prepared to go the limit to assist Germany to hold together, and ridicule the idea that Munich desires to break away entirely from Berlin.

These patriots frankly admit that they disapprove of the central government's ways of doing many things, and Bavarians have been fretting for fear the bad influences of hte "deteriorated capital", will indefinitely hinder the proper reconstruction of the reich. A state commissary general was appointed, it is explained, because General Ludendorff and Adolph Hitler appearde to be gaining power and, it was believed, thought themselves strong enough to establish a reactionary dictatorship.

The establishment of the Von Kahr dictatorship is regarded in many quarters as a deed of special courage, as the government also believed that Hitler was gaining followers.

The economic situation already shows improvement, after a decline in production, which was causing many manufacturers and retailers to lose confidence

BRITISH RUHR POLICY IS REGARDED AS FEEBLE

London, Oct. 7 (By the A. P.).—Strong criticism of what is described as "the feebleness" of the British Ruhr policy as revealed by the recent speeches of Premier Baldwin and Lord Curzon, secretary for foreign affairs, in no longer confined to a few labor or pro-French newspapers but is becoming quite general. The more responsible organs had awaited Lord Curzon's speech at the imperial economic conference before forming decided opinions, but now that the foreign secretary speaks only of waiting for the French proposals, the chorus of disapproval grows apace and ranges from quiet irony at the expense of what the Sunday Observer calls Curzon's policy of "undisguised anxiety" to downright denunciation of the government's surrender to Premier Poincare.

Among the less responsible papers suggestions are made that the surrender is the price of a deal—that M. Poincare bought freedom to act against Germany by a concession to the British viewpoint on the future status of Tangier and by siding with England to bring pressure to induce Mussolini to evacuate Corfu, and that this explains why nothing now is heard about independent action on the part of England or separate negotiations with Germany.

POINCARE SUPPORTED BY FORMER PREMIER BRIAND

Nantes, France, Oct. 7 (By the A. P.).—Former Premier Briand, who replaced by Premier Poincare as head of the French government in January, 1922, when the French chamber of deputies judged M. Briands' policy toward Germany too lenient, today delivered an address to the people of the Nantes region. He referred to the situation in the Ruhr and the Rhineland and called upon all Frenchmen to stand with the French government and assist it in accomplishing its arduous task.

"The question of internal politics must disappear when such momentous problems of foreign policy are pending," said M. Briand. "I consider security the most important question facing France today. Reparations, while also vital, must cede first place to security."

INTERNATIONAL PRECEDENCE WAS VIOLATED BY MEXICO

Caracas, Venezuela, Oct. 7 (By the A. P.).—The action of the Mexican government in suspending the exequatur of the Venezuelan minister at Mexico City, according to the Venezuelan minister of foreign affairs, was not in conformity with international procedure, and has led to the belief that the exclusion of a Mexican theatrical company from Venezuela, upon which the action of the Mexican government was based, was only a pretext for a rupture by elements there openly hostile to Venezuela.

The foreign minister declares that the government has reason to believe that undesirable foreigners have been secretly attempting to enter Venezuela by intermingling with theatrical companies. This called for special police vigilance, resulting in the exclusion of the Mexican company.

PASTORAL STAFF PRESENTED BISHOP WM. T. MANING

New York, Oct. 7.—The presentation of blessings and a pastoral staff was made today by the bishop, clergy and laity of London to Bishop William T. Manning in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. The staff was presented the Canon W. H. Carnegie, sub-dean of Westminster abbey, and chaplain of the house of commons.

Canon Carnegie said the gift was "a symbol of the love which subsists between the two great branches of the Anglican communion, of the cordial friendship between the two great sections of the Anglo-Saxon peoples, and of the profound respect that is felt for Bishop Mannings character, pastoral labors and zeal in the cause of religious unity."

The staff is of silver gilt, enriched with enamel.

WOULD USE THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE IN SYNAGOGUES

New York, Oct. 7.—The survival of Jewry in America depends not a little upon the use of the English language in synagogues, Louis Marshall, honorary chairman of the Jewish Theological seminary endowment fund, declared today at the opening of a convention of that body.

"We need teachers, preachers and rabbis who can address Jewish children in a language which they understand, and which will appeal to them" said Mr. Marshall.

Mr. Marshall said that unless future generations of Jews were to be estranged from the synagogue rabbis, preachers and teachers must be educated to speak English correctly, "and without the European accent."

CONVICTS FOUND DEAD IN BARRICADED BUILDING

Eddyville, Ky., Oct. 7 (By the A. P.)—Two new graves in the cemetery of the western Kentucky state penitentiary and the bullet-scarred mess hall were reminders today of the desperate last stand of a trio of convict murderers who killed three guards, were besieged for eighty-one hours in the mess hall, and found dead from bullet wounds when a storming party entered the barricaded building late yesterday afternoon.

Members of the storming party entered the mess hall after it had been filled with ammonia fumes and found Monte Walters, Lawrence Griffith and Harry Ferland, stiff in death.

All of the gunmen had been dead for at least thirty-six hours and in the cases of Griffith and Ferland, whose wounds indicated death from suicide, opinion was expressed that the end might have come forty-eight hours before the siege was raised. Walters, believed to have been the last to die, was shot through the head and had been struck by a rifle grenade.

Prison routine, disrupted when the gunmen shot four guards, three fatally, in an attempt to win clear of the prison Wednesday morning and then were cornered in the mess hall, practically was restored to normal.

Electric power lines, cut by bullets fired by the besieging forces, with a result that lights and water, the latter from electrically driven pumps, for the prison and the town of Eddyville, had been repaired.

Prison authorities today were faced with the problem of repairing the equipment in the prison kitchen, located on the ground floor of the bullet-torn mess hall. The prison dining room was on the second floor of the building held by the desperadoes and during the siege it was necessary to feed the approximately 530 prisoners in their cells with emergency rations and food cooked in the small kitchens of the prison hospital and the warden's quarters.

Authorities are expected to initiate investigation to determine the manner in which Walters and his companions obtained the pistols with which they fatally wounded guards Hodge Cunningham, V. B. Mattingly and W. P. Gilbert and shot William Gillihan seriously.

Mrs. Lillian Walters, widow of the dead gunman, is held by police in Louisville for questioning in connection with the break for liberty by the desperate trio.

OKLAHOMA ASSEMBLY TO CONVENE THURSDAY

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 7.—(By the A. P.)—Oklahoma's political civil war was lulled today by a calm enveloping both gubernatorial and legislative headquarters on the eve of an extraordinary session of the state assembly called for next Thursday by Governor J. C. Walton.

Governor Walton apparently has entrenched himself in his residence, from which all executive affairs on the state have been conducted for more than a month.

Governor Walton's call demanded investigation of the Ku Klux Klan in Oklahoma on the basis of testimony given before various military courts since August 16 last.

Impeachment proceedings begun by the house and laid before the senate as a jury, may be legally insisted at any time, it is generally believed. The Walton call, therefore, apparently brings investigation of his own office one week nearer.

Political Forecast By Nicholas M. Butler

Predicts Republican Victory in Next Presidential Election.

New York, Oct. 7.—A wild platform or a wild candidate cannot possibly win the election of 1924, Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, and prominent in republican circles, declared in a statement today. The pivotal states are likely to include Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Illinois and Missouri, he said.

President Butler declared in his statement that the election last July of Senator Magnus Johnson, was not so much indicative of a change of voters from republican to farmer labor party as a sign that the "stay-at-home" republican voters did not support his opponent.

"Of New York and New Jersey, I can speak from personal knowledge, and as to the other states named. I have heard the opinions of leading men in each state. The electoral vote of these states cannot be had for either a wild candidate or a wild platform. If there be those who propose to tie up the republican party to economic heresies and to acts of legislation and administration out of harmony with American principles and American tradions, they may just as well understand now as later that such a course will lead to the loss of the presidential election in 1924. On the other hand a program of progress and broad vision in accordance with tested republican principles, will lead to almost certain victory.

"The more the Minnesota figures are analyzed," he said, "and the more closely the situation in that state is studied, the clearer does it become that a republican candidate running on a purely republican platform of constructive liberalism, will carry Minnesota in 1924.

NURSE WAS SLAIN NEAR HOSPITAL IN FITTSBURGH

JOURNALISTIC EVENTS IN ENGLAND THIS WEEK

London, Oct. 7.—Two novel journalistic events will take place in England next week. Great Britain's oldest scientific weekly, The Lancet, will celebrate its 100th anniversary, and T. P. O'Connor, the famous Irish editor, patriarch of Fleet street and "Father of the House of Commons," will resume publication of his picturesque T. P.'s Weekly, which is known around the world for its human interest.

Since its foundation in 1823 The Lancet has announced to the world some of the most momentous discoveries of medical science and has been identified with every notable movement for medical reform, the suppression of quackery and the adulteration of food and drugs. When the publication began its career anaesthetics had not been discovered, while antiseptics did not appear until twenty years later, and bacteriology only made its advent in the early '70s.

The Lancet was in the forefront of the campaign to put these epic discoveries into universal use, and its anniversary number this week will summarise the part its editors played in the great fight made in behalf of these medical innovations in the last century.

In announcing his decision to revive T. P.'s Weekly, Mr. O'Connor, who recently celebrated his 75th birthday, said:

"My resolution to resume publication is largely due to the innumerable appeals I have had from all parts of the world, especially the United States, for a renewal of the pleasure and instruction which the old T. P.'s Weekly was credited with giving.

"However, the new paper will not be a one-man paper. I hope every line of it will have inspiration and brilliancy from eminent collaborators. In its editorial makeup I shall have the help of men now in great positions who more or less began their literary lives with me."

GREEK CATHOLIC PRIEST SHOT BY WOMAN IN CHICAGO

Deed Committed While Ostensibly making a Confession—Woman Declares That the Slain Priest Had Accused Her Husband, Also a Greek Catholic Priest, of Misappropriating Church Funds—Had Waited Nine Days for Favorable Opportunity to Kill the Priest.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—The Rev. Basil Sletsuk, Greek Catholic priest, was shot and killed by Mrs. Emily Strutynsky, of Ramey, Pa., as she knelt before him, ostensibly to make a confession, at the nine o'clock mass at the St. Michael's Greek Catholic church here today.

Mrs. Strutynsky declared to the police that the Rev. Sletsuk had accused her husband, himself a Greek Catholic priest, at Ramey, of Misappropriating church fund while he was minister to a Chicago congregation.

She declared the alleged charges were false and said she came to Chicago from Ramey, nine days ago for the express purpose of slaying the priest to avenge whath she believed the wrong of her husband. She went to church last Sunday, she said, but the opportunity to kill the priest did not present itself, and she decided to wait until today.

About 300 worshippers sat in the pews of the church as Mrs. Strutynsky heavily veiled, walked down the middle aisle, to the alter, and then to the confessional box, at the right. There, out of sight of the congregation, she knelt as though to offer confession, but instead drew a pistol from the folds of her dress and fired five shots at the priest, standing before her.

Two of the bullets passed through his head. Exclaiming: "Oh, God, help me," the Rev. Sletuk staggered to the main aisle and the steps of the church where he collapsed. He died in an ambulance on the way to a hospital.

Members of the congregation were thrown into a panic, but two women seized Mrs. Strutynsky as she emerged from behind the alter, the pistol still held in her hand.

At the police station where she was taken the woman without hesitation told her story.

Mrs. Strutynsky, 44-years of age and the mother of two children, said that her husband ever a year ago obtained more than $100,000 by subscription to build a Greek Catholic church here. The Rev. Sletsuk, she said, poed as a friend of her husband, but advised his congregation not to attend thte new church, and, she declared, circulated reports that her husband had appropriated part of the subscriptions money to his own.

These reports, she said, were false. She charged that the Rev. Sletsuk himself, had appropriated some of the money. The Rev. Sletsuk, 36-years old, according to the story told police by members of the congregation, was formerly secretary to Bishop Stefan Letinsky, Greek Catholic bishop in Philadelphia, who died in 1916. Mrs. Strutynsky charged that the Rev. Sletsuk had accused the bishop also of misappropriating church funds.

SIX MEN KILLED BY GAS EXPLOSION IN PALISADES, COL.

Denver, Col., Oct. 7.—A gas explosion at noon today in the mine of the Midwest Coal Company, at Palisades, Colorado, killed Walter Scott, the manager, and five men. Only one body has been recovered, that of a man named McKey. The other dead are said to be Harvey Keys and sons. The mine was set afire by the explosion and is still burning, according to reports received here.

The dead are: Robert P. Scott, manager; J. M. Keys and three sons, Harvey Keys, W. B. Keys and Robert T. Keys; and George McKee. McKee had entered the service of the company today, and this was his first shift.

The government mine rescue crew that was figghting the fire in the Bookcliffe mine arrived at the scene of the accident, an hour after the explosion. Members of the rescue equad wearing helmets, entered the mine and located four bodies. One body was removed and it is hoped to get the others tonight.

Jim Benda, the other miner in the workings at the time of the explosion, was badly burned. He crawled three-quarters of a mile through the smoke and gas to safety. It is said he will recover.

The usual force at the Mid-West mine is forty men, but only a short clean-up crew was at work today. Superintendent Scott had entered the mine on an inspection trip.

The explosion wrecked the mine badly, it is said. The mine entry is far up on the side of Grand Mesa, above Palisades.

OBJECTS TO BILL OF FARE IN FRENCH ON STEAMERS

Washington, Oct. 7.—Representative Fred A. Britten, of Illinois, wants to know why a hungry passenger on the Leviathan with an appetite for an ordinary dish of calves liver has to order foie de veau aix fine herbes et larde, and he has put it squarely up to chairman Farley, of the shipping board.

"Why," asked the Illinois congressman, in a letter to the chairman today, "why, make chicken hash impossible by calling it, hachis de volaille aux haricots verts?"

Mr. Britten recently returned from a trip abroad, told Mr. Farley the food on the Leviathan menu was excellent but that only a portion of the waiters and two per cent. of the passengers knew what it was all about. Even the head waiter, he said, apologized for his failure to properly interpret an order for "gigot de paulliac boulangere," and persons wanting eggs had a hard time choosing between "oufs brouille aux rognons," at 70 cents and "ouef cocette a la creme," at 40 cent.

The fish course, Mr. Britten said, offered a fine aggregation of unpronouncable dishes at reasonable prices, but he doubted if even so well known an epicure," as you, My Dear Farley, "could intelligently choose between, "maquereau grille buerre d'anchois," at 80 cents, and "merians en lorgnette," at 70 cents.

In the third class cabins however, Mr. Britten said, where generally no English is spoken, the bills of fare are printed in English.

According to Sullivan, he went to his wife's apartment tonight and after they had talked a short time, she put on her hat and said that she was going out.

As she approached the door, Sullivan shot her in the back, he said. Two other bullets entered her breast. Taken to the hospital, he was identified by Mrs. Sullivan. He was charged with assault with intent to kill.

In her divorce suit, which was listed as uncontested, Mrs. Sullivan charged cruel and abusive treatment, alleged that her life had been threatened and charged non-support.

Washington, Oct. 7.—The special commission of government officials, headed by Managing Director Meyer, of the War Finance corporation, left Washington today to go among the wheat farmers of the central northwest to carry out President Coolidge's direction to aid in the promotion of cooperative marketing associations. Mr. Meyer was accompanied by Frank W. Mondell, a director of the War Finance corporation, and H. S. Yoke, of the bureau of agricultural economics, department of agriculture, the other two members of the commission, and Floyd R. Harrison, the managing director's assistant.

The delegation will stop in Chicago where a series of conferences is planned for tomorrow by which the Itinerary of the trip thereafter will be determined. The three officials carried with them detailed data of methods in use by the cotton, rice and tobacco growers of the south and the fruit growers of California in cooperative marketing, and are prepared also to explain to the producers how the government may aid them in a financial way.

President Coolidge took another step today to gather information as to what may be done to encourage or aid the formation of cooperatives. He called former Senator Nelson, of Minnesota, to the White House for a conference at which the latter went over legislation he had fostered in the last congress designed to encourage cooperative marketing. The whole subject of cooperative marketing was gone over at the conference.

PRICE OF FRENCH AUTOS MARKED UP 10 PER CENT.

Paris, Oct. 7.—French automobiles were found to be marked up on the average of about ten per cent. when the 1924 models were presented at the automobile salon, officially inaugurated yesterday by President Millerand.

The higher prices are the most striking change, but there are many slight modifications in the machines themselves, such as the increased use of brakes on all four wheels, better electrical equipment, more high speed motors and greater tendancy toward the tapering body design, both front and rear. Eight cylinder engines are fewer and there is concentration on small motors, because of the excessive operating expense of the higher powered cars in France.

The increased prices are mainly attributed to the steadily mounting costs of raw materials, particularly coke.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office

The call of the convention for larger numbers at the annual town meeting was answered, as the meeting held Saturday afternoon in the town hall was the best attended in 15 years. The record was aided the most harmonious held in many days. For the first time in seven years there was no one present to oppose the amount asked by the board school committee for conducting the town schools during the ensuing year. Only one item on the school proposition was discussed to any extent, and that was concerning the appropriation of $5,000 to obtain a sufficient water supply, grade the grounds and complete the furnishings at the new Windham Center schools. George F. Taylor, chairman of the building committee, explained that artesian wells would have to be dug. William F. Lincoln was chosen moderator of the meeting and Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton read the warning. Of the 82 persons present, about half were women, and most of the number were from Windham Center.

Of the 14 articles in the warning, four were acted on Monday at the polls, including the balloting for candidates for town offices, and constitutional amendment. Reports of the town officers, which were distributed at the polling places on election day, were accepted at Saturday's meeting.

The selectmen and treasurer were authorized to borrow on specific notes or otherwise from time to time such amounts of money as may be necessary to meet the current expenses of the town for the ensuing year.

The following appropriations were voted: $135,000 for the support of public schools; $900 for the Willimantic Welfare Bureau; $950 for St. Joseph's Hospital; $100 for the Windham Center library; $5,000 for water supply for the new school building at Windham, furnishings and completing the grading of the school grounds.

It was also voted to accept the proposition in the matter of state aid roads for the allotment to Windham of $20,000. Under the plan, if the state allows Windham the full allotment, the town will share $5,000 or one-quarter of the expense.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the board of selectmen to sell and convey the old school building and land at Windham Center to the best advantage.

No action was taken on the sale of the town spare land on which the new schoolhouse at Windham Center now stands. The sale of the land was to have been for the purpose of straightening out the boundary line between the school and the McGuire property adjoining. Adjournment was taken at 2:40 o'clock after a 38-minute session.

The controversy at Lake Wangumbaug, South Coventry, stirred up early last August when the state board of health posted signs prohibiting bathing in the lake water, under the assumption that it was a public water supply controlled by the South Coventry Water company, was brought before the state public health council at Hartford Friday. The bathers and the water company were represented at the meeting. Major John Buckley, the attorney for the cottagers' protective association, requested that the water company be prohibited from taking water from the lake, after relating points made in a petition to the council. Curtis Death, secretary and director of the water company, denied the position of the company. The matter was taken into consideration by the council and another meeting will probably be held later this month and some definite action taken.

Miss Mary Kelley was recently given a miscellaneous shower in honor of her approaching marriage with James Squires. The affair was held at the home of her sister, Mrs. Mildred Rushford. ## ANNOUNCEMENTS

Buster Keaton Has a Massive Production in "Three Ages," His First Feature Comedy at the Bread Today and Tomorrow.

"Three Ages," Buster Keaton's first full length feature, is the feature attraction at the Breed theatre today and tomorrow. Keaton has deserted the two-reel slap-stick comedies, and will henceforth star in comedies of feature-attraction.

"Three Ages" is classed as a burlesque on love, marriage and business. Beginning with primitive man Keaton depicts vividly the life of the cave man era and then swings in to the triumphant period of the Roman Empire. Here there are several massive scenes, principally among which is a duplication of the famous Coliseum. Several thousand people participate in this scene where Keaton makes a brilliant hit as a Roman noble matched in a chariot race with an envious rival.

The modern age comes in for its bit also as it is Keaton's purpose to show how little human nature has changed in the course of the centuries. Apparently inventive ingenuity has changed little, too, for Keaton's remarkable satire is based on a duplication of scenes and events in these three far-flung settings.

Keaton leaps lightly over the centuries. In each age the dominant note is comedy. "Three Ages" is said to be the funniest picture Keaton has ever made, and in addition is a great departure from the beaten track of screen stories.

"Three Ages" was directed by Buster Keaton and Eddie Cline from the story by Jean Harves, Joe Mitchell and Clyde Bruckman. It was photographed by William McGann and Elgin Lesley. Fred Gabourl was art director. It is a Joseph M. Schenck presentation through Metro.

Mary Astor will also be seen in The Beggar Maid, adapted from Tennyson's poem of the same name and the Pathe news will complete the bill.

Harold Lloyd Scores Another Knockout at the Broadway.

"If a comparison is to be made of the funny business of the screen for the last year, honors must go to Mr. Lloyd."

So wrote Quinn Martin screen editor of the New York World, and judging by the screams of laughter which greeted Harold Lloyd's newest Pathe comedy in five parts, "Dr Jack," yesterday at the Broadway theatre, this writer fully agrees with Mr. Martin and offers to go him one better.

"Dr. Jack" is a delicious conglomeration of everything one could hope for in a super-comedy. And everything seems everlasting and one never knows what to expect, except that the next laugh will be louder than the first. As a fun-maker, Mr. Lloyd has reached the pinnacle, but in "Dr. Jack" he has also established himself as a runner-up for honors with the screen's greatest lovers, as his love scene with Mildred Davis seemed to us to be one of the most delightful we have ever witnessed.

Besides all this, "Dr. Jack" contains a real story—a story with a serious undertone of a girl's struggle for health. The girl is played, of course, by Mildred Davis, and she aids Lloyd charmingly in the sentimental vein of the comedy. The uproarious part of the offering comes when Lloyd, as the young doctor, begins his campaign to oust the eminent but unscrupulous physician from the girl's household.

The Interstate rally for Baptist Young Women of Rhode Island and Connecticut began its two day session in Westerly Saturday at 3 p. m. in Calvary Baptist church with a well-filled auditorium. The devotional service was led by Mrs. Lewis A. Walker, wife of the pastor of the church. Miss Blanche Parks of Providence spoke for half an hour of the Baptist work among the 23,000 Italian residents of Federal hill section, Providence. Miss Parks detailed the plans of the Baptist people to build two houses in Providence, one on Charles street and a Community House on Federal Hill from monies raised by individual subscriptions. The speaker stressed the friendships which would follow the personal contact of Baptist girls in the community house work with Italian girls and the good resulting therefrom. At 4 o'clock Miss Dorothy Dowell, formerly residing in Providence, now making her home in Newton Center, Mass., gave the young women audience a most interesting talk on her experiences and conditions as she found them while she lived recently in the Philippine Islands.

Mrs. Sherman Perry, New England secretary of the World Wide Guild, was unable to be present so that her part in the program had to be omitted. The other two afternoon speakers were Mrs. Leslie E. Swain of Edgewood, Providence, Rhode Island secretary of the World Wide Guild, and Miss Edith F. Wing of New Haven, Connecticut Guild secretary.

Soon after six o'clock a supper was served at small tables set in the vestry at which the girls of the First Baptist church were guests. Following the supper and the devotional service led by Mrs. Leslie E. Swain, the girls of the Mystic World Wide Guild presented the play, "Help Wanted for Miss Liberty," with the following cast from Mystic Guild.

Miss Grace Birdwell—Miss Jessie Fish.
Mrs. Goodwill—Miss Wilhelmin Gordon.
Mrs. Hulanka—Mrs. Della B. Gray.
Mrs. Cirikovitch—Mrs. Mary Richmond.
Mrs. Baranowski—Mrs. Eleanor L. Lucy.
Mrs. Joseph—Miss J. G. Osborne.
Mrs. Einstein—Mrs. Elsie Thorp.
Children — Lucia Allen, Arlene Thompson, Daisy DeRouch, Betty Wheeler.

The play was well received. An address by Executive Secretary Alma J. Noble concluded the evening program.

The Sunday program was most impressively carried out and included a sermon by Rev. Lewis A. Walker, pastor of Calvary Baptist church. At 1 p. m. the rally attendants gathered in the vestry of Pawcatuck Seventh-day Baptist church, where a cold meat lunch was served to more than sixty by the S. D. B. Girls. The decorative scheme was yellow and white. There were some twenty Baptist Young Women in attendance from Norwich.

The program for the two days included:

Saturday—2 p. m., devotional service, Mrs. Lewis A. Walker; 2:15 p. m., Baptist Work Among the Italians, Miss Blanche Parks of Providence; 3:45 p. m. address, Miss Dorothy Dowell of the Philippine Islands; 4:15 p. m., demonstrations: Model mission study class, Mrs. Leslie E. Deputy Sheriff William H. Casey has been busy summoning jurors for the next session of the superior court for New London county, in New London.

Miss Lucy Clark of Mystic was in Westerly Sunday.

Mrs. Jeannie Smith, son John and daughters Jessie and Jean left Westerly Sunday by automobile for North Conway, N. H., and a tour of the White Mountains.

People in and about Westerly were disappointed in not being able to see the big dirigible ZR-1 which was said to have been prevented from making the trip to Brockton fair Saturday by the high winds which prevailed at the sailing elevation of the big airship. Arrangements were made for a telephone call from New London when the ZR-1 left that city to sound the whistle on the Westerly Textile mill on Main street and this was to be followed by a blast of the Lorraine mill whistle and strokes on the Westerly fire bell. Their sounding were awaited in vain by parties which had sought advantageous viewpoints atop of some Westerly's business blocks and even posted on adjacent hills armed with spy-glasses. It was announced that the government had abandoned and cancelled the trip so that it will be some time before the New England states receive a call from the big airship.

At last week's meeting of St. Michael's branch, Connecticut Council of Catholic Women, the same officers were voted in for the coming year as follows: Chairman, Lucy Crowley; vice chairman, Mrs. Michael O'Connell; secretary, Mary Connors; treasurer, Rev. John J. Keane.

Father Keane gave a report of the financial standing of the society, and the year began with a substantial sum in the treasury. Chariman Crowley gave a report of the work accomplished during the summer months when no regular meetings are held. Several persons needing attention had been placed in institutions suitable to their condition, ten fresh air children from New York city had been placed in various homes in the old parish for a two weeks' vacation and all returned much improved in appearance and health. A first aid equipment has been purchased for the parochial school and will be given in charge to a Boy Scout.

Plans were discussed for the coming year and classes were arranged in home nursing and millinery. The home nursing class will comprise 15 instructions covering a period of eight weeks. The millinery class will follow the home nursing class.

Rev. John J. Fitzgerald addressed the meeting and urged the importance of the nursing class and advised all present to secure as many as possible to take the course. He dwelt upon the object of the society, which is primarily a charitable one and urged the members to make their work real charity, "done for the love of the Lord, Jesus Christ."

Miss Maroney, director of the New London Social Service bureau, complimented the organization upon its activity and progress. She gave an interesting talk upon the social service work as carried on in Bridgeport, Conn. Mrs. Douglass and Mrs. Brown who accompanied Miss Maroney from New London spoke briefly.

A drive for membership among the women of the parish will be begun soon and it is expected to double the membership for 1924.

Five Connecticut state police, with Deputy Sheriff William H. Casey, comprised a searching party under direction of Prosecuting Attorney George R. McKenna Sunday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock which found a quantity of liquor in a Ford runabout parked in the rear of the Commercial hotel on West Broad street. The new Ford car, 26-391 R. R., said to be the property of James Shea, when searched yielded a half gallon of alcohol and a quart bottle of moonshine.

With Deputy Sheriff William H. Casey watching the machine, the state policemen visited a room on the third floor of the hotel, said to be occupied by James Lennihan, where liquor was reported found in drinking glasses, a pint bottle half full of liquor, a quart bottle partly filled and a half pint empty bottle. At the direction of Prosecuting Attorney McKenna the automobile was stored in a Pawcatuck garage.

James Lennihan, Thomas Purtill and James Shea are said to be the men under arrest, having been placed in the lockup on Liberty street. It is not known on what charges the men will be presented, but it is presumed that either a charge of keeping for sale or possession of intoxicating liquors may be brought against them when the men are brought before the Stonington town court this (Monday) morning.

Sunday night Thomas Purtill was released on $100 bail furnished by a brother.

E. J. Burdick, William Burk, J. Alonso Peabody, T. E. Peabody, Henry Hughes and Douglas Bonner were members of an automobile party which visited Brockton fair Friday.

Chief of the Westerly Fire Department George E. Egger visited Brockton fair Friday, remaining over for Saturday, which was Firemen's day.

Former Rhode Island Representative in Congress George F. O'Shaunessy of Providence, now democratic candidate for Rhode Island senator, opposing Senator Colt, was a visitor in Westerly Saturday afternoon and called on Postmaster Thomas F. Lennihan at the Westerly office.

Saturday morning about 9 o'clock Charles Seymore, 5, son of Frank Seymore of 155 Mechanic street, was struck by the Dodge touring car 98-845 Conn., owned and operated by George A. C. Knowles of Maplehurst avenue, the boy's brother-in-law. Accompanied by an older brother, Mitchell, 11, the boy had come uptown to do some errands, and they were at a point on Broad street near the entrance to the Mohican market. The older boy had reached the opposite sidewalk and the younger brother was in the middle of the street, as reported by a bystander, when he became confused at an approaching automobile and turned to go back. At this moment the approaching touring car, traveling at a slow rate of speed, struck the lad with its forward right wheel, knocking him to the roadway, the wheel passing over him, breaking his jaw and crushing his chest. A warning cry from the approaching automobilist caused Knowles to so slacken his speed that but one wheel passed over the prostrate boy. Knowles hurried with the injured boy to the office of Dr. Michael H. Scanlon. Dr. William A. Hillard was called in consultation and, finding the injuries of a serious nature, the unconscious boy was taken in the ambulance of the Westerly S anitary corps to Lawrence hospital, New London. It was found that the lad had sustained a fracture of the jaw and a hemorrhage at the base of the brain, from which injuries he died at the hospital soon after noon Saturday.

In the council chamber in Westerly town hall this (Monday) evening will be held a meeting of the republican town committee. It is expected that a slate will be made up to present for town officers which will be submitted to the republican caucus which is to be held in the town hall Wednesday evening, Oct. 10th.

A splendid cast of players far above the average for a comedy, are seen in support of Mr. Lloyd, Eric Mayne is seen as the rival phyhician, and John T. Prince is the girl's father. Norman Hammond is excellent as the family lawyer, Anna Townsend, seen in "Grannma's Boy," appears to advantage, and other roles are capably handled by Florence Mayoh, Joy Winthrop, Oscar Morgan and "Auntie" Mackay. The comedy remains at the Broadway theatre until Wednesday.

Another feature that scored a decided hit was The Japanese Earthquake picture. This is not a new reel but a special feature taken in Japan during the disaster showing falling buildings, thousands fleeing for safety, fires, etc. A news weekly closed the bill.

Vaudeville at the Strand Theatre

The Keith vaudeville attractions at the Strand theatre for the first half of this week consist of the following:

Ed. and May Ernie, the merry monopedes and the dancing girl present Three Feet of Comedy.

Miss Betty Washington, the sweetheart of the violin and her bow, is also featured. Read what the newspaper, The Freeman of Dubin, Ireland, The most artistic turn last night says:

The most artistic turn last night was supplied by young Betty Washington, the barefooted violinist, whose playing showed remarkable precision of bow. This charming artist improves with each visit.

Wm. Solbini and Jeanette Grovini offer Follies of vaudeville consisting of comedy juggling, cycling and acrobatics.

Josee Flynn and Louise Arnold in Black and White, assorted present a comedy turn.

Has the chilling spectre of divorce thrown its shadow athwart your threshold?

If so do not lose heart. Go, see "Divorce" at the Strand theatre and do it quickly. Aside from being an entertainment of the highest order, the play embodies a real remedy for folks who are drifting apart and face the prospect of legal separation.

What the Jane Parker of the screen does, the wife of the world of actualities can also do, according to a noted feminist who recently viewed the play—so all you women who are sore beset by this most difficult of problems, go to the Strand theatre this week and profit by Jane Parker's example.

POETRY FOR THE WIDEAWAKES

Suppose.

Suppose there's some action you've started to take,
And you've a suspicion you've made a mistake,
But the fellows all urge you "Come! Show us some speed!
Experience, Buddy, is just what you need!
You can't be a sissy-boy all of your days,
It's time to get busy and learn manly ways!
What? Thinking of quitting? You've only begun!
Boy! Keep up with us and we'll show you some fun!"
Just put on the brakes, and hold fast and sit tight!
Stop! Question yourself—"Am I sure this is right?"
Or if you've decided some course to pursue,
And some fellows say "That's a fool thing to do!
You'll just stir up trouble—you'll not gain your ends,
You'll fail, sure as shooting, and lose all your friends!
Come! Use some judgment, and let it alone!
You've trouble enough, goodness knows, of your own!"
There's just one thing to ask and one answer to make;
If justice is served you can make no mistake
If you follow your duty with all of your might!
Pitch in! Go ahead, if you're sure you are right!
For one thing that helps push this old world along
Is staunchly refusing to do what is wrong;
And another is jumping right into the fight
On the side of all things that we know to be right.

Queen Anne's Lace.

Beside the road there grew a weed,
The daintiest ever seen,
A lacy, little canopy
On slender stalk of green.

A careless maiden chanced one day,
While passing idly by,
To pluck and toss the pretty weed
Aside to droop and die.

A tiny fairy came along,
And spied it on the ground—
"Oh, look!" she cried. "How proud I am!
A parasol I've found!"

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO WIDEAWAKES.

Many of the Wideawakes have been to the seashore during the past summer, where they have enjoyed bathing and no doubt many of them went fishing. On all that were caught there were probably no searchlights or electric lights, and yet it is true that fish living in the darkest and deepest part of the sea carry electric apparatus and shed forth light.

It is in the dark depths that you might expect them to have use for just such lights, but it appears that these light-giving organs of the fish are so situated that they cannot possibly do the fish any good in enabling him to see. In fact, scientific men admit that they don't know why the fish emit light, but they are trying to find out.

One explanation is that the light serves to attract prey within striking distance. That would account for the fact that some fish carry their lights on long tentacles that hang down before them. Some investigators have the contrary opinion and say that the light serves to frighten away enemies.

These are of course only some of the many secrets of the sea. There is much that we know about it, but there is also much that we do not. The fact is that we are constantly trying to find out something more, to answer questions which it is easy to ask and to learn the why and wherefore of many unexplained things. It takes time and patience, just as it does for the boys and girls to acquire a knowledge of everyday things that they need to know to get an education and to make them better men and women in the days to come.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDEAWAKES

An Honest Boy

Dear Uncle Jed: Fred Green the oldest of six children was looking for work one day. While walking down Summer street he saw a gentleman drop some money. Fred picked it up, ran after the gentleman, and said to him: "You dropped this money, sir." "You must be mistaken, my boy." "Oh, no sir," said Fred. "I saw the money drop from your hand when you paid the back man."

"Why that was a few streets back," said the gentleman. "Has your mother much money, my good boy?" "She has very little, sir. That is why I am looking for work. My father is dead and I am the oldest of six children." "Why did you not keep the money you found?" said the gentleman. "Because that money is yours, sir, and not mine. I should like to earn some money but not to steal it."

Then the gentleman thanked Fred and asked him where he lived. A few weeks later, he called at Fred's house and told him that he had work for him in a bank.

"I am very thankful to you, sir," said Fred. "You are very kind." "You need not thank me, Fred. You are just the kind of boy that I have been looking for. You are honest, you are manly, you are thoughtful, and you are willing to help your mother."

LORRAINE GLADUE.

John and His Tools.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day John's uncle and aunt came to visit his family and they brought John a box of tools. He was very happy to have it. After a while they all had some tea and cake. John could not reach the top of the table so they had to put a book on the chair so that he could reach it. He did not like this. After they had gone for a walk, he tipped the table up and all the cups and dishes fell down with a crash. John did not care about this and saved the legs partly off the table. Then he set the table up on its short legs. He started laughing at it because he thought it looked so funny. After his mother got home she was angry and that night she put him to bed without any supper.

Your friend,
GEORGE ABRAHAMSON, Age 13.

Packing Fair.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about the Packing fair. There were a lot of nice exhibits this year and quite a lot of antiques, very, very old. I had some vegetables in the junior department and I got first on the most of them.

They had the merry-go-round there and I like to ride on them very much. There were two stands there with kewpie dolls and my grandmother was lucky enough to draw one. It is the largest one I ever saw and very pretty.

They had a show in a tent over there and wanted someone to ride on the donkey, but he would kick at them and bite and throw them off. It was great sport to see the donkey.

I hope some of the Wideawakes had a chance to see the fair, as it was a nice one.

My Vacation in Springfield

I will tell you about my vacation in Springfield. One Sunday some friends of mine drove down in their car and took me back with them. We spent a day in Forest park and the animals.

Dear Uncle Jed: I must write and tell you about my vacation in Springfield. One Sunday some friends of mine drove down in their car and took me back with them. We spent a day in Forest park and the animals were a pretty sight to look at. I saw buffaloes, deer, kangaroos, lions, monkeys, parrots, guinea pigs, dogs, ducks, bears and leopards. One half of the park is used for baseball games and the other half is used for recreation. When I was to return home my friends took me to Palmer, Mass., and from Palmer to Norwich I rode alone.

Sincerely yours,
MIRIAM M. SEIDEL, Age 9.

A Little Child

Dear Uncle Jed: It was the beginning of a favorable day in early summer. The sun, a golden ball, shone gloriously while the birds sang their morning praises. As I walked along enjoying the picturesque scenery a house, in the center of a rose garden attracted my attention. On the lawn, between dolls, balls and other things played a fair maiden. The child wore a white dress and shoes and stockings to match. The open lids revealed the heavenly blue of forget-me-nots. Her golden curly hair was cut in the Buster Brown fashion. When she smiled her teeth looked like the rarest pearls.

When I got home I was happy that I had the opportunity of seeing the heaven sent child.

A Sad Girl

Dear Uncle Jed: Once upon a time there was a sad girl. Her name was Elaine. One day, as she was coming home from school she saw a little girl crying. Elaine walked up to her and said, "Why are you in front of my house?" The little girl cried all the harder, but did not answer.

Elaine's mother had seen her and the other little girl and knew that Elaine would soon chase the other little girl away. After a while Elaine did, which so angered her mother that she made Elaine stay up in her room all the next day.

In Holland.

Dear Uncle Jed: As we have been studying lessons about Holland I will write you some of the things I have learned.

Holland is a very rich country. The people are light complexioned. They wear wooden shoes. The girls wear long dresses.

In Holland the people keep cattle and sell butter and cheese. They have dogs to carry the cheese and milk to market.

In Holland they have many dykes. If they did not have these dykes the water would flood all the land. They also have windmills.

They use the windmills to pump the water over the land. Almost every family has a windmill.

Holland is sometimes called The Netherland. They have many canals there. In winter the people go skating on these canals. They have fine buildings in Holland and fine schools. Most of the buildings are five or six stories high.

Yours truly,
GRACE GRAY, Age 12.

Never Tell a Lie

Dear Uncle Jed: I haven't written to you for a long time, so I thought I would write now.

Once upon a time there was a little girl and boy. Their names were Mary and John. One day as John was sitting by his desk writing Mary came in and watched him. He had two dollars lying on his desk. Mary saw them and said, John, where did the money come from? John said, "Oh, it grew on the trees." Then why John wasn't looking Mary took the money and ran to the garden and planted it. When she had finished she came to John and said, "John, now we should have a lot of money." And John said, "Why?" Then Mary told him that she had planted it. John made her tell him where she had planted it, but she couldn't remember. They dug the garden up but couldn't find the money. John's father told me, "Never to lie, for lying and stealing get you anywhere. John never said a word, for he had nothing to say.

Yours truly,
MARY HENDOWSKI, Age 11.

Going On a Picnic Trip

Dear Uncle Jed: Last Saturday I went to Lantern Hill to a picnic. My uncle takes my father and mother and us children in his automobile. When we got there we saw a big black snake. It was tied to a long stick and one of the men took it away in the brush.

In a little while dinner was ready. We had clam chowder, cake, pie, oranges and grapes.

After dinner we had some games. One was a race to see who could eat peanuts the fastest. I won this game. Another race was to see what man could drink milk the fastest.

Another race for the men was to see which man could get ten beans in a cup first. They put ten beans on the ground. About three yards ahead of them they put a cup. They each took a bean and held it up even with their shoulders and dropped it in the cup.

The one that got them in first won. A race for the women was to see who could eat a piece of pie first. After the games were over some of us went up on the hill. When we got back my uncle took up home. We all had a good time.

How the American Forces Were Saved.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day three British officers came to Mrs. White's door and asked for something to eat. Mrs. White refused to give them anything. One of the officers said, "If you don't give us something to eat we will kill you and your child." At last she thought it best to give them something to eat.

She called her little daughter Helen to help her set the table. Just as Helen put the last dish of food on the table, she slipped under the table, because she was afraid of the officers' swords.

The men sat down at the dinner table and began to eat their meal. Helen listened and listened; then she heard something that made her heart stand still. One man said "We will capture Captain White's army tomorrow." Another said, "Yes, we will hang him to the first tree we find." Tears began to come in Helen's eyes.

After the men had gone she ran, sobbing to her mother and told her about it.

Mrs. White thought of a plan. She would go that night to her husband's camp.

When it was dark she rode until she reached the camp. The next morning the army was gone and the British commander was surprised.

Captain White's men praised little Helen for saving the American army from being captured.

A Kitten's Funeral.

Dear Uncle Jed: As I was going home from school a grocer stopped me and asked if I wanted three kittens.

I said "No," but I would take one. On arriving home with my Da Da, for that was the kitty's name, I discovered he was full of fleas and was too small to eat.

The next morning I awoke to find it dead.

Then I arranged for its funeral, thinking that would be more fun than having a funeral for a doll.

First I invited my friends, all who have given me permission to, put their names in the story I am writing.

The five girls are Lorette Lasur, Mary D' Ella, Beatrice Klingman, Bessie Bokoff and Cecelia Lafleur. The five boys are Buster Klingman, my brother, Ralph D'Ella, and two of my cousins.

Then I wrapped the kitty up in a box and we all mourned over it, as we were supposed to.

Then the boys, Bessie Bokoff and I, buried him under the peach tree.

We all picked golden rod and other wild flowers and put on his grave. Then I went to the front door to take off the white ribbon I had hung there but to my surprise it was already off. My mother wondering who put it there had taken it off.

Then all us girls and boys took off the black ribbon we had tied on our arm and went home, thinking what we would bury the next time we had a funeral, which is lots of fun.

Frightened by an Old Tree.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day quite late in the afternoon, my friend Ruth and I were out taking a long walk, and telling each other stories we had heard about ghosts and how we had been scared at different times. We had gone about two miles when it began to grow quite dark, so we decided to go back home. When we were about half a mile from home we saw a dark figure outlined very dimly in the distance. We stood still, not daring to move, holding on to each other's arms. For a few minutes neither of us spoke. Then Ruth whispered to me, "Come on, Alice, we will go back and go around by the mill to get home." So this we did. We ran all the way back, for we were afraid that if we did look back we would see it coming after us and that would scare us more. At last we reached home, almost scared to death, and our faces as white as snow. My mother asked us what the trouble was and as soon as we had gotten our breath we told her the story.

The next morning we went to see if we could find out what had scared us so. Weren't we surprised when we found out what it proved to be! It was only an old hollow tree with branches sticking out in different directions that we had seen many times before. My mother laughed when we told her what had scared us so, but you may be sure it never scared us again.

DANIELSON

Recent appointments by the selectmen include that of Gaston A. Maindon, to be sealer of weights and measures, and Henry Legue and George A. Williams to perfect the military and personal enrollment of the town. Walter A. Rollinson of Goodyear has been appointed public weigher, an official whose services are sometimes required at Goodyear.

A recently completed enumeration of the children of school age in the town of Killingly shows an increase from 1587 in 1922 to 1775 this year. The greatest percentage of increase was in Goodyear. The increase in enrollment will mean additional revenue from the state this year.

Incident to this it is of interest to note that the cost per pupil in the elementary schools of Killingly during the past school year was $40.73, and in the high school $75.03. In her annual report as secretary of the town school committee Mrs. Agnes H. Paine says: "Our high school, by economical conduct and the fact of increased enrollment over preceding years, together with a more equitable tuition charge for outlying towns' pupils, shows a cost per pupil of $75.03, as compared with $110.53 for 1921-22 —both costs being exclusive of interest charges or bonds issued for school plant. The grade school cost per pupil is also commendably low at $40.72, as against the previous year's $44.29.

Considering finances, the town school committee earns the commendation of the public for the generally economical way in which the schools were administered during the past year, for whereas the total amount raised and received for schools were $70,698.21, only $65,567.05 was expended.

Of interest also is the amount of tuition that the town stands prospectively to get during the current year. The out of town pupils in the high school this year are paying $90 and there are 52 of them. One special pupil in the high school and three out of town pupils in the grade school, where the tuition charge is $40, will produce tuition fees amounting to $4845.

Officers from the Danielson barracks of the state police were included in the company of 34 from various parts of the state that swooped down upon Jewett City, at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon to raid seventeen places suspected of selling liquor. A bench warrant was held by the officers for the proprietor of each place raided. The raid was on the largest scale and most thoroughly organized of any ever staged in this section of the state, and news of it spread like wildfire, a few minutes after the officers started to work.

At their home on North Main street Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Ransom Liner entertained a number of guests at dinner, the event being in observance of their tenth wedding anniversary. The guests included a number from Norwich. There were various pleasurable features of the day's observance. Mr. and Mrs. Liner received a number of gifts and the best wishes of their friends for many happy years.

This (Monday) morning many a man in Killingly who loves to hunt will shoulder his gun and head for the spaces and places where experience has shown game birds are likely to be found, for today marks the opening of the fall shooting season of 1923. Many of the hunters will tell you they do not look for big success today, for there are too many leaves on the trees, but they do want a try-out turn through woods and fields to sort of get into the swing of the thing. There should be good shooting in this territory this fall, as game birds appear to be quite numerous.

Closed cars driven by Henry A. Razour of 758 Purchase street, New Bedford, and by Thomas A. Deane, of Pawtucket, crashed Saturday afternoon on the state highway leading to Willimantic in West Brooklyn, near the Bassett property.

The Doane car was turned around and tipped over in the smash, in which Mr. and Mrs. Doane were slightly injured, Mr. Doane probably sustaining a cracked rib and his wife an injury to her wrist. Mr. and Mrs. James E. Hawse of Pawtucket, who were riding in the Doane car, were not hurt other than with minor bruises. Razour and the two men who were riding with him were not injured.

Razour was held accountable for the accident and later was arraigned before Justice Frank M. Bedard of the town of Brooklyn and fined $25 and costs, a total of $46.60, for reckless driving.

Evidence showed that Razour, who was coming toward Danielson, had been following along behind a load of cord wood on a heavy team wagon, and that while he saw the Doane car approaching from the opposite direction he thought he had time to get through and made a try to do so. He didn't make it, but plowed into the Doane car, damaging it to the extent of about $500, it was estimated. The Razour car was not seriously damaged except as it struck against the load of cord wood.

Two automobile loads of gypsies received a chill reception and a curt order to keep going, when they stopped in the center of the business section Sunday afternoon and prepared to give the borough the once over. Chief John McFarland was right on the job and hustled them along about as quickly as one can say Jack Robinson. This has been the rule with gypsies here all summer, and it is going to be the rule in view of the fact that it works very well and advantageously.

Forty teachers who have enrolled for a university extension course will meet this afternoon at the high school building for the first in a series of lectures to be given here by Prof. John J. Mahoney, director of university extension courses at Harvard university and at Boston university. His course will deal with the general topic Teaching Principles and Practices in the Progressive School.

This course was arranged for the teachers by Supt. Leon M. Ferrin of the schools in Killingly and Brooklyn. Of it Mr. Farrin says: This is an unusual opportunity for professional improvement for the teachers in this locality, for ordinarily these courses are given only in places much larger than Danielson. Teachers taking the course will be entitled to university credit, so that normal school graduates can obtain a college degree and college graduates a master's degree by a combination of extension and summer school courses.

"We are fortunate in obtaining the director of the courses, as our instructor, Prof. Mahoney, a noted educator. He is the author of several text books, has been assistant superintendent of the schools in Cambridge, Mass., principal of the Lowell Normal school and director of Americanization for the state of Massachusetts. He is now director of Americanization for the Boston Chamber of Commerce in addition to being a professor of education at Harvard and Boston universities.

PUTNAM

Saturday afternoon, Miss Barbara Haddon Weaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Weaver of Thompson, and George Hyslop Bathgate of East Lyme, were married at 3.30 o'clock in the Congregational church, Rev. S. H. Bigelow of Christ church, Pomfret, officiating, assisted by Rev. Stephen Livingston of Thompson. The Episcopal service was used. The decorations of the church were autumn flowers.

Robert E. Hall of Hartford, brother-in-law of the groom, was best man and Mrs. Louis Marshall Ream, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Mary Lou Ream and Patricia Hall and Louis Marshall Ream, Jr., were flower girls and page respectively. The girls wore Kate Greenaway dresses of peach colored satin with bonnets to match and carried baskets of Ophelia roses. The ushers were Dr. Crowell C. Hall of Hartford, William G. Park of Hanover, Joseph C. Worth of Norwich, Harry A. Cook, Jr., of New London, Charles S. Weaver, Jr., and Louis M. Ream of Thompson.

The bride wore an exquisite dress of ivory moire, with court brocade train, which was worn by her mother at her wedding and by Mrs. Louis M. Ream. Her veil was of tulle and rose point lace and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and gardenias. The matron of honor wore cafe au lait moire, a close brown hat with lace, and carried gladioli.

A reception followed the ceremony at "Ashleigh," the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Louis M. Ream. A large dinner and dance for the wedding party, ushers and visiting guests had been given at "Carolyn Hall," the residence of Mrs. Norman B. Ream, Friday evening. There was a large attendance of guests from New England and Canada. The gifts to the bride were very handsome; her gift from the groom was a diamond bracelet.

The bride is the second daughter of Charles S. Weaver, a retired lawyer, is a graduate of the Howe-Marot School, and a very popular girl. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Bathgate and associated with his father in the woolen textile business in East Lyme and Niantic.

Mr. and Mrs. Bathgate left by motor for the White Mountains and Canada and will be at home after November first at 560 Montauk avenue, New London.

Halted here Sunday afternoon by Captain William Jarvis, for violation of a traffic regulation, young men who gave their names as Donald W. Howe, 20, and Michael E. McMann, 24, were found to be in possession of a stolen car owned in Burlington, Vt., and were locked up at the police station to be held until Burlington officers can come for them. Inspection of the registration gave a clue to the fact that the driver probably was not Mr. McMann, who, Captain Jarvis later ascertained by a telephone communication to Burlington, is president of a bank in that town. Both young men are believed to have given fictitious names.

Harry Palmer, 38, of Dorchester, Mass., head brakeman on a Hartford to Boston freight train, was killed late Saturday night while the train was being switched about in the railroad yards here.

Palmer was throwing switches and coupling and uncoupling cars when the engine crew suddenly became aware of the fact that he had stopped signalling. Members of the train crew went to the spot where Palmer last had been seen and there found his body. His neck was broken and a foot and hand severed. It is believed his foot caught in a switch and that he was knocked down and run over.

Palmer leaves his wife and an infant in Dorchester, also his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Palmer, of Douglas, Mass. He was a veteran of the World war.

Members of Elizabeth Porter Putnam Chapter, D. A. R., with their husbands and friends, left Putnam at 11 o'clock, Saturday, on their annual pilgrimage to Hampton. Members of the party took basket lunches and coffee was served at the Inn on Hampton Hill. Following the luncheon there was an address by Rev. A. Avery Gates of Hampton and an historic talk by Mrs. Annie Hammond Edmond. The members of Anne Wood Elderkin Chapter of Willimantic were guests of the Putnam chapter.

Walter N. King, office manager of the Beachmond Corporation, Mechanicsville, has been elected a director of the Putnam Chamber of Commerce to succeed Charles A. Thayer, resigned. Mr. King will represent Mechanicsville and its only industry, on the board.

At 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra May, in East Woodstock, their daughter, Miss Sylvia May became the wife of Windsor White, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. T. White, also of East Woodstock. Both Mr. and Mrs. White are well known in the Woodstocks. The bride received many beautiful gifts.

The state recent, Mrs. Charles H. Bissell, will be present at the first regular meeting of Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R. this (Monday) afternoon, in Odd Fellows' hall.

William S. Walker, of Fremont street, will move his family from Putnam the first of next month as he has been promoted to be assistant superintendent of a chain of stores. The family has resided in Putnam a year and a half. They will move either to Lowell or Lawrence, Mass.

With the town election a thing of the past, political talk is beginning to drift to municipal affairs. The biennial city leection comes this year and election day is the first Monday in December.

While there is nothing definite being talked and no candidates announcing themselves as in a receptive mood, a rumor that gains currency before every city election, that certain factions are going to overturn the present administration is afloat.

Just what such a program may include is not stated but it is surmised that an attempt is to be made to capture the salaried positions within the gift of the common council, or at least some of them. Among these appointments is that of police captain and members of the police force, the prosecuting attorney and assistant, the fire chief and his assistants and the superintendent of streets.

The mayor and members of the common council serve without pay. There is seldom a contest for the aldermanic ooces, as under the charter there is a minority representation and one republican and one democrat is elected from each of the four wards. There is an alderman-at-large and in this office lies the balance of power for the aldeaman-at-large casts the deciding vote in case of a tie. This office really carries more power than does that of mayor.

In order to control the council the party wishing to wield the balance of power must necessarily elect the alderman-at-large. No names are being mentioned for mayor or for alderman-at-large and little attention is being paid to representatives from the four wards.

JEWETT CITY

Friday evening, 22 of the little friends of Evelyn Smith gave her a surprise party at her home, in celebration of her seventeenth birthday. Many indoor games followed by ice cream, cake, candy and other goodies helped to make the evening very pleasant. Game prizes were awarded Yvonne Carroll and Andrew Mecteaux, the consolation award going to Sylvia Bryant and Woodrow Wilson. Mrs. James Smith was assisted in serving by Mrs. John Wilson, Mrs. Peter Bryant, Mrs. Thomas Upton, Mrs. William Sharkey, Mrs. Eugene Lambert, the latter of Taftville.

The little girl received many handsome gifts, including a little purse of money. The guests included Sylvia and Estelle Bryant, Lavina Vachon, Irene Nadeau, Rita Couture, Helen Davis, Yvonne Carroll, Ethel Chamberlain, Catherine Sharkey, Josie Minski, Dora and Florence Morey, Rosalie Mulholland of Taftville, Woodrow Wilson, Louis Gingras, Theodore Morey, Andrew Mecteawx, Herman and Earnest Bryant, Joseph Sharkey, Isadore Couture and Napoleon Carroll.

Joseph Rosenberg has purchased the Dimmock property, also known as the Joseph Brown house, on East Main street, opposite High. While this house had little connected with it in the way of history, yet, besides occupying one of the finest sites, if not the very finest in the town, it has come down through a long line of the honored stock of Griswold. At the outbreak of the Revolutionary war, Enoch Baker, then a hatter's apprentice in the city of Norwich, begged of his employer, that he release him for a few months to go to the war. Records give proof that Enoch Baker proved a sturdy soldier until Cornwallis had surrendered and peace was declared. He then built the house which stands on the property sold to Mr. Rosenberg. Later, Joseph Brown and Henry F. Cheney lived there.

Enoch Baker was the man selected to notify the congress of the United States of the victory at Saratoga.

Some of his old account books, as a hatter, well over 100 years ago, are owned by Daniel L. Phillips. Their pages show the records of transactions in a long forgotten age, when skins were bought of local hunters to be made into the then popular "stovepipe" hats.

John Barnett has passed the deeds, recording the sale of his lot, corner of Palmer avenue and North Main street. The bargain was made several months ago. Albert Malek, the new owner, will begin at once the construction of a modern business block. There will be a large store fronting on both streets. The upper floors will be residential apartments. Mr. Malek, one of the town's successful bakers, will not plan for a bakery on his new property.

A freeze struck the borough Friday night. The mercury dropped to 30. Ice as thick as window glass formed in many places. Flowers not covered and garden produce left on the vines were ruined.

A Main street man picked Saturday a dozen ears of Dreer's Aristocrat sweet corn, as fine as in mid-summer. He planted the seed July 4th.

Dennis Griffin is putting in a new catch basin, on East Main street, in front of the residence of Edmond Jodoin.

Fred Gilbert's big gas tractor goes over to Daniel Morgan's potato field and works an hour each morning. Boys looking for a job, are busy all day picking up the product of the morning's digging. Mr. Morgan owns the digger, and it rattles them out in great shape.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Swift of Providence were visitors Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, joining in a visit wit hMrs. Mary Swift and her daughter Hazel at North Franklin.

PLAINFIELD

The Woman's club held the first meeting of the season at the Community house, Thursday afternoon. An interesting program was rendered as follows: Piano solo, Mrs. Irving Butterworth Flagg; vocal selection, Mrs. Robert Lee Dawley, accompanist, Mrs. William E. Wilson; reading, by Mrs. Lotta Dodge.

The new organ for the First Congregational church has been shipped and is in cases waiting to be installed this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mathewson, A. H. Mathewson, Mrs. Henry Starkweather and son Russell attended the Brockton fair Thursday.

At the O. J. S. meeting last week, held in the vestry of the First Congregational church, two members were admitted and an interesting program was carried out.

Frank Peterson is janitor at the grammar school, successor to William York, who is with his son in Detroit, Mich.

The clericus of New London archdeaconry meets Oct. 9th at Christ church, Norwich. Rev. David Comb of Plainfield is secretary.

TONIGHT'S TOWN MEETING.

Citizens and taxpayers of Norwich should not be unmindful of the fact that the adjourned annual town meeting is to be held this evening. At this time action will be called for upon the report of the selectmen, including the estimates of receipts and expenditures for the coming year for the conduct of town affairs, the budget for the schools for the ensuing year and the various extras that have been asked for.

According to the budget presented by the selectmen a tax to raise $155,000 to provide the needed funds to run the town will be required. In addition thereto it will be necessary to raise $241,828.61 for the conduct of the schools if the town school committee's budget is approved, while for the several extras which are to come up for action a tax to provide a sum of about $85,000 will be necessary.

This involves the raising by tax of a sum just under a half million and even though the tax will not be laid until next spring after the new grand list is known it is necessary at this time to make the required appropriations.

Plainly it is an occasion when there should be a representative gathering of the townspeople for the purpose of giving expression to the wishes of the community. There are certain appropriations that must be made and there are others about which opinions may differ.

The objects in the list of extras are for the most part the same as in years past, including state aid for highways, Otis library, medical inspection in the schools and new lights. For a number of years appropriations have been made to the Free Academy to pay the tuition of the pupils of the town and the increased amount asked is in keeping with the action of a special town meeting, while the sum for the tax map means the continuation of work already under way.

It must be evident to the townspeople that all business before the meeting tonight is important. It should not be neglected by the many and a few be allowed to determine such matters one way or another. The voice of the citizens in town affairs is expected at the annual town meeting and that great privilege should not be overlooked. Make it a real town meeting by attending and getting in touch with town affairs.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK.

People shudder as they read of the thousands of lives that are lost each year by fire, and yet in each succeeding year many of that same number may be included in such a fatality list through the fault of others if not of themselves.

It is frightful to think of the great waste of human life and property through the effects of fires which could easily have been prevented. Well does Governor Templeton say in his proclamation fixing Tuesday of this week as Fire Prevention day that "Fire is one of our greatest blessings when controlled. When uncontrolled it is one of the most destructive of elements."

The aim of fire prevention week is to get public attention so riveted upon the part which each and every one can do in providing protection against fire for others as well as self that that high degree of carelessness which now prevails will be eliminated. Fires that could have been prevented mean that insufficient care has been taken, that there has been a disregard for the property or protection of others that is serious and that whatever effort can be put forth to check it deserves to be supported by each and every individual.

It is not a matter solely for school children, although much can be done by implanting the seed of fire protection in the young. It is an effort in which all should have deep concern. An awakened realization of the need of greater personal interest in preventing fire, or the conditions which make the kindling of destructive fires the easier, is to be greatly desired.

This being Fire Prevention week for the country emphasis will be directed to the part which each one can play, as well as to those records which have been possible only through carelessness and gross negligence. Fire prevention will reach its highest service when each and every one becomes an active worker in its behalf.

THE INEVITABLE RESULT.

That struggle in the Kentucky penitentiary at Eddyville had no different outcome that could be expected. The plan to get away was based upon the maiming, killing or terrifying of the keepers. It was a desperate undertaking, undertaken by desperate men, who put more confidence into their ability under a great handicap than they did in the resistance of the prison authorities. And yet their end, the death of the three, was no different than they should have anticipated. They were playing against great odds, but apparently willing to take that slim chance. They took life, however, in equal measure to that which was given and six deaths are registered because of their determination to defy law and enforcement of it in Kentucky.

The chances which those men took was greater than that which many take who set out to commit murder, considering the protection with which the criminal is surrounded in many instances. They understood what the result would be in case they failed, in case they were partly successful through the killing of others or what they could expect in case they got away from the prison only to be caught later. And yet on the slim thread of possibility that they would be able to get out of the prison will after leaving the guard house they not only hastened the ends of others but their own. Looked at from a distance it is difficult to see how they could have expected anything else.

And yet great credit is due to the heroic service that was rendered by the prison authorities in the elimination of such desperate men, though greatly to be deplored that it was necessary for three others to pay with their lives. As far as the men attempting to escape, their end was only what they should have known in advance. They based their calculations on that false hope that the inevitable wouldn't happen.

THE JAPANESE RELIEF.

When word is received to the effect that supplies have been received by Japan in such quantity that they have gone to waste it indicates the generous response that was made from other countries, and from the unaffected sections of Japan, and it also gives some indications of the handicaps under which those engaged in the administration of relief in that country are working.

Supplies being sent in such quantity that they perished might indicate that improper care had been taken in selecting such articles of food, and yet it cannot be believed that perishable goods would be forwarded to a country suffering from the conditions that prevailed in Japan.

Stricken Japan suffered from lack of distribution facilities and probably lack of housing facilities for such supplies as it received. Staple articles must of necessity have been forwarded, but having placed an abundance in those centers which were hit the hardest did not mean that those at a distance were as well taken care of. Inability to get such supplies as have gone to waste to other points where needed, and inadequate storage places could easily mean waste while there are those in Japan suffering from the lack of food.

Emergency relief going as it did from all directions must have of necessity caused a surplus in some places and left others without, due to the breakdown of means of distribution, and it is such that unquestionably discloses the reasons for the reports that have come from Japan.

THE TEST IN PENNSYLVANIA

What promises to be an opportunity for Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania to demonstrate what the Keystone state can do in the way of law enforcement is furnished by the manner in which saloons have been doing business openly in that state and the defiance which they seem to show to orders to cease.

It has been urged that inasmuch as the saloonkeepers have persisted in doing business they should have been arrested without resorting to the plan of notification that they must dispose of their fixtures and go out of business. Evidently there was a disposition on the part of the authorities to give them the benefit of the laxity that had prevailed in the past. Having tolerated the open saloon doing business so long it was perhaps no more than right that notice to close should be served, even though the law was being violated.

But saloons not only have failed to give any heed to the notice but it has been found by the governor and others on a tour of inspection that they were actually doing business as if no warning had been given and no order to obey the law had been received.

This represents a challenge that cannot be ignored. If there was an unwillingness to proceed against them before, it is entirely eliminated now. It is time to determine whether the law amounts to anything or not and it looks as if the saloon keepers were inviting a test. That being the case they ought to experience no difficulty in getting. It will be most surprising if they can, by the defiance they are showing, force the authorities to throw in the reverse and back up.

Speed is not confined to the auto or the airplane. Divorces are being granted faster than ever.

As usual the preliminary verbal fireworks in the fishermen's race are serving to stir up interest.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

In damp weather open the door to the line closet an hour each day.

Do not use strong acids or alkalis on metals connected with plumbing.

A sponge saturated with oil of lavender will keep flies away.

Soaps should always be kept in a dish or wire basket and not allowed to rest on woodwork.

All cereals should be stirred into boiling water and they should boil. Salt should not be added at first.

Feathers in pillows and feather beds may be freshened by allowing them to get wet in a summer rain and then sunning for a week.

Alumnium should never be put to soak in soda water. Any dilute acid, rhubarb, lemon, tomato, will make it bright as new.

Strips of wood screwed to the closet back and filled with nails and screw hooks for hanging up things will nearly double closet space.

Have handy a stone or steel for sharpening knives, and keep the knives in good condition. Good tools make rapid work.

Stained or painted floors look best if after they have been scrubbed and become thoroughly dry they are robbed with a flannel cloth slightly dampened with kerosene.

Nuts contain the same flesh-building material as meat. They should not be eaten between meals, but either raw or cooked should be used to take the place of meat.

The best of mahogany becomes filmy and the best way to remove it is to wash the wood every few months with tepid weak suds and then polish.

If you want the contents of a saucepan to cook quickly never leave a spoon in it. The spoon carries off a great deal of the heat and delays the boiling.

WILL REMOVE SPOTS

For removing spots from wall paper and window shades, fill small cheese-cloth bags with cornmeal and rub the soiled surface as you would with a plain cloth. Sometimes a large grease stain on the wall, for instance, above a couch where members of the family rested their heads, can best be removed by the use of blotting paper and a hot iron. The heat draws the grease through the blotting paper.

LOOSENS A STOPPER

To loosen a glass stopper in a bottle put one or two drops of sweet oil around the stopper and place it a little distance from the fire. When the bottle is quite warm strike the stopper with a stick with a cloth wrapped tightly around it, first on one side and then on the other. This will loosen even the most obstinate stopper.

A SIMPLE OVEN TEST

Before placing a cake in the oven test the heat by putting a pinch of flour at the bottom. If in one minute this turns black the oven is too hot; if a dirty yellow it is too cool; if a golden brown the oven is the right heat.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Lime in its various forms is good as a disinfectant and germicide. It is cheap and harmless.

The eyelid is the test for the little things that baby wears. Any material that is unpleasant to eyelid will irritate the infant's tender skin.

A little Eau de Cologne added to a warm bath is an excellent idea when taking a refreshing dip before dressing for dinner or a dance. Fragrant and exhilarating, it has a most restorative effect.

A bran, barleymeal, or oatmeal bath is not only very pleasant, it is also most beneficial to the skin. A muslin bag will be found the best means of introducing the bran or meal into the bath, where it should be placed while the water runs in.

FOR BABY'S TOILETTE

An ordinary wire basket may be converted into a useful and artistic gift for a baby. Simply weave pink or blue satin ribbon in and out of the wires which form the sides of the basket, after having wrapped them and the wire handle with narrower ribbon to match. Tie a bow of ribbon at either end of the handle and equip the basket with talcum powder, soap box, thermometer, rattle, safety pins and other necessities for the little one's toilette.

A SOAP JELLY

Pieces of soap should be saved and not left to waste. Put them in a jar and where there are several pieces shred them and put them into a sauce pan, allowing a teacup of soap to a quart of water. Add a dessert spoonful of borax and boil till dissolved. Keep the jelly for washing flannels and light things. The soap jelly is easily dissolved in hot water and a lather made in this way the finest woolen goods can be washed.

GIVE HER SHOE TREES

She simply cannot have too many pairs of shoe trees—that girl who is going away to school this fall. To make an attractive pair for your "going away" gift to her, cover them with brocaded ribbon, using a yard of ribbon, three-eighths of an inch wide for each tree, and a rosette of four inches of the same ribbon with two buds in the center as ornaments. Tie bows of baby ribbon to match at each end of the trees. Gild the tips and knobs of the trees before applying the ribbon.

FLOUNCES A FEATURE

One has only to watch a parade of mannequins at a fashionable modiste or shop to discover quickly that for the present at least flounces are an important feature of the most interesting models. They are pleated or arranged to give a diagonal line. And there is more than a circular suggestion in many. Sometimes they extend all the way around. In just as many instances they reach around toward the back but do not meet, thus leaving quite a space unbroken from neck to hem.

RESTORES WOOD

Hard wood which has been faded in spots by heat, light, or too strong alkalies, should be given repeated gentle rubbings with boiled linseed oil mixed with one-eighth alcohol. The faded spots will return to their original color.

LEFT-OVER CEREALS

Left over cereals may be used in making pancakes, muffins and puddings; they may be cut into squares and fried, made into croquettes, added to soup, used in a scalloped dish or combined with minced meat and egg and friend like an omelette.

DICTATES OF FASHION

There are many three-quarter and seven-eighth length coats shown for daytime.

Brown is to be very fashionable this winter, particularly in the warm, russet tones.

Fur this season is used not only on the edges of coats, but raised above a wide band of embroidery or braiding.

In many cases, the scarf is a part of the costume and the ends become panels or even trains.

A natural flower at the waistline emphasizes the turquoise blue of a velvet frock trimmed with ermine.

Belts of woven raffia in bright red or green are worn with daytime frocks of blue serge.

Beautiful beaded ornaments in Egyptian and Mexican designs and colors are extremely smart on the new frocks.

Embroidery effects woven in artificial silk on a ground of silk or wool or one of the lightweight crepes are featured this fall.

The short coat was too universally becoming, too comfortable and too pretty to be eliminated. It is with us this autumn, especially in fur.

A new sleeve is built on the general architectural scheme of a pagoda and a colored sleave shows from beneath it.

In Paris black is said to be the predominating color, with much navy blue also in evidence. Only in evening frocks is there a colorful display.

Light-colored furs, of the kind known as "blond," are more and more in favor today. These furs, whether used alone or combined with magnificent fabrics, often are arranged in slenderising stripes.

Fur coats are being made today with little inner sleeves of shirred satin, sometimes hidden out of sight in the wide sleeve, upon which fashion insists. The inner sleeve is a compromise between the style and the weather.

SWEETHEART BASKET

There are unlimited possibilities in ways one can find for trimming various kinds of baskets with ribbon. A charming sewing basket appropriate as a gift for a bride t obe is the "sweetheart" basket. First of all buy or make a heart-shaped basket and line its sides with finely plaited pink satin ribbon. Glue a ruffle of pink ribbon all around the top of the basket and equip the interior with all kinds of sewing accessories. When applying glue, use the very best quality so that the ribbon will not be injured.

A USEFUL ACCESSORY

It is always wise to have five or six ribbon girdles on hand. By wearing them interchangeably on the same frock one can readily create the impression of possessing an extensive wardrobe. Black velvet ribbon, for example, makes a girdle that can be worn with any costume. Two long streamers and perhaps a twisted rosette at either side of such a girdle makes a useful accessory that will outwear several frocks. Girdles are so easily made and there are so many styles and colors in ribbons to choose from that there is no reason why any clever woman should not be able to convert each one of her costumes into at least two or three.

LAUNDRY HINTS

The most useful clothespin bag is shaped and worn like an apron with a wide pocket. The whole apron should be shallow and wide.

When ironing small things, napkins, handkerchiefs, collars, use a knee board which may be placed on the lap. It is three feet long, thin and light.

Instead of ironing thin curtains, baste broad hmes at the top and bottom and run into each a heavy unpainted curtain pole as long as the curtain is broad. Stretch the curtain smooth, hang up, sprinkle well and let dry.

Kerosene in the boile rwill whiten clothes which have become yellow from long lying. For things very yellow or grimy mix kerosene, clear lime water and turpentine in equal parts. Shake until cream, use a cupful to a boilerful of clothes and keep over the fire a half hour.

A GIFT FOR THE TRAVELER

Cleverness and friendliness are combined in a ribbon portfolio for one's writing materials while traveling. Cover two pieces of heavy corrugated cardboard about 8 by 6 inches with two widths of figured novelty ribbon. It is best to glue the ribbon to the cardboard so it will lie smoothly. Line the pieces with solid colored ribbon to harmonize with the outside covering and tie them closely together along one side with six small bows of baby ribbon to match. Allow two streamers of half-inch ribbon to open and close the portfolio.

Use bands of elastic, covered with shirred ribbon a half inch wide to hold the writing materials in position. Equip the portfolio with writing paper, envelopes, blotter and pen.

CHARMING TOUCHES

A few ribbons, a little glue and deft fingers can work transformations in the home. The shades on a bracket light and a vase lamp may be made of wide, old-gold satin ribbons plaited and held in place with the best quality liquid glue which does not discolor. Likewise yellow ribbon petals may be glued to the telephone, turning it into an exotic blossom. Large oddly shaped pillows are banded, braided and tasseled with velvet ribbons, while curtains and draperies are edged with ribbons of contrasting textures of ribbon can be chosen. However, old gold is a pleasing color and might predominate.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Queen Mary spends many of her leisure hours in needlework.

The Woman's Club of Manila has a membership of 1,000.

Some scrubwomen in New York City are said to earn as much as $5 a day.

In Bengal women are forbidden to be employed as barmaids or in liquor stores in any capacity.

The number of women employed as domestic servants in the United States has decreased by 300,000 since 1910.

The Girls' Athletic Club of Columbus, Ohio, with nearly 1,000 members, is the largest organization of its kind in America.

ADJOINING ROOMS

If your house has two adjoining rooms with a wide doorway between the best effect is obtained by papering both rooms alike, preferably with a neutral tone or with a vague, shadowy pattern.

POLISHES THE MIRROR

A small pad of tissue paper will give a brilliant polish to mirrors, picture glases and crystal. The pad is excellent for burnishing steel, rubbing grease spots off furniture, polishing silver, etc. For packing glass, china and ornaments, a roll of tissue paper is invaluable.

RECIPES

Sweet Potato Waffles—Thoroughly mix one-half cup of warm mashed sweet potatoes (it is best to press them through a ricer after mashing them), one half cup of bread flour, two tablespoons of sugar, one fourth cup of butter and one-half cup of thin cream. Beat mixture until well blended, then, add one egg yolk well beaten and lastly fold in the stiffly beaten white of one egg. Cook in a hot, well-greased waffle iron. Serve immediately with butter and maple sirup. This is a "thick" batter.

Popovers—Sift together one cup of bread flour and one-fourth teaspoon of salt; gradually add one cup (lacking one tablespoonful) of milk, beating constantly with a crank egg beater. Beat two eggs until thick and lemon tinted, add to first mixture and continue beating two minutes. Put one-half teaspoon of butter into each hissing-hot iron gem cup and when melted turn in the mixture, filling the cups two thirds full. Bake in a hot oven thirty-five minutes. Small iron gem cups are far better for popovers than tin or agate. This is a typical "pour-batter." Popovers should be

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes —Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

To work up from humble beginnings to places of prominence and power is characteristic of many American business leaders. One of these is Guy Eastman Tripp, chairman of the board of the Westinghouse company, who is sailing this week for Japan to aid with his advice as an expert in the rebuilding of the cities destroyed by the earthquake. Mr. Tripp spent his boyhood in Wells, Maine, and was educated chiefly in the country schools. For a time he worked in the village grocery store, but later went to Salem, Mass., to become a railroad clerk. Gradually he worked his way up through the ranks, eventually establishing a place for himself among the great executives of the industrial world. He has served on important state commissions in New York, is a member of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, and has wide ranging connections in the United States and Europe, with large manufacturing and commercial enterprises.

Stories That Recall Others

Proof

Although this was an upper grade the vocabulary of the class was very limited. A bright boy had just explained the meaning of the word superstition, and the teacher asked: "How many of you are superstitious?" Not a hand went up.

"Well, how many of you think that if you break a mirror you will have seven years of bad luck?" Every hand shot up.

"You really don't believe that!" exclaimed the teacher, and after some discussion only one colored boy remained entirely unconvinced.

"Yes! You sure have bad luck," he helterated, "and if you cut a new door or window in an old house it is a sign you'll move."

"Oh how can you believe that, Virgil?" said the teacher. "Can't you see it isn't even sensible?"

"Waal'm, it's true. I know, because month before last my father cut a new door in our old house and the next week mother moved."

Good riddance.

Jones was taking a spin through the country in his car when he happened upon a fair. The car was an old prewar veteran that didn't cost him much. He had been slowly breasting the hills and every time the solitary brake was applied there were shrieks or protests from some part of the mechanism, and altogether Jones was entirely fed up with his "bargain."

Presently he came to the gate where the fare was paid and Jones got his ticket. As he was going through the gate handing out his ticket the collector shouted "Fifty for the car, sir." "Sold," he exclaimed, thankfully.

FOUND DEAD IN BED IN JEWETT CITY HOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Jewett City, Oct. 7.—Edward Gallagher, 64, was found dead in his bed Saturday in his apartments in the Norman block, after entrance had been gained by forcing a window with an iron bar. Of late Mr. Gallagher, a steady reliable workman in the Aspinok bleachery had told his friends about trouble he was having with his heart. Wednesday evening he visited Dr. J. H. McLaughlin's office, having been in pain all day. After going home, evidence proves that he retired at once. Saturday morning, Charles H. Ray, whose home is in the front of the same block, remarked about the unusual quiet in Mr. Gallagher's rooms. He had not seen him go out and in as was his usual custom. Mr. Gallagher had taken The Bulletin for years, and there near his door were the issues of Thursday, Friday and Saturday, where the newsboy had left them. Mr. Ray communicated his belief to Dennis Barnett who lives next door, that all was not well with Mr. Gallagher. Mr. Barnett at once notified James Brennan, Jr., Mr. Gallagher's nephew. They found the door locked with the key inside, then securing a heavy bar they forced one of the windows, the men were obliged to wait a few minutes before entering. Mr. Gallagher was discovered dead in his bed, his clothes were folded and placed in order on a chair his watch and a bit of small change were found on a small table standing near his bed. There was no evidence other than that death had come as he slept so metime after retiring Wednesday night. Medical Examiner Dr. George H. Jennings was summoned, and pronounced death due to valvular Brothers removed the body to the home of Mr. Gallagher's sister, Mrs. John Dwyer. Four sisters all of Jewett City survive him, Mrs. James Brennan, Mrs. John Dwyer, and Misses Margaret and Abbie Gallagher and his daughter, Mrs. Mamie Fisk of Hartford.

SIXTEEN JEWETT CITY PLACES RAIDED FOR LIQUOR; 12 ARRESTS

A squad of eighteen policemen from the Groton and Danielson barracks, under command of Officer Gorgas, threw consternation into the ranks of those alleged to be making and selling liquor in Jewett City when they conducted sixteen simultaneous raids late Sunday afternoon in various sections of the borough.

Twelve persons were arrested, eight men and four women, and a truck load of over three dozen cases of bottle beer and a number of jugs of home made wine were seized. Other arrests are to follow on evidence that was secured, and all the accused are to appear in this city this (Monday) morning in the criminal superior court where they will be charged before Judge Allyn L. Brown with violation of the liquor law. As jail sentences have been the rule on conviction for liquor law violations, it would seem that the census at the Norwich jail is due for an upward bound.

The state policemen engineered their coup with a strategy that took the borough completely by surprise. They were all incitizens' clothes, some wearing leather automobile jackets, so they excited no comment as they arrived about 5 o'clock.

Bench warrants from the superior court were in their possession and they had accurate information of the places they were looking for so that they lost no time in getting to work and there was no time for the news of their arrival to spread before they had every place under guard.

After the arrests and the seizures of the evidence the prisoners were brought to this city and were locked up over night at police headquarters. As the arrests were on bench warrants from the superior court, there was no chance for them to get bail and all twelve spent the night as prisoners.

Those arrested were Arthur Dimitris, 68; Steve Nofal, 46; Joe Ciriello, 34; Joseph Ledecker, 30; Albert Preniads, 39; Edward Gomes, 35; Joe Solski, 38; Mary Leese, 35; Josephine Choleva, 40; Barbara Maleka, 30; Caroline Babanowski, 38, and Kate Polenski, 33.

Two trips by auto were made to this city to bring the crowd in, the first about 7 o'clock with one woman and four men, and the other at 9 o'clock with the remainder of the prisoners and the motor truck load of cased goods, bottles and jugs.

Enough to serve as evidence in each case was taken from the truck and stored in the vault at police headquarters, all duly labeled with the date, name of accused and names of officers finding the goods. What was not needed for evidence was taken to the police barracks at Danielson.

State policemen in the raiding party included Officers Gorgas, Palmer, Lynehan, Hansen, Skelly, Keating, Hulburt Hardesty, Kirschner, Bigelow, Field Bahr and Nellson.

MISSIONARY FROM JAPAN AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURC

At the three masses in St. Patrick church Sunday, Rev. Willia. Stoecke, a Hollander, member of th Society of the Divine Word, who ha. labored for twelve years in Niigata Japan, addressed the congregation on the needs of the Roman Catholic missions in that stricken country since the recent disaster. Father Stoecke recalled pioneer missionary labors to Christianize Japan, when, three or four hundred years ago, after the great St. Francis Xavier had carried the gospel to that country, after eighteen years there was the surprising number of 2,000,000 Catholics. Then came the era of persecution, for 250 years, when more than 250,000 converts were veritable martyrs. About fifty years ago, when once more the missionaries were permitted to enter the empire, they were astonished to find fully 50,000 native Catholics among the population of the mountains. Of this total, about 20,000 were put to death in later persecutions.

As to the race, far from being immoral, Father Stoecke said, the average Japanese family consists of five or six children, and the people, when given instruction, make strong and sincere Catholics, although even yet it requires heroism and sacrifice on their part to refuse to worship the idol. The priests and nuns who work among them, willingly undertake the life of hardships and struggle, with no personal remuneration, the average allowance for a Catholic missionary being not over $15 a month—whereas if he would but seek an easier life and teach in a government school he would receive at least $200 monthly. Since the earthquake, there have been numberless demands upon the meagre resources of the missionaries, and it is to meet these calls that Father Stoecke appealed Sunday to St. Patrick's people, meeting the customary generous response. The pope is deeply interested in the success of Japanese missions, and Father Stoecke came also with the special consent and endorsement of Bishop Nilan.

FINES FOR MEN FOUND IN GAMBLING PLACE

In the city court Saturday morning S. Shuell was fined and paid $50 and costs of $13.62 on the charge of keeping a gambling house in the pool room which he conducts at 80 West Main street. He was arrested in the raid on Friday night when 16 men were gathered in by the police. Seven of the remaining fifteen men charged with frequenting the place were discharged and the rest were fined $10 and costs each bill amounting to $11.06. All paid.

For operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor Norton Pierce were fined and paid $100.50. Two men charged with resisting arrest had their cases nolled.

Tied Up Franklin Square Traffic.

Traffic on Franklin square was tied up for a short time Sunday night about 5.30 oclock when the driver of an automobile in swinging around the many trolleys in the square locked the fenders of his car into the rear fenders of a machine parked in front of the Terminal.

Things would quickly have straightened out if the driver had not stopped to argue the point about receiving damages. Officer Keenan, doing traffic duty, soon ended the argument over damages and the many cars held up were pushed through rapidly.

It is alleged that cars parked on that side of the square have often caused tie-ups in traffic when trolleys are standing on the triangle, as the street at this point is very narrow, with no chance of a second car going around the corner heading toward Broadway when trolleys and parked autos stand at these points.

Mr. McSweeny who had heard Miss Higgins sing in Paris authorized Mr. Kellogg to say for him that this Norwich girl, who was known in Paris as the American soprano, is marvelous and will delight he audiences.

A Boston newspaper seized upon Miss Higgins' spectaculary rise into grand opera ranks for a feature story Sunday that occupied half a page, including three two-column cuts.

SAYS AMERICA NEEDS CREED OF JESUS CHRIST

There is no such thing as a democratic liberty that deprives the child of any of his right, robs babies of what is their inheritance, the right to pursue happiness, said Miss Margert Slattery of Boston, lecturer and writer, who spoke at a largely attended union service at the Central Baptist church Sunday evening under the auspices of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. Practically every seat in the church including the gallery was taken and Miss Slattery who is an, intensely interesting speaker, held the close attention of her large audience throughout the lecture, the topic of which was Can America Trust the People?

The invocation was given by Rev. Gurdon P. Bailey pastor of the First Congregational church, Norwich Town and the scripture selection was read by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church. Prayer was offered by Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity M. E. church. Edwin Hill, secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., extended a general invitation to those present to attend the fall reception to be held Monday evening by the Y. M. C. A. at the association building. Miss Slattery was introduced by James C. Macpherson president of the Y. M. C. A. In making the introduction Mr. Macpherson spoke of Miss Slattery's achievements along literary lines, mentioning as two of her works, The Second Line of Defense and When You Enlist. He also made reference to her long service as a members of the Massachusetts State Board of Education and as supervisor of the state normal school in Massachusetts.

The most pertinent question on the lips of everyone in the United States is, Can America Trust the People? said Miss Slattery. The farm bloc believes it is America. The minc interests are perfectly sure they are America. Business men believe they are America. Women believe they are America.

Quoting statistics, Miss Slattery among other things said that one out of every three people in the United States is either foreign-born or the child of foreign-born parents. In Newark, she said, three quarters of the people are either foreign-born or the children of foreign-born parents. New York houses 10,000,000 people, 92 per cent. of whom are either foreign-born or children of foreign-born parents. New York is the largest colored city in the world. Who are the people that in the future America must trust or dare not trust?

Miss Slattery hit the radical group, saying that the realization of their plans would not better conditions, and scored the farmers on their stand regarding the daylight saving question and she characterised them as more or less selfish.

Miss Slattery said she could not tell whether or not a man is a Christian by the way he carries his umbrella.

The non-Christian carries his sticking out behind. He has no regard for others. America can never trust the people until they grasp the fundamental Christian principle, thou shalt do unto others as thou wouldst have them do until you. The world has got to change or disappear. With reference to the turmoil it is the birth of a new day.

In 1913 and 1914 it was said that "democracy can never have a chance in the world." God through the hinging changes of years will make for himself a kingdom of the people. Fear is a terrible thing. Fear is the tyrant of the times. In New York Boston, everywhere I go I see feaf written on men's faces. The business man is afraid of political changes. The farmer is afraid he will get nothing out of the earth for all his long days of tolling.

Youth can do nothing. Turn to your youth. Give them schools. Give them clean coties. Give them a clean definition of personal liberty. There is no such thing as a democratic personal liberty that deprives the child of any of his right; that robs babies of what is their inheritance, the right to pursue happiness. If you dare to teach your children and live in their presence His matchless creed, then America can trust the people. The service was brought to a close with the benedictiou ronounced by Rev. Mr. Bailey.

Miss Slattery also spoke at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon service, bringingtogether an audience that was the largest of the season there.

ANOTHER SHORT STRETCH ON LAUREL HILL AVENUE

Work that has been resumed on Laurel Hill avenue at Walnut street in laying the cement highway is to continue only as far as the foot of the hill. This will about exhaust the money available, according to Street Commissioner A. E. Cruthers, so that the improvement in the street will not be continued to the city line. It will take some more money than had originally been estimated to complete the street to the city line.

WEDDINGS.

Freeman—Moumblow

A quiet wedding took place Sunday afternoon at two o'clock at the home of Rev. David A. Pitt on Broadway, when Miss Goldie R. Moumblow and Frederick A. Freeman were united in marriage in the presence of immediate relatives. ### HENS AT STORRS ARE SURE TO BEAT RECORDS

The hens in the annual egg race at Storrs are almost sure to beat all prvelous records when the contest closes on the thirtieth of October. There are still four laps to go but by the time this article is read the total production to date will be equal or ahead of the average annual yield for the last ten years. The hens laid last week 3060 eggs, a yield of nearly 44 per cent., which is nearly 600 eggs better than for the corresponding period last year. In the forty-eighth week two pens of Leghorns owned by S. G. McLean of So. Glastonbury and Hollywood Farm, of Hollywood, Wash., tied for first place with 49 eggs each. A Hartford pen of Rhode Island Reds entered by Abbot H. Smith was second best pen for the week with a score of 48 eggs. Hi-Quality Hennery's pen of Wyandottes from Randolph Center, Vt., and three pens of Leghorns owned by Andrew L. Ohr of Wallingford, Conn., Meadowedge Farm at Cedarhurst, L. I. and D. E. Walls from Petaluma, Calif., all tied for third place with 46 eggs each. Barred Rocks owned by the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph and two pens of Rhode Island Reds entered by Sunnyfields Farm, Wallingford, Conn., and Glen Wright at New Canaan, Conn., all tied for fourth place with 44 eggs each.

During gthe next three weeks all of the houses used in connection with the laying contest will be cleaned and renovated in preparation for the thirteenth annual laying contest which will start on the first day of November. This means a new supply of sand in each pen, spraying, disinfecting and whitewashing the houses. It is believed that the color of the inside of the house has some effect on the number of eggs that the hens lay, because there is a tendency for the birds to get up earlier in the morning and staying up a little later nights, thus slightly lengthening the short days of wintre. On dark days the hens can see better to get their feed.

The four leading pens in each of the principal breeds are as follows:

ACADEMY ELEVEN WINS SECOND GAME OF SEASON, TRIMMING STONINGTON TEAM

Only the referee's whistle put a stop to the score of the Academy team Saturday afternoon on the Academy campus. Not content with three touchdowns the locals were hungry for another and would have had it too, if it had not been for that detestable thing, the referee's whistle.

With only about five more minutes to play, Stonington was forced to punt on last down from her 25 yard line. One of the Academy backs received and ran the ball back to the Stonington 40 yard line. After one or two line plunges netting small gains, Covey made another 10 yards through the line, placing the ball near the Stonington 25 yard line. Phil MacNamara then pulled off the longest run of the game namely to the Stonington 8-yard line. On this Covey was out for a minute or two but insisted on finishing the game, of which only about one minute remained. Two line plunges brought the ball to the Stonington 4 yard line. The boys were playing with real spirit and would undoubtedly have had the long sought touchdown; but—the whistle blew and all was over.

Although all moments were not as exciting as this, the game was well worth seeing. The locals played much better than a week ago and, with the exception of a few minutes in the second quarter, those in which Stonington scored on a long pass and line plunges, were on their toes every minute.

All the team was in every play but the shining stars were Ely and Paul MacNamara in the line and Covey and Phil MacNamara in the backfield. Covey managed his team very well and is one of the mainstays of the eleven. Together with Phil, Covey accounted for practically all the large gains for the locals, the honors being shared about equally beween them. Of course this does not mean that the others were not on their toes but those mentioned were the ones who did the most from the point of view of the sidelines.

As for Stonington, the team is still a little green, but will, of course, improve in the course of a week or two. Barrett, although responsible for four fumbles, was the chief ground-gainer for Stonington. On account of his activity in every play, he was forced to retire in the third quarter.

The lineup was as follows:

| N. F. A. | Stonington |
|---|---|
| Left End | |
| McGowan | Shugrue |
| Left Tackle | |
| Scott | Milby |
| Left Guard | |
| Steinman | Marie |

| Quarterback | |
| Covey | McCaffery |
| Left Halfback | |
| Phil Mac | Coffey |
| Right Halfback | |
| Kilroy | Barrett |

In the third quarter Kerlasey went in for Kelb at right tackle who in turn took the place of Barrett at right halfback.

VELVETMEN WIN FINAL GAME FROM TAFTVILLE A. A.

The J. B. Martin team took a close game from the Taftville A. A. Saturday afternoon at the Providence St., grounds winning 3 to 2. Lemieux, who pitched for the Velvetmen, held the Taftville boys well in hand and then gave way to Mike Morin. Morin was hit hard but fast fielding prevented a score. Eddie Murphy featured in left field with some sensational catches as did "Zoon" Germain with a pretty diving catch in right field. J. Joubert connected for a triple. This game was the last of the season for both teams.

DODGERS TRIM CHAMPS IN FINAL BATTLE

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 7—Brooklyn closed its season today by defeating New York 6 to 1, thereby evening up the series of 22 games with the National league champions. The Dodgers finished with the same percentage as last year. "Dutch" Henry, who started with the Dodgers last spring by shutting out the Giants, almost repeated today, holding them runless, until the last inning. The Giants trled out several of their second string players. Solomon making a good impression.

RIVERVIEW CLOSES SEASON WITH DEFEAT AT HANDS OF MOOSUP TEAM

The Riverview club closed the baseball season during the weekend with ball season during the week end with Typewriter team of Middletown on Saturday at the State Hospital diamond and lost a close game to Moosup 2 to 1, on Sunday. Tony West, who has pitched the best ball seen in this section in many years, hurled both games and should have been returned a victor in both contests. West received poor support at Moosup which accounted for the 2 runs scored by Moosup in the seventh inning. He held the Moosup team, which was composed mostly of college players, to two hits and deserved to win.

West outpitched Mullowney, college star, throughout the game and was very effective with men on bases. The game was really a pitchers' battle from start to finish and was marred only by the costly errors by Faber and Mills in the seventh inning. Couillard and Faber were the only two players to hit for extra bases, each getting one double.

The game Saturday was less interesting than Sunday's battle but for the first four innings it was a tight game with the advantage with the visitors. In the fifth inning the hospital team scored four runs on hits back of errors and from then on the game was easy for the Riverview club. The scores:

HUGGINS TO MANAGE YANKS NEXT YEAR

New Yrok, Oct. 7—(By the A. P.)—Miller Huggins, demunutive pilot of the New York Yankees, three-time American league champions, has been re-engaged for 1924, Colonel Jacob Ruppert, president of the club, announced tonight.

Colonel Ruppert did not reveal the terms of the contract, except that it is for one year only, but it was understood that it provided substantial salary increase.

The Yankee owner paid high tribute to his manager, giving to him chief credit for the team's decisive victory this season.

"Huggins has brought about a fine team spirit this year," said Colonel Ruppert. "He has moulded together a machine that ranks among the best in baseball history, in my opinion, and I am confident that he will make it four straight next year."

Huggins, who began his professional career in 1901 and entered the majors in 1904, has piloted the Yankees since 1918, a period of six years in which the Yankees have never finished below fourth place. That was in 1918. In 1919 and 1920, the club was third and has topped the circuit since then.

Huggins was the storm center, it was understood of some disagreement last season between Colonel Ruppert and his former partner, Colonel T. L. Huston. Huston was believed to have opposed Huggins' retention for 1923 after the disastrous defeat of the Yankees by the Giants in the 1922 world's series on the ground that the little manager was unable to control his temperamental aggregation. Largely because of the support of Colonel Ruppert, Huggins was re-engaged, but it was said that the point of issue between Ruppert and Huston remained and had some influence in the withdrawal of the latter from the club ownership last spring.

JONES WILL OPPOSE SCOTT IN OPENING GAME

New York, Oct. 7—(By the A. P.)—The New York Yankees and Giants closed their seasons rather ingloriously today, both meeting defeat at the hands of second division clubs, but perhaps, their thoughts were more centered upon the coming world's championship struggle than on the winning of a mere ball game.

With two days remaining before these rivals renew their title battle for the third successive year next Wednesday at the Yankee stadium, both clubs plan several workouts to iron out kinks that have been apparent in their play for the past week or so and gear their machines for a struggle that promises to be the most interesting and hard-fought they have waged so far.

The hospital list, which had assumed somewhat serious proportions, dwindled today to a few casualties, chief among which was Wally Pipp, lanky first sacker of the Yankees, who is not expected to be in condition to start the first game. Pipp's twisted ankle has mended satisfactorily but slowly. He was hobbling around today and while optimistic of his ability to be in condition by Wednesday, Manager Huggins was arranging to take the field without Pipp on opening day.

Babe Ruth will fill Pipp's shoes, Huggins said, unless the regular first sacker recovers in time. Elmer Smith will occupy the Babe's usual post in right field. This combination will add a slugger to the lineup who compares favorably with Pipp, it was pointed out, while Ruth has shown he can make himself at home on the initial bag.

Neither manager Huggins nor McGraw, has made definite pitching selections but indications were that Sam Jones, of no-hit fame, would start the first game for the Yankees with Jack Scott, veteran Giant right-hander, as his probable opponent if it is a dark day, however, Huggins may call on Joe Bush and his speed ball, or possibly, send in Herb Pennock, his southpaw ace. McGraw has been grooming Scott, a hero of the 1922 series and banks upon "long Jack" to come through.

Commissioner K. M. Landis arrived today to take charge of final details of the big games. August Herrmann, president of the Cincinnati Reds, who made a gallant fight against the Giants, and former chairman of the old National commission, was another arrival.

PIPP DEFIES DOCTOR AND SAYS HE WILL PLAY

New York, Oct. 7—A controversy has developed in the Yankee fold on the eve of the world series. It has to do with Wally Pipp's injured ankle, and the persons involved are Wally and the club physician.

Today Wally removed the leather support he has been wearing since his injury and executed a few dance steps while the medico looked on. At the conclusion of the exhibition, the physician informed Wally he could not start the series and it was so announced at Yankee headquarters.

Shortly afterward, however, Pipp stated he would play regardless of the doctor's orders, and there the matter stands.

PARTH WINS FEATURE EVENT AT PARIS

Paris, Oct. 7—A. K. Macomber's Parth, with Frank O'Neill riding, today won the Arc de Triumphe stakes, 3,000 francs added, the last big flat racing feature for 1923. Thus the Metropolitan racing season came to a close with the victory for an American owner and an American jockey.

The race was vigorously contested, the four first horses finishing heads apart. Filibert De Savoie winner of the Grand Prix de Paris, finished third Parth paid 5 to 1 to his backers.

Plainfield Loses to Bartlett

In a hard fought game, Saturday, Plainfield High lost to Bartlett High of Webster, by the close score of 7-6. It was a moral victory for Plainfield. Playing on a strange field, with the breaks of the game going against them Plainfield repeatedly brought the ball to Webster's fifteen yard line, only to be penalized heavily, usually about fifteen yards on her third or fourth downs. Williams scored for Plainfield in the first quarter, going around the end for forty yards and a touchdown. On the try for goal, which Williams scored nicely, a discussion arose about holding. It was decided against Plainfield, and she lost the point. Soon after Bartlett scored, and kicked the goal. No scoring was done after the first quarter, although Plainfield carried the ball to Bartlett's fifteen and twenty yard lines many times, and only fifteen yard penalties prevented her from scoring, the last quarter was a fight for blood. Hard tackling, hard running and hard bucking characterized this quarter, and Wallace's tackling was a feature. Four of Plainfield's men namely, Wallace, Williams, Tyler and Sherman were knocked out during this quarter, but no substitutions were made, this testifying as to the grit of these fellows. All the backfield men deerve much credit for their hard plunging, and their long gains through a broken field. Plainfield's next game is with Norwich Free Academy at Norwich on Wednesday, October 10th.

Nurmi Beats Guillemot

Lyons, France, Oct. 7—Paavo Nurmi, the Swedish runner, today won a 5,000 metres race from Josef Guillemot, the Olympic champion distance runner, thereby obtaining revenge for the defeat administered to him by Guillemot at the Antwerp Olympic games. This was the first time the pair had met since Antwerp.

Nurmi cut out a fast pace, but Guillemot stuck to him at the 4,000 metre mark, when he cracked and the Swede won by a furlong in 14 minutes 42 seconds.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR COLLEGE FOOTBALL THIS SEASO

New York, Oct. 7—Early predictions of a season of college football sports were partially borne out Saturday and followers of the great college sport regard the approach of this week's gridiron engagements with interest unusual to this early stage of the season.

Noteworthy among the unlooked for happenings of last week were, the 3 to 6 defeat of Pennsylvania by Maryland; the second successive defeat of Georgetown by th eQuantico Marines; scoreless tie involving Percy Haughton's Columbia eleven, and President Coolidge's alma mater, Amherst; the forfeiture by Washington and Lee of its scheduled game with Washington

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

The Snake and the Bird

A traveler must not tarry long.
But must be on his way,
If he would see the wide, wide world.
A little, day by day.

So, bidding the three little sparrows goodby, Little Jack Rabbit continued on his journey of adventure, and by and by after a while and maybe a mile, he came to an old tree stump where an old snake lived called Mr. Wriggle Wiggle.

"How do you do?" asked Little Jack Rabbit as the old gentleman snake uncoiled himself just enough to raise his head about a foot off the ground.

"Oh, I'm pretty well, thank you," answered Mr. Wriggle Wigle. "I've been asleep in the sun."

"Did I wake you up?" asked Little Jack Rabbit.

"Never mind," answered the snake. "I don't care for it's time for me to be up anyway. I forgot to set my alarm clock," and on he wriggled through the grass.

Just then a voice from the treetops said:

"I think you are very brave to talk
To a snake that's three feet long.
He frightens me so dreadfully,
I cannot sing my song."

And then a pretty little bird hopped out to the edge of a limb and dropped a berry for the little bird was up in a cherry tree, which I forgot to mention until just this minute.

"Oh, I'm not afraid of anything," replied Little Jack Rabbit. "I've seen many a giant in my travels."

"Really!" said the little bird. "How exciting! I never met anyone like that except a tramp and he was very good and kind and fed me with crumbs from a newspaper package."

"What was his name?" asked the bunny boy.

"Willie Wander," answered the little robin. "He was quite a singer, too. Shall I tell you the song he sang to me?"

"Of course," answered the little rabbit and the robin began:

"Oh, I'm a happy wandering tramp
And I rove the wide world through.
Although there's a hole in my left foot sock,
And a hole in my right foot shoe,
I don't care for I love the air,
That blows in the leafy wood—
Oh, I wouldn't stay in the town a day,
Not even if I could."

"That's very pretty, I should like to meet that tramp. Maybe I will some day," and Little Jack Rabbit set off once more on his journey of adventure.

By and by, after a while and maybe a mile or three, and a smile, for he was a very happy little bunny and didn't know a care except to clean the tops of his boots, he came to a bridge that was kept by Busy Beaver. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

POETRY

THE MYSTERY OF LOVE.

The love of Christ which passeth knowledge.—Eph. 3: 19.

Deep mysteries of life our minds enshroud,
Science, with scorching glare, scarce rifts a cloud,
Human philosophies, though keen and wise,
Can for one's peace of mind no shroud devise;—
Outbridging doubts as rainbows arch above
The Faith Disciple learns in trust to live
At peace within, and for Christ's service free,
"Called to be saints,"—
yet why did Christ call ME?
No condemnation waits the soul renewed,
Led by God's Spirit with God's love imbued,
Forth goes the Faith Disciple to his task,
Nor yet to know God's "hidden things" will ask
Or life's dark mysteries to understand,
Yearning but firm to clasp his Father's hand!
"Whoso hears Me, believing God is true,
From death to life hath passed"—life ever new!
Christ's voice thus calls—
has He not so called YOU?
Ayh then, not what but whom shall we believe?
Whom shall we trust and with whom choose to walk?
No creeds can bear the shaken, sifting sieve,
Or be perfected by bold critic's talk;
But though I sail in leaking, waves washed ship
'Mid tempests wild, life's billowy Galilee,
Soon, safely moored, I'll end my mortal trip
Since "Fear not, it is I," resounds o'er the sea!
Life's unsolved mystery, still—
why Christ loved ME!
—Rev. George G. Phipps, in Boston Transcript.

SUCCESS.

Success is counted sweetest
By those who ne'er succeed.
To comprehend a nectar
Requirest sorest need.

Not one of all the purple host
Who took the flag today
Can tell the definition,
So clear of victory,—

As he, defeated, dying,
On whose forbidden ear
The distant strains of triumph
Break, agonized and clear.
—Emily Dickinson.

PHEASANT BREAKS NECK AGAINST STORE WINDOW

Jerome F. Conant, the Franklin Square cigar dealer, will feast on a fine hen pheasant for his Monday dinner, having been wheeling his appetite for the morsel since last Friday, when the bird committed suicide by flying against the window of his store, and falling dead with a broken neck.

How the bird ever winged its flight into the busy center of the city is a mystery, but it came against the window with a crash that sounded as if an automobile was charging against the front of the store. The glass held but the bird dropped to the ground and died in a gasp or two after Mr. Conant had picked it up. Two small feathers remained sticking on the glass to show where the pheasant hit.

AUTO SPEEDS AWAY AFTER LEAVING MOTORCYCLIST WITH BROKEN LEG

Herbert Sabarowski, 21, who lives on the Preston City road, was left lying in North Main street Saturday night with a broken leg by an automobile that knocked him off his motorcycle and sped away without stopping. With only vague clues to follow up, the police have been trying to locate the driver and car guilty of this violation of the law and the ordinary usages of humanity, but without success so far.

Sabarowski, driving the motorcycle, with Anthony Markey riding behind him, was on his way toward Greeneville about 11.30 Saturday night, and as he reached the corner of Erin street met an automobile coming in the opposite direction. He was over to his right on the road when another machine that was passing the first one from the rear crashed into him almost head-on and then put on speed and dashed away.

Sabarowski received a bad compound fracture of the left leg between the ankle and knee, but Markey was not injured. Officer John O'Neil notified police headquarters, from which word was sent to the Backus hospital and the ambulance took the injured man.

Half a dozen young men who saw the accident were questioned by Capt. D. J. Twomey about the car that hit Sabarowski, but none of them could give the registration number or anything but a guess as to what type of car it was. Later a registration number was reported to the police, but their investigation satisfied them that this was not the guilty car.

Automobile Went Through Fence.

An automobile driven by Frank Hampson of Baltic grazed a telegraph pole on the Occum road Sunday afternoon about 2 o'clock and plunged through the fence and down a bank toward the river after hitting the right rear wheel of the machine driven by Charles Rossoll of 31 Baltic street. The Rossoll car passed Hampson from the rear and Hampson accused Rossoll of cutting in on him, but this was denied by Rossoll in the report he made at police headquarters. According to Rossoll, he sounded his horn before passing Hampson's car and Hampson steered into Rossoll's right wheel and then seemed to lose control of his car, which shot through the fence. The damage to the Rossoll car was of a minor nature.

Construes Will of Mrs. Louisa Lane.

The supreme court of errors handed down decisions in five cases last week in Hartford.

MORTGAGE ON BRAGAW RESIDENCE FORECLOSED

A mortgage of $19,000 held by the Savings bank of New London on the residence of E. T. Bragaw at the corner of Williams and Broad staeets, New London, was ordered foreclosed and the property sold by Judge Isaac Wolfe in the superior court short calendar session at New London, Friday. The judgment entered by Judge Wolfe was for the amount of the mortgage, interest of $3,041.17 and taxes of $5,028.78, making a total of $27,069.95.

Arthur H. Shurts, local real estate agent, testified that in his opinion the property is worth $35,000. Attorney Max Boyer was appointed committee of sale and James R. May, Attorney Thomas E. Troland and Mr. Shurts were appointed appraisers.

Judgment in accordance with stipulation was entered in the case of William Gillette vs. Town of Lyme, appeal from board of relief.

In the case of Taylor vs. Markow, the plaintiff was granted permission to amend complaint.

There was a hearing on a remonstrance in the case of Alvis vs. the Falls Co., appeal from compensation commissioner and the judge took the papers. Attorneys for the Falls Co. filed a motion to have the finding corrected, which Attorney Barnes for Mrs. Alvis alleged had not been filed within the legal time after an appeal had been taken.

Motions in the following cases were continued: William J. Sylvia vs. Margaret W. Sylvia, alimony pending divorce; Eugene W. Austin vs. Harriet I. ### SUBMARINE BASE WILL CELEBRATE NAVY DAY

Officials at the Submarine base are making preparations for the observance of Navy day on Saturday, Oct. 27, which is the celebration of the birthday anniversary of the late President Theodore Roosevelt.

President Coolidge has given approval of the celebration of the day in the following letter to Secretary of the Navy Denby:

THE WHITE HOUSE
Washington
August 22, 1923.

My dear Mr. Secretary,

servance of October 27th, birthday

It has been pleasing to learn of the plans to continue this year the observance of October 27th birthday of the late President Roosevelt, as Navy Day. The date is appropriate in view of the part President Roosevelt played in making our modern navy of his historical writings, dealing with it, and of the demonstrations which, as president, he gave regarding the effective utilization of naval power as a guarantee of peace.

Our country has undertaken as its proper contribution to ameliorating the burdens of armament in the world, to place certain strict limits on our naval establishment. In view of these, which it need not be said will always be strictly observed, it becomes desirable that the highest efficiency, in men and material, be maintained. The navy is the first line of defense. Our national situation makes it peculiarly important to us, for we have never been committed to the policy of a large army, relying to the greater extent than less favored countries might, on the advantage of our location and our confidence in an adequate navy. The traditional devotion of the navy to the highest usefulness and efficiency makes it especially fitting that Navy Day be so observed as to show the country's appreciation of this splendid service.

Most sincerely yours,
CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Hon Edwin Denby,
Secretary of the Navy.

DRIVERS IN ACCIDENTS MUST SHOW LICENSES

Drivers of motor vehicles or persons responsible for their operation which are involved in accidents are required to show their licenses not only to any officer of the law, but to any other person, upon demand, according to a provision issued at the state motor vehicle department. Failure to do so renders a driver liable to a thirty-day jail sentence and $50 fine or both.

The department has been receiving several complaints recently that certain motor vehicle operators have refused to produce their license on demand, following accidents. It is considered essential that this requirement be strictly observed, as it has an important bearing on reports of accidents required to be made to the department within twenty-four hours of the occurrence.
